A POSSIBLE CLUE

When the C. C. C. organization was born some two years ago its sponsors vigorously denied any militaristic motive at heart.

Reports from the American League Against War and Fascism show that voluntary military training for C. C. C. camps was recommended to the appropriations committee of the House of Representatives.

The League report further stated that instruction in the use of gunpowder was being given at Yacolt, Washington.

If all this is true, it is time for a massed protest against such governmental tactics. While all talk of international welfare goes on, it is mockery to be setting up armed camps in every part of the country.

IN THIS ISSUE IS a very important news story. It concerns the voting by the women to abolish class offices.

HUEY'S HOOEY

The great American Public has recently been treated to a masterful exhibition of demagoguery. A few people have recognized and enjoyed it as such; but a great many others have gulped it up as gospel truth.

Last week, tongue-lashing General Hugh Johnson, supposedly speaking for the Administration, made the serious blunder of launching a vitriolic attack upon the cane-break Senator.

That Senator Long is a serious contender for the Presidency in 1936 or 1940 can no longer be questioned. Under normal conditions, his "Share-the-Wealth" plan would be scoffed out of existence—but conditions are definitely not normal now.

Whether his program is workable and superior to President Roosevelt's is also not questioned—it definitely is not. There is nothing in his program which suggests that he comprehends the tremendous complexities in the economic and political system of our government.

But the fact remains that Senator Long may soon be President or Dictator of the United States, unless drastic measures are taken to squelch him.

OLD MANIA

Testimonial: We got this in the mail, and although it seems to be advertising, or propaganda, or some other journalistic evil, like that—it's in a good cause.

"Come one, come all. It's free. It's fun. And you learn the social graces, with the help of twenty-four (Count 'em) beautiful Mac hall Biscuits.

Error: Johnny Leet was pretty tired Friday night. He wanted to go to bed, and didn't particularly like it when his loyal Sigma Chi brethren informed him that a guest was in his bed.

Everything's coming along nicely though. The boys are pretty sure now that Johnny didn't really break his collar bone at all.

Financial Item

Between the halves of the basketball game Saturday night, some of the Phys Ed boys had a little program planned. They would do something really nice—they'd go through a mass drill, just like in all the news reels.

That started a rain of pennies. Not bad? That wasn't the trouble, though. The boys could have waved, or drilled, or exercised, or whatever they were doing, right on in the midst of any shower.

Pretty soon everyone ran out of pennies and they let the basketball team back on the floor. But Director Beziek isn't so sure that his stooges haven't had some sort of personality pattern altered by the interruption.

About Town & Campus

Ask any Beta about their little 'private dance' Saturday night... M. D. D. O. W.—S. P. E. footballer Park on the Corner... Mel Fox strolls into Mr. Fromm's store for a purchase, gets his collar button, and says blithely "Charge it."

Letter Box

To the Editor: Instead of complaining, the COLLEGIAN should point with pride to the local rules on cutting classes, as being the most liberal of those of any college or university in the world.

Of course, some instructors are only human, and it may happen in an isolated case that a particularly human instructor will be so unfair as to give a chronic cutter a lower final mark than he deserves.

If instructors are sometimes unfair in distributing grades, that is too bad. Maybe you can do something about it. But do not say that the cutting rules are not liberal enough.

Addresses AAUW: Dr. Pauline Beery Mack, associate professor of chemistry, spoke before the Eastern Pennsylvania chapter of the American Association of University Women, last night at Bucknell University on "Consumer Textile Problems."
