SHANNON PROMISES COLLEGE SUPPORT

"I am all for State College," Candidate Reiterates When Interviewed On Campus Tuesday

"I am all for State College," declared General Edward C. Shannon, Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania, and candidate for Governor in the spring primary of the Republican party, in an interview following his speech at a mass meeting here Tuesday afternoon.

When asked what he will do for Penn State should he be elected Governor, General Shannon reiterated the declaration which he had made in his address that he was "all for State College."

Queried as to whether he believed the annual appropriation to the College to be too large or too small, and what he intends to do in changing it, the gubernatorial candidate replied, "I am not at liberty to quote figures at the present time."

"I am not like most politicians are in their pre-election promises. I won't say that I will do all I can to see that Penn State gets the new buildings which they want up here, nor will I say that I won't do anything for them. It all depends on the outcome of the election. Just remember that I am all for State College."

WHITE WILL TALK ON SOIL RESEARCH

Winner of Senate Committee Award For Outstanding Research To Speak Tomorrow

Prof. Jonathan W. White, of the department of agronomy, who was recently named as the outstanding research man on the campus this year by the Senate Committee, will speak on "The Scope and Significance of our Soil Research Program" in the Home Economics auditorium at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Professor White's talk will deal with the development of that field and with the soil research laboratory studies pertaining to problems in soil fertility. Two phases will be given special emphasis. First he will discuss his research work in relation to previous time investigations which have been made, and also with a detailed study of the development and progress of the Pennsylvania agriculture time market.

The second phase which he will emphasize will deal with the more fundamental research, pertaining to soil micro-biology. During the last two years some important discoveries have been made dealing with the activity of soil micro-organisms in relation to soil fertility.

Professor White's work in soil research has been confined to investigations on the old fertility plots which have been established here since 1881. They are the oldest experimental field plots in America. The chemical and biological studies which he has made on these plots since 1906 have brought to light some valuable data on the residual effects of the various fertilizer treatments and their influence on the growth and development of the several crops.
