$784.36 Deficit Incurred By First Artists' Course

Financial Report Lists Loss Less Than Anticipated Plans For New Series Discussed at Meeting

That the 1933-34 Artists' Course incurred a deficit of only $784.36 was announced at the first meeting of the executive committee held Wednesday afternoon in the office of Dr. Carl E. Marquardt, chairman of the committee.

The deficit announced in Dr. Marquardt's report to President Hetzel was far less than had been anticipated when the series of concerts was first planned.

The college has again provided $2,500 to be used as a contingent against a deficit for the present year, although it is planned to make the series pay for itself.

The same committee that functioned last year has been appointed by President Hetzel to serve this year with the addition of Paul K. Hirsch '35, senior class president, as student representative.

Expenses Total $4,565.01 Present plans are to hold the first concert early in December instead of February when the last series began.

College Gets New Weather Service

Geophysical Laboratory To Hear U. S. Weather Broadcast; Will Post Map

Inauguration of a new weather reporting service to step up the speed with which weather information is received in Central Pennsylvania was announced recently by the School of Mineral Industries.

Before this residents of the central section of the state have been compelled to await the arrival of weather maps mailed from Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, or Washington.

Now through a pick-up of weather information broadcast each morning by the U. S. Weather Bureau, and its immediate transcription to a map on the campus, it is possible to ascertain weather conditions in 120 cities centered all over the United States and Canada at least one day earlier than previously.

The new service is being performed by the geophysical laboratory under the direction of Dr. Helmut Landsberg who joined the staff of the College on June 1. Dr. Landsberg was previously in charge of the Taunus Observatory of Meteorology and Geophysics at the University of Frankfurt, Germany.

The daily weather map will be posted on a bulletin board in the lobby of the Mineral Industries building at 10 o'clock each morning. The service is one of the latest steps in the development of meteorological studies at Penn State.

Hartman Favors Re-distribution of National Income, Reduction of Military Expenditures

The most important thing about any man is his attitude and viewpoint on social, political, and economic problems. The COLLEGIAN is printing this interview with Dr. Hartmann because of his prominence as Socialist candidate for Congress.

"I favor, and if elected, will vigorously support," continued Dr. Hartmann: "1. Re-distribution of the national income through heavier income and inheritance taxes, with a provision that no person may receive an income greater than $25,000 per year until such time as the average wage-earner gets the equivalent of $3,000 annually."

"2. Making the banking and credit system exclusively a non-profit institution like the schools.

McSparran Urges Farm Preparation

Urging spiritual as well as intellectual preparation for leadership, John A. McSparran, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, reviewed the problems facing the American farmer today in an address before freshmen of the School of Agriculture Wednesday morning.

Pointing out that even in the midst of the general agricultural depression, certain farmers, skilled in their vocation, have succeeded financially and made enviable places for themselves in home life and community leadership.

Relief cannot be expected until the monetary system of the country is revamped and the tariff system completely overhauled.

Deplores Unjust Taxes Citing examples of what he termed spiritual laxity on the part of this nation, Secretary McSparran declared that "The situation in which we find ourselves cannot be explained by economic law."

Club Protests Arrest Of Wiley '32 in Conn.

The Social Problems club Wednesday night sent two telegrams protesting the arrest in Danielson, Conn., of S. Donald Wiley '32 on a charge of sedition.

The telegrams, which protested against "this affront to democracy," were sent to Judge John W. Gallup, under whom the case is to be heard, and to Seares Derrington, prominent in Danielson.

Wiley was arrested with Russell Danielson, a graduate of Dartmouth and a descendant of the man after whom the town was named, for distributing leaflets containing a reprint of an editorial in the Daily Worker together with copies of the paper.

The editorial warned against the possible sell-out of the new arbitration board to the employers, and the leaflet contained on the back in small type the words, "Join the Communist party."

Sending of the telegrams followed receipt of a letter to the club from Wiley.

Lion Eleven To Meet Gettysburg As Part of Dad's Day Program

Blue and White Will Make Attempt To Prolong Twenty-five Game Winning Streak Over Frear's Bullets

The Lion football team will meet the Orange and Blue eleven of Gettysburg College here today and tomorrow on New Beaver field at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The tilt will be the twenty-sixth encounter between Penn State and Gettysburg, the series starting in 1894. The Lions have been the victors in every contest. One resulted in a deadlock when the two teams battled to a scoreless tie in 1906.

On the line, Coach Bob Higgins will start Art Fry and Frank Smith at ends, Web' Weber and Roy Schuyler at tackles, and Barth and Lou Kreizman at guards, with Jim O'Hora getting the call at the pivot post.

Coach 'Hen' Frear will start Johnny Cleo, veteran defensive fullback; Dan McGinnis, veteran plunging half; Bill Cook, sophomore half; and Bob Sassauna, a transfer this year from Susquehanna, at quarter.

One of the Bullets' ends is a veteran; the other is untried. Tony Kozma, letterman for two years, will flank John Fish, sophomore. At tackles Coach Frear will use two relatively inexperienced men, Snyder and Walker. Brown, the heaviest man on the Gettysburg team, will be at right guard, and a sophomore, Wagner, will start at left.

To match the finding of Superka, the Lions can point to the uncovering of Tommy Silvano, transfer from Notre Dame. Substituted into the Penn State backfield in the middle of the first quarter, Silvano started a march for a touchdown, backing his way through the line for short but consistent gains.

The Lions are working out daily for the Bullets. Coach Higgins realizing that the game is far from a set-up, the backs are working chiefly on passing and kicking, while Coaches 'Spike' Leslie and Joe Bedonk are drilling the inexperienced line in the fundamentals.

The Penn State and Gettysburg starting line-ups, complete with numbers and weights, will be found on page four.
