

Soccermen Lose Initial 5 Matches to Scots; First U. S. Team to Make Tour

Columbia, Syracuse, Penn, Bucknell Loom As Biggest Hazards on 8-Game Grid Card

Columbia, Syracuse, Penn — then Bucknell. These are the highlights of the eight game season that Coach Bob Higgins and his Blue and White gridders start pointing towards when fall practice starts on new Beaver Field, Monday afternoon.

Sage sports writers, numbing in their beads, predict the Columbia game as the toughest of the season. The team that smashed its way through Southern California at the Rose Bowl on New Year's day to become National champions, will be tough, tough meat for the Nittany Lion to attempt to devour.

Bucknell Strong for Final
Bucknell, scheduled as the last game of the season on November 24, looms as a good hard second in opponent strength, while Penn and Syracuse, following in that order after the Columbia game October 27, will furnish plenty of opposition to what promises to be an unusually fine Nittany team. The Lewisburg warriors haven't faced Nittany on the gridiron for several years. Penn's battles tied the Blue and White squad 6-6 in a heart-breaking game at Philadelphia at the end of last season, while Syracuse squeezed out a 12-6 victory over Coach Higgins' men at Archbold stadium last year.

The 1934 season will open against Lebanon Valley here October 6, with the Nittany team opposing an "opener" team that was easily defeated last year to the tune of 32-6. Gettysburg comes to Beaver Field after a lapse of two years for the second game of the season on October 13.

To Meet Lehigh Oct. 20
The next week-end the Lion aggregation travels to Bethlehem where they meet Lehigh on October 20. Last year the Nittany team ran through the Brown and White eleven with almost too great ease, 33-0. After the Lehigh breaker, October 27 will find the Penn State gridders in New York City, where they will meet Columbia University, while on Alumni Day, November 3, the Lions will meet Syracuse's orange team on New Beaver field.

Last year's tie will be fought out on Franklin Field in Philadelphia when the Higgins-coached eleven meets Penn's warriors November 10, while Lafayette comes here to meet the Nittany on New Beaver Field November 17, Pennsylvania Day. The mass-migration of approximately 5000 Penn State students to Lewisburg will mark the renewal of hostilities with the ancient Blue and White neighbor, Bucknell, when the Bison and the Mountain Lion clash in the new Bucknell stadium to wind up the season November 24.

Brains Behind Fall Sports Campaigns

CHICK WERNER

COACH BOB HIGGINS

BILL JEFFREY

When the Lion Soccermen stack up against their opponents, when the Nittany Gridders tear through a hole for twenty yards, when State emerges victorious from a cross-country race, these three men, above, will be the 'brains on the bench' behind the tactics of the teams. Shown here are Bill Jeffrey, soccer mentor, Bob Higgins, head football coach, and Chick Werner.

14 Lions on Trip; Drop 4 Games by Narrow Margins

Nittanymen To Play One More Match; Will Return To Enter College Sept. 19

With the distinction of being the first American collegiate soccer team to ever tour in Scotland, the Penn State booters are now completing a series of six games in that country.

The team is meeting six of the leading amateur clubs of Scotland; most of the players are members of the last year's championship team, although one is a graduate. The team sailed from New York on the steamer "Caledonia," August 11, and will return before school starts here on the 19th.

At the present time five of the games have been played, with the home team losing all of them by narrow margins. It lost the first game with the Leith Amateurs, 6-4; the second with the Galashiels Fairyrden Club, 7-12; the third with the Inverness Caledonians, 10-6, the fourth with the Elgin City Club, 5-4, and fifth with the Falkirk Amateurs, 10-1.

Coach Jeffery has picked the following men to represent Penn State in the series:

Don Masters, John E. Binns and Al Daykin, all of Philadelphia; Daykin was captain and an all-American selection in 1932. Benjamin Palmer, Swathmore; Frank Osterlund, Nor-

Athletic Teams Gain Win Average of .658

Athletic teams at Penn State last year turned a total win-lose percentage of .658. This is a total of the individual averages of the various teams; out of the eighty contests which were held, the State teams turned in victories for fifty-one of them, lost 27 and tied two others.

Of the 27 and tied two others recorded, the soccer men turned in the best performance with a clean state of six victories, no ties and no losses, winding up the season to tie Penn for the Eastern Intercollegiate championship. Only one other perfect record was reported—that of the gym team in winning its only contest.

The golf team, with its six victories and one defeat, turned in the next best record. Its percentage was .857. Other excellent performances were registered by the wrestling and basketball teams, both with .750 averages. The wrestling team lost one and tied one of its five contests, while the dribblers only lost four of their sixteen engagements.

The track and lacrosse teams each won two-thirds of their contests, and the baseball team turned in a percentage of .538. Teams that turned in a straight .500 rating were fencing, tennis, cross-country and football. The football team last year won three games, lost three games and tied the final game with Penn 6 to 6.

The only team that lost more games than it won was the boxing team with two victories and four defeats. Altogether there are thirteen varsity sports on this campus. The Fall sports are football, soccer and cross-country; Winter sports are basketball, boxing, wrestling, gym, and fencing, while Spring sports are baseball, track, lacrosse, tennis and golf.

Intramural Sports Provide Athletics For All Students

Fraternities, Clubs, Units Compete For Honors In Wide Variety of Tournaments

For the benefit of the majority of students at Penn State, who are unable to meet the requirements for varsity competition, an extensive system of intramural athletics has been developed by Hugh Bezek, director of athletics.

The program includes all sports represented in intercollegiate competition, in addition to some not included on varsity schedules. Fraternities, clubs, and non-fraternity units compete for honors in tournaments which are conducted in each sport. The tournaments are directed by experienced coaches and instructors and although it is not the primary purpose of the plan, quite frequently valuable material for varsity teams is discovered.

