

Freshman Plays Under Outstanding Musicians Prior To College Days

Five years with the Curtis Symphony Orchestra, four years with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company, three with the Pennsylvania Symphony, and a member of the Philadelphia Concert Band! That is the record of Gerald S. Woerner '37.

Although Woerner was graduated from Frankford high school only five years ago, he has played under the batons of such celebrated conductors as Stokowski, of the Philadelphia Symphony; Rodzinski, of the Cleveland Symphony; Hadley, of the Pennsylvania Symphony; Frey, of the Philadelphia Concert Band; and Riener and Nylmamski, of the Philadelphia Grand Opera company.

While with the Philadelphia Symphony, Woerner's role was chiefly that of an extra. Often-times when one heard the mellow tones of a trombone backstage during an interlude in a movement, Woerner was the player.

When the opera "Wozzeck," which created so much of a stir in musical circles two years ago, was given in New York city, he was a member of the orchestra, under Stokowski.

Woerner is a student in the musical education curriculum and expects to enter the teaching profession. He plays bass trombone and also the euphonium.

'Sunlight on the Susquehanna'

Architecture Department To Exhibit 30 Prize Woodcuts by Prof. Mack

Thirty wood engravings by Prof. Warren E. Mack, of the department of vegetable gardening, will be placed on exhibition in the gallery on the third floor of Main Engineering building beginning tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock, according to Prof. Clinton L. Harris, head of the architecture department, who has arranged the display.

The exhibit, which will include "Sunlight on the Susquehanna" illustrated above, will contain several of the wood blocks partly finished and the tools by which the tedious hand carving is done. The display will be open daily to visitors from 8 o'clock in the morning until 10 at night.

Professor Mack first attained fame in his avocation in 1927 when one of his engravings was published in "Pencil Points" and in the Sunday book section of the Baltimore Sun. Several of his works are now on display at the 1934 exhibition of the Salons of America, Inc. which opened Thursday at the Rockefeller Center in New York City.

Two prints by Professor Mack received purchase prizes from the Seattle Art Museum when his work was shown

STUDENTS WILL LISTEN TO ROUND-TABLE TALKS

Junior, Senior Agriculturists Required To Attend Weekly Discussions

Round-table discussions for upper-classmen in agricultural education have been arranged for 3 o'clock every Thursday afternoon until May 24 in Room 206, Patterson hall. Juniors as well as seniors in the curriculum are required to attend unless they have a conflicting class at that hour.

The leaders and topics for the discussions are as follows: H. C. Fetteroff will talk on "Looking Ahead in Vocational Agriculture," Willard P. Lewis, April 28, Prof. William R. White, of the department of agricultural correspondence, will speak on "The Vocational Agricultural Teacher and Rural Scouting." On May 3, Prof. John Vandervort, of the department of poultry husbandry, will talk on "Preparing Poultry Exhibits."

On May 10 Prof. William R. Gordon, of the department of agriculture extension, will speak on "Certain Rural Social Activities for Teachers of Vocational Agriculture." William P. Lewis, College librarian, will discuss "Practical Library Suggestions for High School Teachers of Agriculture," on May 17. On May 24, Prof. Harry G. Parkinson, of the department of rural education, will speak on "Keeping Up-to-date Professionally."

Ted Weems Recalls 1921 Football Game Between Penn, State

Ted Weems—varsity tennis, orchestra, band—University of Pennsylvania, class of '23.

"I remember one time when we played Penn State in football back in 1921," declared the orchestra leader in an interview during the intermission of Interfraternity Ball Friday night. "We of the band had just gotten new uniforms for the annual clash at Franklin Field.

"Just as the Nittany Lions came on the field it began to rain harder than I've ever seen it rain before. The uniforms shrank terribly and—State beat us by a wide margin."

Ted Weems and his orchestra played here at the College once before. It was at the famous Junior Prom on May 5, 1928, when a three-foot snow storm surprised the spring clothes which everyone was wearing. The "instruments" and the orchestra were forced to remain in town several extra days.

Some of the better known songs which the orchestra leader has written are "Oh, Mona!," "Piccolo Pete," and "Harmonica Harry." He has not written any lately, he declared.

PROFESSORS LISTED FOR FRENCH SUMMER SCHOOL

Farmer, Dondo, Ernst, DuMont Named On Staff of 1934 Institute

Plans have been completed for the summer session of the Institute of French Education, extending from July 2 to August 10, with a post session to be held from August 13 to August 21.

Included on the list of professors secured for the 1934 session are: Albert Farmer, who is the visiting professor from France; Mathurin M. Dondo, professor of French at the University of California; M. Frederic Ernst, who will direct the institute; and Francis M. DuMont, who is head of the romance language department in Pennsylvania State College.

The institute is conducted in order to give its students an opportunity to achieve fluency in speaking French, continuing their academic work in language and literature at the same time. To this end, French conversation will be submitted for the ordinary English vernacular.

TO INSTALL P.S.C.A. CABINETS New members of the men's and women's P.S.C.A. cabinets will be installed at a meeting in the Hugh Beaver Room in Old Main at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

ANNUAL SPEAKING CONTEST TO OPEN

First 2 Winners of Saturday Extemporaneous Finals To Receive $50, $25

Finals of the annual Extemporaneous Speaking Contest for prizes of $50 and $25 will be held in the Home Economics auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, according to an announcement made yesterday by Prof. John Henry Frizzell, head of the department of public speaking.

The competition, an outgrowth of the former Junior Oratorical Contest, is the oldest campus contest, the original having been held more than sixty years ago. All students interested in entering should report at the Home Economics auditorium at 7 o'clock Wednesday night to sign their names and choose a topic. The contest is open to all students except previous winners of the contest prize.

After subjects have been chosen, either by the speakers or from a suggested list of six, contestants will be assigned to groups to speak the following night. The elimination speeches will be held in different rooms and will not be over five minutes in length. From each group one person will be chosen to speak in the finals.

Finalists will report to Professor Frizzell on Friday to select their topics and draw for positions in the final elimination. Final speeches may not be more than ten nor less than eight minutes in length. Three judges, to be chosen later, will rank the speakers in order from one to six; the two receiving the lowest totals, being declared winners of first and second place prize money.

"It is to be understood that this is a contest not in memorization nor in dramatic interpretation, but in extemporaneous speaking. Contestants should keep this in mind in selecting topics and gathering data," explained Professor Frizzell. "I emphasize this because in previous years contestants seem to have forgotten this fact," he concluded.

HOFFORD GETS SUMMER POST Prof. Herbert M. Hofford of the department of journalism has been named as a member of the Summer Session faculty at Rhode Island State College, Kingston, R. I. Professor Hofford will institute a new course in journalism in which the students under his direction will have complete charge of both the editorial and the business departments of the Summer Session newspaper of the college. It will also be the first time that the Summer Session of the college has had a newspaper.
