

SHOW, DISCUSSIONS, DANCE TO FEATURE FLORIST'S COURSE

Fashion Show in Auditorium To Display Correct Ways To Wear Flowers

REGISTRATION TO BEGIN WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Florist's Telegraph Association Representative To Talk On Retail Work

A fashion show, discussions led by members of the faculty and visiting florists, and a dance at the Nittany Lion Inn will feature the Retail Florist's Short Course which will be held here Wednesday and Thursday.

The show, sponsored by the department of ornamental horticulture, with co-eds demonstrating the correct way of wearing flowers with the newer types of clothes, will be presented in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night. The clothes and the flowers will be donated by five wholesale houses. The fashion show will be followed by a short pantomime and a silver collection will be taken to defray expenses.

To Open Wednesday Afternoon

Opening the course with registration in Room 103 Horticulture building at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, there will be a general discussion of statewide retail problems, led by a representative of the Florist's Telegraph Association at 1:30 o'clock. Miss Helen M. Savard, assistant professor of Applied Arts will talk on "Color and Color Harmony," while Harney W. Slover, assistant professor of economics will speak on "Advertising." The afternoon program will be followed by a banquet at the Nittany Lion Inn and a dance sponsored by the Florist's Club.

Stanley Trubey, sales manager of an Altoona department store, will open the discussions Thursday morning speaking on "Salesmanship" at 9 o'clock, while Mr. J. L. Cohen, assistant in economics, will talk on "Simplified Bookkeeping" at 10:30 o'clock.

TWEEDY UNCOVERS MODERN FALLACIES

Yale Divinity Head Plays Superstitions Prevalent Today in Regular Sunday Chapel Talk

That we must, at some time or other, dabble in the mud-puddle of wickedness in order to reach our highest development is an ignorant, stupid, and devilish superstition, Dr. Henry H. Tweedy, of the Yale Divinity School, declared in his chapel address on "Modern Superstitions and Their Cure" in Schwab auditorium yesterday morning.

"Apparently in our today's world of science, superstitions could scarcely exist, but instead we have more and more varieties. Not all of them are simple and childish, but some are shaping our civilization," Dr. Tweedy said. "The idea that ruthless selfishness is the only way to attain the greatest happiness is another misleading superstition," he added.

There is a bit of superstition in our religions of today, but after all, this is not the thing that religion really stands for, the chapel speaker stated. Religion is more than an abstract affection; it is the obeying of God's commandments; love for God and for one's fellow man are the big things in religion, according to the Yale theologian.

Extreme nationalism, or the attitude of "America for America, Italy for Italy, etc.," as a manifestation of this selfish spirit, was scored by the speaker, who predicted that we are heading for an inferno, whose fires we have lighted ourselves.

'Think of College as Whole, Not Athletic Achievements'

Steve Hamas Commends Penn State's Efforts To Make Itself Worthy Institution

"In thinking of Penn State, I think not of athletic achievements alone, but of the College as a whole, and I wish to commend the efforts to make it an institution of which one might justly be proud," declared Steve Hamas '29 in a surprise appearance at the fourth biennial Interfraternity dinner at the Nittany Lion Inn Friday night.

Speaking to more than two hundred fraternity representatives and guests of honor, Hamas said, "I have had the privilege of attending two dinners during this past week: an alumni meeting in Pittsfield and one in Scranton."

"It was somewhat surprised at those meetings to hear these men talking about football scholarships, which I believe are in distinct antipathy to the policy of the present administration of the College."

"Now, I won't be a hypocrite. I won't say that I am against scholarships. I was a scholarship man myself. It was only because of this that I was able to attend this wonderful institution. And I believe that if they were continued many other young fellows who find themselves in the same predicament as I was would be greatly benefited by these opportunities."

"But if the administration adopts a non-subsidization policy, they do that because they believe it to be the better method. We should not condemn them for it. Rather, we should back them up."

"I have made a number of trips across the country during the past few years, and I have visited many colleges and universities. In this time, but I don't believe that there is anywhere a better school."

"Realize the opportunities which you have here, fellows, get in back of Penn State and help keep it where it is and the good name which it has. Remember, whatever the administration says is O. K. Let's all support them."

More emphasis in the local chapter houses should be placed upon the individual, since it is the individual who makes the scholastic standing of the house, contended President Ralph D. Hartzel in his introductory remarks.

Dr. Arthur E. Brown, headmaster of Harrisburg Academy, insisted that higher ideals of achievement in both athletics and scholarship should be attained. In the principal speech of the evening, G. Herbert Smith, dean of freshmen men at DePauw University, who traveled from Indiana, addressed the conference, pointing out the need for criticism and self-analysis.

Armed with a chart which showed exactly how fraternities stood on a national basis, and locally, he took the chart as a springboard for encouragement of a campaign to justify the fraternity on the basis of its contribution to the intellectual life of the college.

P.S.C.A. DIRECTORS' PLAN MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

Watts To Take Charge of Gathering Reviewing Activities of Year

MATRICULATION CARDS NEEDED FOR BALLOTING

Madison, Bertolotto Entered In Contest To Gain Junior Executive Post

Financial Reports Submitted

Financial reports, summarizing the campaign expenses of each clique have been submitted to Charles A. Myers '34, chairman of the Elections Committee. They will be checked by the Committee for advertising expenditures in excess of the $30 maximum set by the 1934 elections code. All reported violations of the code will be submitted to Student Board to be dealt with.

Every effort is being made by the Committee to prevent illegal voting. The first floor lounge will be roped off into aisles for the different schools. Ballot boxes will be provided for each school. Campaigning will be provided for each school. Campaigning will be prohibited in the halls of Old Main.

Matriculation Cards Required

Voting by proxy will not be permitted. Each voter will be required to present his matriculation card which will be checked on the Deans' lists of eligible students. The cards will be punched to prevent re-voting. Any member of the Committee may ask for further identification. Those who have lost their matriculation cards may be eligible to vote upon presentation of a note from their Dean's office certifying that they are regularly enrolled undergraduate students.

Interest in the elections naturally centers around the race between Paul K. Hirsch '35, Campus, and Clifford C. Wood '35, Lowest Lane, aspirants for the senior class presidential post with Howard E. Johnston '35 and