Fraternities Cooperate
During the past year the fraternities have cooperated in delaying the dinner hour from 5:30 o'clock until 6 o'clock, and the majority of classes have been eliminated from between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. These two improvements have made possible a full two-hour period for recreation and all-student athletics.

The increased participation of students shows evidence that intramural athletics at the College is growing steadily in importance. Forty-eight teams took part in the mushball tournament, while individual champions were crowned in the boxing and wrestling competition. In addition to the major sports, intramural handball and volleyball were conducted during the winter season. More than sixty students participated in the former journey, while three times as many entered the latter competition.

murals handball and volleyball were conducted during the winter season. More than sixty students participated in the former journey, while three times as many entered the latter competition.

Sports conducted during the spring season included horseshoes, tennis, golf, soccer, track, and lacrosse. Football, for those desirous of learning the fundamentals of the game, was featured during the spring competition.

At student sports council is selected each year to control the intramural athletic affairs of the College. A general manager is named by this group, as well as separate managers for each of the three seasonal divisions. The manager for each season assumes responsibility for the sports conducted during that season.

'Earn as Much as Possible, Then Borrow Balance for Education'—Alumni Advise

A judicious combination of earning as much as possible and borrowing the rest is the advice offered by prominent Penn State alumni to students who do not have sufficient funds to go through college.

Twenty of the list of outstanding graduates who answered a COLLEGIAN questionnaire believe that a combination of the two is the best method. Ten advise working to earn all of the necessary funds.

Only two alumni think that the needy student should borrow all of the money needed to finance his years in college, while four indicate that it is more desirable to stay out long enough to earn sufficient money to go through all or several years of college. Five say that working out of college a year or two and then earning money while attending college is the best, while eight believe that the three methods should be combined.

Of the fifty-two alumni who answered the questionnaire, thirty-three earned part of their college expenses, eight earned all of the necessary funds, while eleven did not earn any of the money needed for their expenses. Of those who worked, ten earned the money during the regular college session, eight during the summer, and twenty-one during both the regular session and the summer.

The consensus of alumni opinion as indicated by additional comments seems to be that students should work part time only, borrowing some money toward the end of their junior or senior years, and then not too much. Preferably one year and not more than two years is cited as the maximum time that a student should stay out of college to earn money for his expenses.

"A man does not get full benefit of his college course when all his time is devoted to earning his way through," one alumnus says. "Therefore, a man should get together thirty or forty percent of his college expenses and then earn the rest as he goes through."

"My advice to students would be, don't borrow too much," adds another alumnus. "I should fix $1,000 as the maximum. And by all means borrow under the proper business terms—pay interest, protect yourself with insurance and pay back a stipulated amount yearly after graduation. Otherwise your borrowing will become a nightmare to you."

wood; Osterlund is now in Portugal and will join the team in Glasgow. Richard A. Sigel, Narberth; Robert W. Dallas, North Wales; F. Marple Amblar, Langhorne; Joe 'Bielicki, Bethlehem. Jack Fletcher, of State College, captain of the team for next fall; Woodrow Corman, Hubersburg; Edwin G. Long, Pittsburgh.

Edward G. Finzel, Frostburg, Md.; William McEwan, South Hadley, Mass.; McEwan is a brother of John McEwan, captain and star of the Syracuse University team last fall. William H. Nicholson, of Wilkes-Barre, varsity manager for next fall, is accompanying the group in the capacity of manager.

Morrison Will Lead Lion Football Team

Merrill (Barrel) Morrison will lead the Lion eleven this year. Morrison, a senior, has held down one of the half-back posts for the past two years and has been a constant threat to all opponents because of his speed, shiftness and ability at open field running. He is extremely light for a football man, weighing only 155 pounds.

Jack Fletcher will act as captain of the soccer team which is away now England. Fletcher plays full-back this fall. Fletcher plays full-back and weighs over 180 pounds. He is noted for his ability to break up an opponent's thrust at the State goal. George Harvey will lead the cross-country team in their jaunts over hill and dale this year. This diminutive barrier is also captain of the varsity track team, making him the only person to serve as captain of two sports here this year.

Leaders of the other varsity sport teams for the coming year are: Johnny Stocker, captain of the basketball team; Howard Johnston, captain of the wrestling team; and Mike Zelznock, captain of the boxing team. Both Johnston and Zelznock were intercollegiate champions in their respective sports last year. "Teggy" Webber will be the leader of the lacrosse team.

Leaders of the minor varsity sports are Nelson Green, captain of tennis; Don Masters, captain of the gym team, and Johnny Kreider, captain of fencing. Two men were selected to act as captains of the golf team: "Chick" Beyer and Tommy Marshall.

Foresters Spend Year At Mont Alto Branch

Approximately eighty freshmen enrolled in forestry will spend their first year and the following summer at Mont Alto, a branch of the Penn State school, where there are excellent physical facilities for training along practical lines.

First-year men at Mont Alto have the same customs as those at State College. They also organize their own sports, activities, and clubs.

Presbyterians Have Majority of Students Enrolled Here in '33

Totaling 857, Presbyterian students enrolled at the College last year numbered one-fifth of the student body, according to the religious classification announcement by William S. Hoffman, College registrar.

Methodists ranked second with 674 and 552 were listed as Roman Catholics. Lutheran ranked next, followed by Reformists, Hebrews, and Protestant Episcopal.

Twenty-seven different creeds were named on the list, including nearly all of the known Christian faiths. 122 failed to specify their preference, while 173 failed to cite their creed, merely indicating that they were Protestants.
