Speidel Pupils Grapple With New Mat Lexicon

By VANCE PACKARD

"What'll we call this one?" wrestling coach Charlie Speidel queried. Capt. Johnston and Paul Civits, exhibits A and B, lay in a tangled heap at his feet.

Learning wrestling holds this year is not a mere process of memorizing complicated, and apparently non-sensical labels. "We'll make them up as we go along. And if we don't like the handles that we gave them last year, then we'll change them."

Maybe this explains the past success of Charlie's grapplers. He doesn't teach according to a set formula. Like a master cook, he combines his own ingredients as he goes along, and the resulting dish is unique but very tasty.

To the average observer, it all appears very haphazard. Then Red Johnston slips into another hold. "Last year we called it a cross-body clamp. What'll it be this year?" Someone volunteers "A bar-arm pry." The coach grinned, said "O.K." and wrote it on the near-by black-board.

However, Charlie believes that it is too early in the year to worry about specific holds yet. Now he is stressing fundamentals; not necessarily the basic holds, but the indispensables, such as balance, feigning, how to stay on one's feet, leg-dives, sit-outs, and above all, endurance.

The daily program is very simple. Immediately after getting in their uniforms the grapplers run out to the College barns and back, even in zero weather . . . following this, the rope-climbing, rope-skipping, and limbering-up exercises. Until Charlie shows up they play about on the mat, practicing the holds they learned the night before.

Soon Charlie descends upon the group, clad in his uniform, shouts jubilant greetings, and then picks a scrap with the nearest husky within reach. Maybe it's Captain "Red." After rolling around for a few minutes and making the 165 pound Intercollegiate champion look very helpless, he leaps to his feet, claps his hands, and in an amazingly short time has his seventy

NEW INTERSECTIONAL SPORTS CARD PLANNED

Inaugurating a new program of intersectional competition in freshmen physical education classes this semester, the department of physical education completed its fall tournament in Rugby recently and will begin a more comprehensive line of activity this winter in handball, basketball, and volleyball, which will include both freshmen and sophomores.

Each of the sections in the freshman division entered teams in the tournament, which was run off outside of class. The winning team was section eight, better known on the field as the "Sleepers." Members of the team are: Maxwell Derby '38, captain, William A. Balslevy '38, Alvin E. Di Ilio '38, Bruce E. Dravbaugh jr. '38, Charles G. Ely '38, Carl J. Fisher '38, Edward G. Foshir '38, Earl M. Fry '38, James A. Haranyi '38, Samuel W. Hettinger '38, Lawrence M. McClure '38, John A. McLaughlin '38, William Whitehead '38, and Harry R. Ulrich two year student.

As the idea has proved successful, a spring program of baseball and speedball will be launched. After a year's trial, the program will be considered by the department for having a permanent place in the physical education course.

Sackett Gives Report

Dean Robert L. Sackett, of the School of Engineering, will present a report dealing with athletic participation of transfer students from junior colleges to the Council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in New York on December 27. Dean Sackett is vice president of the second district.

Dunaway Will Preside

Dr. Wayland F. Dunaway, of the history department will serve as chairman of a joint meeting of the American Historical Association of the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C., December 27, 28, 29. Dr. James E. Gillespie and Dr. Francis J. Tschann, also of the history department, are other faculty members who plan to attend the Washington convention.

"GO WEST YOUNG MAN"

matmen writhing under his notorious setting-up exercises.

After this onslaught, the boys are given a breather while Charlie delivers the above-mentioned black-board talk where they formulate and compose their holds. When the wrestlers are almost breathing normally again, he makes them rehearse what they have just learned.

What happens from this point on varies each night. Sometimes they fool around for the rest of the time; more often, they have individual bouts of four to six minutes each; where the one partner gets on top and rides awhile, and then gets underneath and tries to get out, while the other rides . . . then to the showers.

A Man To Watch

LOU GROWER only three-letter man at Rutgers who will probably be in the starting line-up when the Lions meet the Red Roosters in New Brunswick on December 29. Grower, who is a senior this year, was high scoring guard and forward for the past two years, as well as an outstanding guard on the football team. He also hurls the weights for the track team.

probably see action, as will Francis Strapp, veteran forward. Mary Thompson, forward, and Bill Kosko, center, are also expected to mix in the fray.

The Red Roosters boast two non-lettermen features—Al Chizmadia and Tom Rooney. Chizmadia won numerals as a guard three years ago and returned to the squad for the first time this year. He starred at half-back and quarterback on the football team, is an outfielder on the Scarlet nine. Rooney is a center; a numeral winner two years ago, he plays third base on the Rutgers' nine.

This year's heavy seventeen-game schedule is a real ordeal for the courtmen. They will have played seven games before any of the other major winter sports teams open their seasons. On Wednesday night, January 2, the day College re-opens, the Lions will encounter Wheaton College in Rec hall. On January 5 they will travel to the Quaker City and attempt to break their jinx against Penn. The Temple Owls will be up here to test the mettle of the Lesliemen on January 9, the first of a series of eight home games in a row. On January 12 they are scheduled to meet Juniata, while Western Maryland will be here on the 16th.

She-Lions

Scoring 38 points to the '37 team's 15 points, the freshmen tallied an overwhelming victory in the swimming meet at the Glennland pool last Tuesday. They took seven first places out of the ten events.

In the events which were judged for form, the first places went to Dot Warr '38, side stroke; Rita Ailstadt '37, elementary back stroke; Claudia Bodes '38, breast stroke; Marion Barboey '37, crawl. The winners of the speed events were Garnet Salberg '38, free-style; Hannah Judd '38, back back crawl; Ruth Edgar '38, crawl.

Lou Sutton '38, breast stroke. Ruth Lee '37 was the unquestioned victor in the diving contest, and the '38 relay team won the last event.

As the last games of the intramural basketball season were played on Monday, the Downtown Girls defeated Mac hall 16-to-6, and Kappa Kappa Gamma overwhelmed Alpha Chi Omega 40-to-2. Women's building forfeited to Delta Gamma; Phi Mu to Gamma Phi Beta; and Grange Dorm to Alpha Omicron Pi.
