May Day Processional Will Begin at 4:30 on Front Campus.

Dr. Pattee Will Speak To Scholarship Group

Over 4,000 invitations have been sent by the Parents' association to the parents of all students now enrolled in college to attend the annual Mothers' Day and Scholarship Day to be held here Saturday, Prof. Edward L. Keller, secretary-treasurer of the association, announced yesterday. About a thousand are expected to attend.

Dr. Fred L. Pattee, professor emeritus of English literature here, and professor of American literature at Rollins College, will be the speaker at the Scholarship-Day exercises. Dr. Pattee is well known as an anthropologist and historian of American literature. His works include "Century Readings in American Literature" and "Development of the American Short Story."

Entertainment Planned

The Scholarship Day exercises will begin at 10 o'clock Saturday morning with the processional from Old Main to the auditorium of those to receive awards and members of honor societies. This year only the highest honors will be awarded from the platform. Other honors will be announced on the program only. Formerly it has been the custom to announce these from the platform. The program will last until noon.

An extensive program of entertainment has been arranged for visiting parents. A May Day breakfast for mothers will be held on Holmes field Saturday morning. Home athletic events include varsity and freshman baseball, varsity and freshman golf, varsity tennis, and varsity golf. A tea for mothers is being held from 2 to 4:30 o'clock in the second floor lounge of Old Main.

Blue Band To Play

The May exercises will be held on the front campus at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. In the evening a minstrel show will be given in the auditorium under the direction of the department of music.

Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of Dana College, N. J., will give a Mothers' Day address in chapel Sunday morning. The Penn State Symphony Band will present a concert, including several special selections, Sunday afternoon.

8 Students Selected For Judging Contests

Eight students will represent the College in livestock judging contests in three states Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Other competing teams include Cornell University, Connecticut State College, Massachusetts State College, and the University of New Hampshire.

The Briardale cup will be awarded to the contest winner. The first contest will take place at the Briardale Farms, Pine Plains, New York, Thursday. This farm is the largest Aberdeen-Angus establishment east of the Mississippi River with more than 1,000 purebreds. At Massachusetts State College, Amherst, the judges will score horses, cattle, sheep and swine the following day and the final contest will be held at the Connecticut State College, Storrs, on Saturday.

Yearbook Announces New Athletic Section

An improved athletic section will feature the 1935 La Vie, which will be distributed the latter part of this month. Pictures of high points of nearly every athletic event will appear and will be accompanied by resumes of the teams' activities.

A double spread, in which the complete list of the letter winners is printed against a background of action pictures of all sports on photographic, will appear in the athletic section, according to Ray S. Walker, photographic editor.

A limited number of approximately 100 copies will be available for sale to fraternities and underclassmen. Persons desiring to obtain copies should apply at the Student Union desk immediately.

Armstrong Summons '37 'La Vie' Aspirants

The first meeting of the sophomore editorial and art candidates for the junior board of La Vie will be held in Room 418, Old Main, at 7 o'clock tonight, James H. Armstrong '36, editor, announced.

The senior board of the 1936 La Vie will be introduced at that time and the work for the rest of this year will be outlined.

Patrons Choose Artists' Numbers

63 Available Selections Placed Before Symphony Audience For Approval.

Patrons of the current Artists' Course were asked to indicate their preference for numbers to be included in next year's course as the New York Orchestra brought to a close this year's series in Schwab auditorium last night.

A total of sixty-three available numbers was submitted to the patrons of the Course for balloting last evening. The purpose of the ballot at such an early date, Dr. Carl E. Margardt, chairman of the Artists' Course committee, said, is to get a show of opinion as to which numbers are particularly favored, so that the committee may act early in booking them for the coming winter and spring.

List Announced

The tentative list drawn up by the committee is sub-divided into eleven groups, eight being the number usually selected for a season's course. The list follows:

1. String Quartets or Quintets: Roth String Quartet, Budapest String Quartet, Kolisch String Quartet, Paris Instrumental Quartet, American Society of Ancient Instruments, Musical Art Quartet.
2. Pianists: Harold Bauer, Ignaz Friedman, Percy Grainger, Mischa Levitzky, Charles Naegle, Maier and Patsavin, Harold Samuel, Myra

Kroll Shows Need Of Vision, Change

Chapel Speaker Points Out Lack Of Motives To Encourage People To Reform.

"Our real danger today is that in our attempts to make a speedy recovery we will fail to realize that we need to make certain reforms. We are playing on the brink of fascism." This was the statement of the Rev. William E. Kroll, pastor of the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian church, East Orange, N. J., speaking at the regular chapel services in Schwab auditorium Sunday morning.

