Results of an investigation of timber construction in buildings are the basis of an illustrated article by Prof. Harry N. Benkert, of the department of civil engineering, Francis J. Hanrahan, of the department of mechanics and materials of construction, and Lawrence W. Smith, a senior last year in the civil engineering department, which is contained in the January 10 issue of the "Engineering News-Record."

Panel Discussion on Social Studies Report Will Feature February A.A.U.P. Meeting

A panel discussion by Dr. Willard Waller, of the department of economics and sociology, Dr. Harold F. Alderfer, and Prof. S. K. Stevens, of the department of history and political science, on the American Historical Association report on Social Studies, will feature the February meeting of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors, in the first floor lounge of Old Main at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday, February 6.

This report was published late this summer after a four-year study of the question on the part of a committee made up of nationally known figures in the historical and social science world. The American Historical Association, numbering more than 5,000 members, is the outstanding organization of its kind in the world. Past presidents have included such figures as Theodore Roosevelt, Charles A. Beard, former professor of history at Columbia University; James H. Breasted, professor of Egyptology at the University of Chicago; and, last year, William E. Dodd, at present, ambassador to Germany.

The fundamental thesis of the report is that social studies instruction must provide the intellectual background for the participation of the citizen in the new order of society which, in the United States as elsewhere, is emerging into a more integrated and collectivistic stage with a consequent decline of laissez-faire individualism.

The discussions should be especially interesting to the student body as they will attack the practical problems of teaching the social sciences from the point of view of the men trained in the social studies rather than from the theoretical viewpoint of educators.

Professor Stevens will be the first speaker and he will set forth the history of how the report came into being. Also he will discuss the fundamental thesis of the report as already mentioned, and finally go on to the implications of the report as related to instruction in the field of history, both as to the nature of the committee recommendations and as to their possible and actual application at Penn State.

The second speaker, Dr. Alderfer, will discuss the ideas and conclusions of the report on the relation of the public to the scholar, an interesting and timely subject in the light of the great social changes that are now being made in the United States. And, as Dr. Alderfer says, these changes are bound to have a repercussion on the status of the school in society.

Dr. Waller, the third and last speaker, will discuss the educational system in relation to the other institutions of society, emphasizing the fact that, to a considerable extent, it must represent the dominant thought patterns and interest groups of the time.

Following his discussion the question will be taken up in open meeting with the audience participating. Dr. Francis J. Tschann, of the department of history and political science, will act as chairman.

Trustees Grant Sabbatical Leave To 3 of Faculty

Dr. Simons Appointed To Take Place of Late Dr. Keith Officers Re-Named at Semi-Annual Session

Three members of the College faculty were granted sabbatical leaves for six months, two were re-appointed to the staff, and one was promoted from visiting professor to associate professor at the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees in Harrisburg, Tuesday.

Prof. Andrew A. Borland, head of the department of dairy husbandry, was granted leave of absence from next July 1 to January 1, 1936, in order to study dairy work at various agricultural colleges and experiment stations in the country.

Prof. John A. Ferguson, head of the department of forestry, will study the forest regions of the country in the six months beginning February 1. Prof. John R. Bracken, head of the department of landscape architecture, was granted sabbatical leave from February 6 to June 7 to complete work for his doctorate degree at the University of Michigan.

Robert H. McDougall, agricultural extension representative in Butler County, was granted six months' leave to study agricultural economics at Penn State.

Dr. Frederik Ernst, of New York University, was re-appointed director of the Institute of French Education for the coming summer session. Howard Rowland was reappointed as an instructor in sociology.

Dr. Joseph J. Simons, visiting professor of chemistry, was appointed as an associate professor in the School of Chemistry and Physics. He takes the place of the late Dr. Walter J. Keith, who died last September. At this meeting of the board, the officers of the organization, and the executive committee were reappointed for another year.

'Freshmen Customs Will Not Be Lifted At End of First Semester'—Skemp Declares

"Freshman customs will not be lifted at the end of the first semester as seems to be the general opinion of many of the freshman class," Leo N. Skemp '35, president of Tribunal, stated at the meeting Tuesday night.

"We had the matter under consideration, but are of the opinion that customs have not been obeyed strictly enough to warrant this release."

It may be possible that customs will be lifted before the time stated in the Student Handbook, Skemp explained in discussing the problem. He expressed the opinion that the time at which customs would go off would depend entirely upon the degree to which they are obeyed for the first month of the second semester.

Four freshmen were before Tribunal on Tuesday night for violating one or more customs. Three of these men, Thomas E. Cocain, Daniel G. Jones, and Joseph G. Walsh, were excused because of lack of sufficient evidence.

William K. Earle was found guilty of dating, not wearing a dink and not carrying matches as is required by the freshman regulations. For that offense he was sentenced to wear two signs and a baby bonnet. The signs were to contain the wording, "Strike Me Pink, Tribunal," and "I Got Burned."

To bear out the wording of the signs, Earle will carry a six-foot piece of wood, two inches by four inches, the one end of which will be painted red, and on which will be tacked a large placard, "Match." The sentence will carry through the rest of this week and for the first week of the second semester.
