R. O. T. C. TO DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

Machine Gun Emplacements Will Feature Decoration Theme Of Armory for Hop

R. O. T. C. officers of the College will hold a Cadet Officers' Hop in the Armory tomorrow night. Co-eds have been granted 2 o'clock permission by the W. S. G. A. for the function.

Bill Bottorf and his orchestra will provide the music for dancing from 9 until 1 o'clock. Admission will be strictly by invitation.

275 Couples Expected

Invitations have been extended to the R. O. T. C. of eighteen colleges, and acknowledgements of probable attendance have already been received from Western Maryland and the Carnegie Institute of Technology, according to Harry J. Lavo '34, student colonel and chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

The list of guests includes Governor and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, President and Mrs. Ralph D. Hetzel, Colonel and Mrs. Russell V. Venable, Dean of Women Charlotte E. Ray, Dean of Men Arthur R. Warnock, and the deans of the six schools. In addition each student officer will be permitted one extra invitation. Approximately 275 couples are expected.

The decoration theme will be entirely militaristic. A canopy, covering the entire room, will be of the conventional army khaki. Red, white and blue streamers will cover the walls, while machine gun emplacements will be set in various places about the Armory.

Original invitations in the form of official orders have been issued, which the committee requires as an admission ticket. One specific paragraph refers the holder to the Manual of Courts Martial for "failure to repair." Several novelty numbers have also been planned for the dance.

PROF. DAUGHERTY GIVES NINTH FIRESIDE READING

Instructor of Romance Languages Presents 2 Spanish Playlets

Prof. Paul R. Daugherty, of the romance languages department, gave the ninth Wednesday fireside reading in the upper lounge of Old Main yesterday afternoon, presenting two playlets by contemporary Spanish authors.

The first play read by Professor Daugherty, who has traveled extensively in Spain, was a short character sketch by the Quintero brothers, "One Sunny Morning," in which humor and sentimentality are nicely balanced.

The concluding selection was "Idyll" by Martinez Sierra, whose work is prose in style but lyrical in beauty of expression. Sierra is also the author of "Cradle Song," which was adapted recently into one of the season's most popular motion pictures.

Letter Box

has aroused Dean Warnock and members of the student body, and properly so.

The College has pursued a "Hands Off" policy in regards to the dispensing of beer in this town. Its restoration was with the hope that the privilege would not be abused. This privilege has not been abused; but those who are drunk in these places give that appearance. The truth is that these persons have become mellow elsewhere and visit these places to show off to the crowd.

We have no beer joints in town. There is not a place where beer is sold around here in which we would be ashamed to be seen.

The first thing we know is that the scandal sheets in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Harrisburg will enlarge on the story of drunken students at Penn State, and the College will be compelled to act. Are we going to let a few nincompoops spoil our privileges?

The students who are found under monstrous foundations, flushed with hope, and their mouths full of boastful language, should be at once tripped up and silenced. It might be suggested that the campus hat societies take it upon themselves to inflict some punishments on these offenders. This would add an activity to their existing program of inactivity!

Let's act like men, not babies, in this matter, and get something done among ourselves, instead of hearing again from the administration.

—J. Stanley Taylor '36

The COLLEGIAN has received several anonymous contributions to the Letter Box recently. These have not been published simply because the writer's name did not accompany the letter. All communications must bear the correct name of the author, and the name will be withheld from publication if requested. Several other letters have been withheld from this issue for lack of space.

MANY FACULTY MEN SEEM MISPLACED, REPORT SHOWS

Hinting that a general shake-up in the all-College academic departments might improve general conditions here, an anonymous report, received at the office of the COLLEGIAN late last night, revealed that most faculty members are, according to their natural attributes, serving in the wrong departments.

"It is certainly annoying, to say the least," read the report, "to find Watts the Dean of Agriculture and Light and Sparks slaving away at mechanical engineering when any average mind can perceive that these three individuals should be in the electrical department."

Attention was also called to the fact that Ham and Duncan are in the department of physics, Bacon and Hart in home economics extension work, Cooke serves in floriculture, Broyles in rural education, and Baker and Frizzell hold forth in public speaking. According to the report, it is slightly more than obvious that these gentlemen should be bending their best efforts to the advancement of the cooking division of the home economics department.

"It must be shocking to friends of the College," read the report, "to find Seamans in the Christian Association when he ought to be in nautical engineering, and Waggoner in home economics extension when she belongs in animal husbandry. And what of Learn, School, and Wiseman as a county agent, a chemist, and an architect respectively? These men should be in the School of Education."

The report concluded with a terse list of other suggested changes of which the outstanding were: Butt, of economics, and Tietz, of zoology; to anatomy; Grant, of music, to law; Tanner, of economics, to animal husbandry; Hill, of botany, Noll, of soil technology, Dale, county agent, and Ford, of economics, to the topographic survey division; Church, of chemistry, and Altar and Bell, of physics, to the P. S. C. A., and Hechlar of the engineering research department, to political science.

STUDENTS CONDUCT TESTS

Four unemployed graduate chemists and a helper have been authorized by the Civil Works Association to help analyze the chemical make-up of tobacco and certain vegetables, and to help with the experiment station program as Civil Works employees. Dr. R. Adams Dutcher, head of the department of agriculture biological chemistry, will be in charge of the work.