"We are living in a period of great change," the speaker said, "but we are not so much concerned with what the changes are as with the attitude of the people toward the situation."

Live By The Bible

Two groups were cited by Rev. Kroll as holding up the progress of recovery. The first, he said, are those who believe that nothing that is new can be good. The others, he continued, are the people who think the world began when they were born.

"If we had been living closer to the teachings of our Bible," Rev. Kroll pointed out, "we wouldn't believe that progress goes on whether we do anything or not. If we study it we learn that progress comes only from suffering and human strife."

Pointing out that we are suffering because of a lack of motive and vision, not from a lack of brain-power, Rev. Kroll concluded by saying: "Those who will give up self to some honest pursuit and follow the guidance of Jesus will get in their hearts a sense of a living God. He will realize that the things he is battling for are his. That is the only way that spiritual revival will come for this generation."

Industrial Group Will Confer Here Thursday, Friday

5 Speakers To Address Sixteenth Annual Conference.

Hetzel, Shields To Talk At Nittany Lion Dinner

The sixteenth annual Industrial Conference will be held here Thursday and Friday, according to Prof. Clarence E. Bullinger, of the department of industrial engineering. The conference will consider the various effects of the shift in political thinking about public service corporations on the engineering profession.

The regular dinner of the delegates will be held at the Nittany Lion Inn Thursday night at 6 o'clock. President Ralph D. Hetzel and J. Franklin Shields, president of the board of trustees of the College, will speak at the session after the dinner. Contrary to the procedure of former years, the wives of professors and delegates who attend and do not wish to hear the addresses, will be entertained at a card party in another part of the Inn.

Speakers Named

Six speakers will address the conference on the problems of the various public service corporations and the engineers' connection with those problems. The speakers include men connected with several large public service, and communications and electrical power corporations, as well as professors and engineers representing several engineering firms of the state.

W. H. Harrison, Philadelphia, operating vice-president of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, will open the conference on Thursday afternoon with a presentation of "Communications" problems. He will be followed by Prof. Lyon A. Lee, of Cornell University, who will speak on "New Fields for Young Engineers" from the viewpoint of the changing social conditions of the present depression period.

Audience Forum Planned

The sessions Thursday night will hear, besides President Hetzel, J. Franklin Shields, W. S. Finlay, Jr., of Pittsburgh, who is president of the West Penn Electric Company, and who will open the meeting with a talk on "Public Utilities." George T. Seabury, of New York, and secretary of the American Society of Civil Engineers, will follow the Finlay address with a talk on "Public Service."

The Friday session will be opened by K. M. Irwin, of Philadelphia, who is assistant to the vice-president in charge of engineering for the Philadelphia Electric Company. Irwin will present to the meeting an analysis of "Public Utilities," with the idea of furthering Finlay's night speech on the same topic. Frederick M. Feiker, of Washington, secretary of the American Engineering Council, will develop the "Public Service" subject.

4 Students Withdraw

Four students have withdrawn from College since March 21. They include Myer Lerman '37, Thomas J. Sharkey '35, Mary E. Skenth '37, and Igor E. Kryzanovsky '38. Of the four, one gave no reason for withdrawing, another withdrew because of sickness, one because of scholarship, and another because of death of father.

Rain, Snow Hems in Students, Queens in Prom of Yesteryear

With all the bright sunny days that have been lacking the past few weeks, including the stormy Prom week-end, one is reminded of the proms of yesteryear which were none too sunny.

Rain seems to rear its ugly head many times and on many occasions here. Those of us who can remember away back there in '27 or '28, before there were such things as Democratic land slides, can remember swimming to Junior Prom in tuxes and evening gowns, can relate to the sooties of today a rainy week-end what was a rainy week-end.

No one had the slightest inclination to think of a storm interfering with the Prom's festivities. Who thought of storms with such dance attractions as Jean Goldkette and Jan Garber, or was it Fletcher Henderson and Ted Weems? (Those were the days when one "tripped the light fantastic" to two bands.)

Prom queens poured in all day, rain poured all night, and "thirst quencher" poured all week-end. Scranton, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, New York, and Minessville—all were represented. Everyone was set for a grand and glorious week-end.

But alas and alack! Along about

Student Library Prizes Awarded

Herbst '35, Ross '35 Win $25 In Books for Best Private Collections.

Snom Herbst and Marion D. Ross, both members of the senior class, are the winners of the Student's Own Library contest, according to an announcement made today by the committee of judges.

