Nichols-Werner Article, 'Hot Jazz Jargon,' Appears in 'Vanity Fair'

The long-awaited article on "Hot Jazz Jargon" by Edward J. Nichols, of the English composition department, and Prof. William L. Werner, of the English literature department, has appeared in the November issue of Vanity Fair.

Professor Werner and Nichols brings a few choice words and phrases in the vernacular of the jazzmen to the attention of slang proliferators. This is a sample of the language of the jazz industry: "That's the third date we've grooved half a dozen schmaltzy tunes for that wand-waver with never a swing item in the list. He's not making a salon man of me; let him date the long-haired boys for his commercials. . . . We'll catch a wire in a decent niter without pressing some barrel-house to make the cats swing. . . . There's no bounce in the ensemble, and you can fub notes like jigs doing shake music."

The article classifies jazz into two types: straight or sweet, which reproduces the composer's score faithfully; and "hot" jazz, which features variations, colloquially termed "licks" or "breaks."

"In hot jazz," the article points out, "the individual virtuoso counts most; the basic melody is subordinated to his achievements in securing originality, complication, color, surprise, and even humor in his variations."

Great names in hot jazz, the article points out, are not those of orchestra leaders, but great instrumentalists, known to the profession as "ride men." These are virtuosos, the article says, such as "Jazz Dazzler" Louis Armstrong, whose mad music has tickled the ears of the crowned heads of Europe, and some very peculiar people on Broadway. Others such as trombonists Teagarden and Benny Morton, and the tenor-men Hawkins or Fletcher Henderson, which the authors regard as "stars in the hot sky," are listed as outstanding personalities in the field of hot rhythms.

The authors confine the truly hot bands as those made up of six or eight soloists from large organizations who combine to form a band in which each star individually. These bands, the article explains, get together for phonograph companies and catch their weird rhythms in "wax," then promptly disintegrate to form other combinations.

Lions Leave Today To Engage Panthers at Stadium Tomorrow; Student Exodus To Follow Squad

Watch This Shifty Panther Tomorrow

State's Chances Marred As Injuries To 4 Weaken Team.

Game Marks Renewal Of Old Gridiron Rivalry

By PHIL HEISLER

"Upset" has always been a popular word with sports writers, and the Nittany Lion football team is giving them justification for keeping it at their finger-tips until the final whistle has blown in the Penn State-Pitt grid fest in the Pitt stadium on Saturday.

Thirty men, in mid-season form and filled with the ambition to vindicate the ten straight defeats the Lions suffered from Pitt, received a rousing send-off this morning at 8 o'clock as they left to invade the prowling Panther's lair.

The team is somewhat weakened by the absence of four varsity players. Smith, end, Donato and Owens, backs, were unable to make the trip due to injuries. Lou Barth has been suffering from a sprained back that will keep him out of the starting lineup.

Old Rivalry Renewed

Saturday's game marks the renewal of a rivalry that began in 1893 and flourished until 1930, when relations were severed. Although the Lions won the majority of games up until 1920, from that time on Pitt has maintained the upper hand.

The last time Penn State defeated Pitt on the gridiron was in 1919 when Coach Bob Higgins, then playing end for the Lions, made his famous run on Howard Hess' pass from behind the goal.

The probable starting line-up for the Nittany gridlers will be: Fry and Miller, ends; Weber and Schuyler, tackles; Zochowski and Economos, guards; and Cherundolo, center.

O'Hara will be calling signals, while Korknick will be back at left halfback. Andrews, who made a favorable impression in the Lehigh game, has been practicing all week with the varsity and will start at right halfback. Korknic or Silvano will play fullback.

The Nittany line will average 196 pounds, the heaviest the Panthers have had to face thus far this season. Coach Higgins plans to take on the trip ten backs, three centers, six guards, six tackles, and five ends. Reserve ends are the least plentiful on the Nittany squad.

Bob Larue and Hub Randour, both Panther halfbacks, will give the Lion trouble-shooters their hardest jobs. Both men have started every game and starred against Notre Dame last Saturday.

The Panthers, taking the advice of their scouts that the Nittany squad may not be the "breacher" that they had bargained for, will start the regular line-up that started against Notre Dame, with one exception being made to strengthen the team.

Pitt's starting line-up will be Souchak and Shaw, ends; Daniell and Detzel, tackles; Glassford and Dalle-Tesse, guards; and Klisky at center.

In the backfield will be Michelosen, quarterback; Randour and Larue, halfbacks; and Patrick, fullback.

Psychologists noting that Pitt played Notre Dame a week before and play Army the week after the Penn State game, reason that the Panthers will be recovering from the first scrap and looking forward to Army when they meet the Lions, thereby giving the Lions an advantage. However, knocked out of the Rose Bowl picture by Notre Dame, the Panthers are concentrating upon the Lions, reputed to them as a killer once more.

Pitt Women Will Give Dance in Heinz House

Immediately after the football game tomorrow, the senior women of the University of Pittsburgh will entertain Penn State students at a tea dansant, according to a letter received here yesterday. Bob Duncan's orchestra, well-known in Pittsburgh, will furnish the music for the dance to be held at Heinz House, located up the hill from Alumni Hall.

Every dance will be a tag dance, and the seniors will have sophomore women as their guests. Inasmuch as the hosts are not trying to make money, but only entertain their visitors, the admission will be only fifteen cents to cover the expenses, and the dance will continue until 6:45 o'clock.

Football Send-off Set For 7:45 This Morning

The football team send-off takes place at the Corner this morning at 7:45 o'clock. The team will leave the Corner for Pittsburgh at 8 o'clock.

Students with or without 8 o'clocks are urged to attend. The meeting will last until 7:55 o'clock, so that students will have ample time to get to their 8 o'clock classes.

Short cheers and the new song "Fight On State" will be led by John B. Harbaugh '36, head cheer leader. Capt. "Bob" Weber will say a few words from the top of the bus.

Burgess To Conduct Hearings; Riding on Running-boards Chief Offense.

Pittsburgh Orchestra Will Play For Subscription Affair At Nittany Lion.

Five students are involved in cases awaiting action before Burgess Wilbur F. Leitzell, most of the cases growing out of activities of the past week-end.

Roland W. Oberholzer '36 and Francis J. Andrews '36 were arrested on Saturday, the latter for riding on the side of a motor vehicle and the former for permitting him to do so. Two Lehigh students were also arrested for the same offense. A fine of $25 and costs is the usual punishment for this offense.

Among cases pending is that of Jack Laskowitz '36, charged with permitting Donald H. Harter '38 to ride on the running board of his automobile. Harter was seriously injured in a collision when thrown from the automobile and required hospitalization for a week. The accident took place October 11. Laskowitz is also charged with parking his automobile on Beaver avenue without properly setting the brakes, causing injury to A. Margaret Boyer '37, when the driverless car coasted and struck her.

Jumping his bail of fifty dollars, John Shachoski, former student, will be brought from Pittsburgh shortly to face Burgess Leitzell on a charge of drunkenness. John W. Nye '39, said to have been Shachoski's companion, pleaded not guilty before Burgess Leitzell Monday night and his case was postponed until the other defendant can be brought before the Burgess.

Philip Q. Kershner '39 pleaded guilty to damaging borough property, and paid a fine of five dollars. Kershner was not intoxicated, Burgess Leitzell said.

Names of student vehicle operators passing through fire lines at the fire Wednesday night have been submitted to Burgess Leitzell and the violators will be summoned to appear for hearings some time next week.
