from his waist down to his ankles. The injuries are exceedingly painful but are not considered serious.

According to the story, related by the guide at the hospital, he and his family had been forced to abandon their home near the cave when rushing waters of Penns' creek broke the bank and flooded the Vonada home. In company with his wife and son he took to the hills to await assistance.

Fearing that the rising waters would drown the bears, they were released. The large male made for Mr. Vonada. Mrs. Vonada and son beat at the bear while Vonada himself attempted to choke the animal. The battle lasted 15 minutes, when O. M. Hosterman, owner of the cave, was attracted to the scene by the shouting and struck the bear on the nose with a large stone, driving him toward the home while Hosterman, wading neck deep in water, found a shot gun and shells.

Bruin was ready for a second attack when a charge of buckshot sent him sprawling into the swollen creek. It was believed the bear swam away.

Planks were secured and the injured man carried inch by inch up the steep bank to a point at the top of the hill, where a Millheim doctor administered first aid. An ambulance was secured and he was rushed to the Centre county hospital.

appeared on the Thespian scene at this point as did Dr. William S. Dye jr., of the department of English literature. Because many members of group enlisted in the service, the show "The Naked Truth," rewritten from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Palace of Youth," was made a vehicle for the combined Thespians and Women's Glee clubs in 1917.

Entering the 1918-19 season financially handicapped, the club produced "It Pays to Advertise," under the direction of Doctor Dye and Miss Mary Dunham, who was connected with the department of public speaking at that time. This show included women in the cast, among whom was Margaret Fishburn, a sister of Prof. Hummel Fishburn, of the department of music. Returning to their former custom of excluding women from the cast, the Thespians staged "The Magistrate," under the direction of Dr. Dye.

"Stop Thief" and "A Pair of Sixes" were the shows of 1919-20, the former including women and the second excluding them. "King Pompomous I," was the performance of the 1920-21 season, while George Ade's "The Fair Co-ed," "His Little Widows," and "The Magazine Cover Girl," were produced from 1921 to 1924. The last of these was the work of the late Robert Voskamp '25.

"Wooden Shoes," staged in the 1924-25 season, contained songs penned by Professor Fishburn, who also wrote the lyrics for the following year's production, "The Kid Himself" by Voskamp and Joe Etter '25. "Girl Wanted," and "Honestly Yours," were produced between 1926 and 1928, while the Thespians and the Women's Glee club combined to present "H. M. S. Pinafore" in 1928-29. "Dutchess in Dutch," "Scrapbook of 1931," "Reely and Truly," "We, the People," "Old King Cole," and "My Stars" conclude the past performances of the Thespians to date.