The prizes, each worth $25 in new books to be selected by the winners at the Athletic Store and at Keeler's book store, will be formally awarded at the Scholarship Day exercises in Schwab auditorium Saturday morning, Willard P. Lewis, College librarian, announced.

Honorable Mentions Listed

The judges' decision was rendered on the basis of discriminating selection of books and the students' knowledge of books and their contents. Ross' selection was mainly in the fields of modern art and architecture and English literature, specializing in volumes with profuse illustrations. Miss Herbst's books were chiefly selections from English and American literature and included poetry anthologies, typographical specimens, and autographed copies.

Three honorable mention awards were made. For his large and well-selected library, Hans Janssen '36, was awarded honorable mention, but because of his professional experience, the committee did not deem it fair to permit his entry to compete with those of other students. Frances V. Laubauch '35, with a library of books in American and English literature, and Harry D. M. Grier '35, with a selection of books on the theater and dramatic literature, were the other recipients of honorable mention.

The prize-winning book collections will be on display in the windows of the two book stores which donated the prizes, from Thursday until next Monday. Librarian Lewis said that the donors of the prizes had agreed to make the competition an annual contest.

The dog, directed only by slight motions and low orders from Mr. Pasco, herded, drove, and penned a group of sheep for the benefit of the spectators. Mr. Pasco's dogs are of a rare, individual breed, somewhat similar to a collie, and are used chiefly on the Scottish moors.

Dean Ralph L. Watts, of the School of Agriculture, was the speaker of the evening at the banquet held at the Alpha-Gamma Rho fraternity by the club that evening. Guest speakers were W. F. Hagar, Pennsylvania Deputy Secretary of Agriculture, Prof. William B. Connell, head of the sheep extension, and the judges of the exposition, Merrill P. Tait, sheep manager from Allentown, and Charles W. Lamb, 4-H club leader of Jefferson County, N. Y. Cups were awarded to the champions and medals to the division winners.

Recipients Must Spend Year in Advanced Work

Four seniors were named as winners of the John W. White Fellowships by the Senate Committee on Academic Standards, William S. Hoffman, registrar, announced today.

The committee, headed by Prof. Harry A. Everett, of the department of mechanical engineering, selected the following: Frank L. Bracken, electrical engineering; George H. Cummings, chemical engineering; Harry D. M. Grier, architecture; and Margaret W. Kinsloe, arts and letters.

Charles M. Norris '35, taking a pre-medical course, was announced as the winner of the John W. White medal, valued at $75. This medal is awarded to a member of the senior class for outstanding scholarship.

$600 Honorarium Given

The John W. Each scholarship carries with it an honorarium of $600 per year.

The fellowships are awarded with the understanding that the recipients must spend the year in advanced study under the direction of the President of the College. This graduate work may be taken here or at some other institution.

Rowland Resigns Job In Extension Division

Dr. Elbert S. Rowland, instructor in mineral technology in the division of Mineral Industries extension, has resigned from the College staff, effective May 1. He has accepted a position with the research department of the Timken Roller Bearing company at Canton, O., and will devote his time to the development of an oil hardening steel for use in large industrial bearings.

Ernest J. Teichert, a graduate of Ohio State University, has been chosen to succeed Rowland. Teichert received his bachelor's degree in metallurgical engineering from Ohio State in 1931 and his master's degree from the same institution in 1932. He has had plant experience in West Virginia and in this state. He and his wife, who is also a graduate of Ohio State, will make their home in State College immediately.

17 Students Will Take Annual Inspection Trip

Seventeen dairy production students will take their annual inspection trip, under the supervision of Prof. Adam L. Beam and Paul S. Williams of the department of dairy husbandry, May 13 to 18.

The purposes of the trip are to make contacts with the leading breeders, to practice judging, to study methods of herd management, and to inspect experimental work. Eleven farm establishments will be visited. The outstanding sites will be the U. S. experiment station at Beltsville, Maryland, Rutgers University, and Gwynllon Farms, Gwynedd Valley.

Alumni To Hold Annual Election of Trustees

Edward K. Hishman, alumni secretary, announced that the ballots for the election of the Alumni Board of Trustees will be mailed this week to all graduates of three year's standing. Students graduating this semester are also eligible to vote.

Each year the Alumni elect nine members to the College Board of Trustees, three of whom are elected to serve three year terms. All Penn State graduates and the recipients of advanced degrees from this college are eligible for election. The ballots are to be returned not later than Saturday noon, June 8.
