Women in Sports

By REGINA RYAN HOCKEY

The junior women loom forth as "the" players in the series of hockey games now being played off on Holmes field. Rather luke warm in their game with the seniors earlier in the season, the juniors won by a 5-to-4 score. Next trouncing the sophomores by a 6-to-3 score, the '37 women gradually warmed up and started on their way.

Then the freshman women appeared on the scene ready for battle—and it was a battle royal. Both teams finished the game panting and each side had scored exactly 3 points. Tie! Everyone waited for the return game and Wednesday our first-year women did their best, but they had met their Waterloo, and the juniors chalked up 3 hard-earned points to the zero the freshmen received for their efforts. Regardless, the '39 girls have a mighty fine team.

When the Army and Navy teams are picked for the championship game after Thanksgiving, we expect to find it made up almost completely of first-year and junior women. This is an old custom of picking the best women hockey players from all classes.

MANAGERS

Mary Lou Clippinger has been elected head basketball manager for the coming season, with Dot Schumaker as junior assistant. Helen Kummer was elected senior class manager; Betty Ebricht, junior class manager; and Dot Elliston, sophomore class manager.

Women's Debate Team Selected at Try-outs

At the final try-out meeting held Wednesday evening, the following women were selected for the women's varsity debating team: Dorothy J. Ely '36, Mavis F. Baker '37, Helen M. Chamberlain '37, Jean E. Kemp '37, Lucille D. Hayes '38, and Ruth H. Zang '38.

Freshman women selected for the squad are: Eleanor B. Acker, Nancy Baldwin, Evelyn L. Boger, Vivian S. Doty, Anita E. Davidson, Juli Crass, Lucille B. Greenberg, Elizabeth J. Keener, Ruth V. Koch, Cecile G. Metz, Mary E. Pugh, Naomi G. Pugh, Elizabeth M. Reyburn, Joan Sperling, Margaret A. Stephenson, Norva T. Thomas, Ann Vary, Margaret A. Wentzel, and Julia Zubroff.

COACH BOB HIGGINS

Higgins To Head Coaches Meeting

Sutherland, Harman, Bierman To Speak at Philadelphia Meeting Friday.

Bob Higgins, head football coach, will preside at the annual meeting of the Second District of the National Football Coaches Association to be held at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in Philadelphia next Friday afternoon and evening.

The Lion mentor is chairman of the committee which planned this year's affair. The other members of this committee are "Joek" Sutherland, Pittsburgh coach, and Harvey Harman, University of Pennsylvania leader.

At least nine nationally known football coaches and sports writers will address the gathering, which will include from 150 to 200 coaches. The meeting is being held at this time because of the Army-Navy game the following day.

The featured speaker of the conference will be Bernie Bierman, coach of the powerful Minnesota team, and president of the National Association. The Second District includes colleges from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

The speakers, with their topics, include: Perry Lewis, Philadelphia sports writer, "Football from the Press Box"; Sy Pausis, University of Pennsylvania end coach, "End Play"; Walter Olsson, commissioner of football officials of the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, "The Placing of Officials."

Other speakers are: Carl Snavely, University of North Carolina coach, "Football in the South"; A. W. Palmer, well-known official, "A Discussion of Rules"; Elmer Layden, Notre Dame mentor, "The Forward Pass"; Chester Smith, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Press, "High Spots of the 1935 Football Season"; and Sutherland on "The Off-Tackle Play."

Between The Lions

By WALT FREUNSCH

Well, anyway, thank God for the soccer team.

When all else in the Penn State athletic picture is obscured and foggy, this one aggregation stands out like a beacon of hope, shining and glamorous.

Just one fly in the ointment, if you don't mind mixed figures; two flies, in fact: No. 1, the world in general and the metropolitan press in particular have failed to appreciate this fine bunch, and the Penn-dominated association that State is in has always belittled her every effort to gain recognition. No. 2, the local student body is bovinely indifferent to this sport. True, they may brag a bit at home when all other conversational standards have been exhausted, but their support otherwise is sad-missing.

Walt Freunsch

The games on New Beaver field this year had better crowds than last year, but even so, the contests deserved much more patronage than they got. The game has action, it calls for head-work, it is one sport that emphasizes cooperation above flashy individualism, and it is simple to understand; at least it has none of the baffling technicalities of a sport like baseball that evoke those horribly dumb questions from the feminine spectators.

The team next year should also be a championship outfit, and take it from your Uncle Ned, you are all a bunch of panty-waists if you don't get around and watch an expertly-coached machine do things with a soccer ball that you might expect only a Houdini or a George Morris to do.

The writer of this pillar is in no position to discuss the debacle on Franklin Field last week, having been a thousand miles away from the scene of the slaughter. If you want a rationalization, you might dope it out that a team with Penn's potentialities just couldn't keep on losing all their games, and we had to hit them on the day they found themselves. Penn didn't even give the rosters the chance of calling the affair a moral victory, it being a royal pasting such as we haven't had since Columbia hammered us, 33-0-0, two years ago. Maybe it's just as well; these so-called moral victories do often stand for something desirable in the eyes of players and fans, when as a matter of fact they don't amount to a tinker's dam.

The game tomorrow will make or break the season. If State loses—and why be so optimistic as to believe that impossible?—then the writer retracts a former statement and concludes that the season will have been a flop, no less. If State wins, it will be the first time since the twenties that the team has won five games. The record shows that the teams have even lost as high as five games a year in scholarship days, so five victories this year would definitely stamp it a successful season.

Bucknell can't be under-rated. They have a backfield and two ends that are penchy, as Stoopnagle would say. Their reserve strength is not so sturdy, and in this may lie the outcome of the game. Predictions aren't our forte, but we see State smacking the Herd for a fitting finale to the season. Just let the team play as it did against Villanova and the line remember that it has a reputation to regain, and we look for buffalo meat all over the plains of Central Pennsylvania.

Stuhlreher is being talked of as a successor to Bob Higgins. If the athletic powers here want to swap horses in the middle of a stream, it's hard to believe that they plan to pick a crowbar for the job. Moreover, as long as Higgins has brought the team to the halfway point, he ought to be given the chance to see if he is going to advance his burden further. This season has shown that Penn State football can be something about which the alumni can again be proud; now we await the next five years as a test of whether the upswing is only temporary or destined to be a permanent trend.

Elsewhere in this issue is a study of the intercollegiate cross-country drama in which Penn State played an off-stage voice. The writer knows a few of the harriers, as they are called by the fun-loving reporters, and he hopes that the terminology isn't apropos. But how else can one explain such a startling reversal of form? Maybe Chick was right after all.

Thompson To Lecture To Engineers on Law

Senator Edward J. Thompson of Phillipsburg will address the weekly senior engineering convocation this afternoon at 4:10 in the Chemistry Amphitheatre. His subject will be "How the Legislature Works."

Senator Thompson, who is thoroughly familiar with the procedure in the enactment of legislation in the Commonwealth, will give an intimate view of the machinery employed in the preparation, debates, and passing of legislation.

Each week, engineers who are to graduate in June are entertained by a guest speaker who is well known in his particular field. The last speaker was M. Ward Fleming, president judge of the Centre County Court of Common Pleas.
