

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

By PHIL HEISLER

Finals for the Intramural Boxing tournament will be held in Rec hall Saturday night at 7 o'clock before the basketball game. Walt Alexander, who should be complimented in the systematic manner in which he ran off the tourney, announced that the semi-final round would be completed today and that there would definitely be seats for the spectators Saturday.

Johnny Patrick, 165-pound Phi Delta Freshman, is proving one of the highlights of the tournament. His hard slugging and clever fighting was too much for Gross, Pi Kappa Alpha, in the semi-final round, winning by a technical knock-out in the second round. Patrick's greatest drawback was that he couldn't hit his opponent with this right. This was due to the simple fact that when he hit his opponent with his left in preparation with giving the old one-two, the opponent was usually on the floor after the left landed.

Soose, Independent, is also having a tough time fighting for since his first two victories all opponents have forfeited to him. George Faber, Delta Chi, has fought his way to the semi-final round without striking a blow, all opponents having forfeited.

Cooper advanced to the finals by his victory over Cavolus, unlimited, in one of the slug-fests that makes Intramural bouts as colorful as they are.

Thus far in the meet Tau Sigma Phi has a substantial lead in points gained in boxing. Four fraternities are tie for second.

Bowling

The race in the Intramural bowling league became more close last night when Delta Upsilon defeated last year's champions, Delta Tau Delta, but remained tie for first place with Tau Kappa Epsilon who came up from third place. Watts hall scored the biggest upset when they defeated Phi Kappa Gamma to 2.

Cartmell Denounces Bezedek Athletic Policy

me a letter in which he said words to the effect that I was keeping the Penn State flag waving and in a speech a short time before he said I was a great teacher," Cartmell said.

"Hetzel told me, 'You know the committee has acted and I can't do anything about it, but you know, Nate, you're a likeable fellow.' I asked him what I was going to do. I had spent the best ten years of my life here. Hetzel said he would be glad to recommend me to any institution and he promised me that there would be no publicity on it so that I might have time to get another position," Cartmell revealed.

"I wanted it kept from the team because I knew it would tear down the morale. But when I went down to the Penn Relays, Harry Hillman and Lawson Robertson, Penn coach, as well as the Cornell and Princeton coaches, came to me and said, 'Nate, what's wrong up there. What did you get fired for?'"

At this point in Cartmell's speech an alumnus asked him what his salary was at the time. To which Cartmell replied, "About $4500." Continuing, Cartmell said, "I have never seen the minutes of that committee and as far as I can find out, nobody has ever seen them."

"I could get no satisfaction out of anyone. Bezedek told me I was too expensive. Warnock told me I wasn't a teacher. Hetzel had said I was a great teacher. Dean Sackett told me that a wife and children were a great comfort. I couldn't figure out what was wrong. The only written statement I could get was a letter from Pete Mauthe, to whom I had written, who said in words to the effect, that it was with regret that he had concurred with the decision of this committee."

"My job was to train athletes; not to give gyrations. That's what my contract called for, up to the day I was fired. The only thing I could show Bezedek along the lines of physical education like the men with the Sears and Roebuck degrees he's got up there were reports showing him that ten years ago we had more men participating in interclass and intramural sports than now . . . and he didn't like that."

Cartmell continued to cite cases which supported his stand, until an alumnus got up and asked him what should be done to remedy conditions. Mr. Cartmell replied, "I don't think you will ever get any place until you cut Bezedek out. Understand, he isn't the only one mixed up in this thing, but at least you'll be cutting out the heart of this cancer."

Following Mr. Cartmell's address, he was asked many questions concerning the athletic situation at State and an informal discussion took place. The meeting was attended by many alumni from the Reading and Lewistown clubs.

Lions To Open Year Against Ithaca Cagers

Riley, Kornick, Smiths, McWilliams To Start Tomorrow Night.

By DICK LEWIS

With approximately two weeks of actual practice behind them, the Lion basketballmen will take the floor against a tall and massive Ithaca five, now en route to State College playing as they travel.

Spike Leslie's untried Lions will step off with a decided disadvantage. The invaders will have three full games off their conscience when they hit State College with last year's defeat a strong motivation for playing harder ball. The Lions have scarcely soiled their sweat jerseys in actual scrimmage. Practice started late this year, and two regulars, Frank Smith and Mike Kornick turned in their football uniforms only two weeks ago.

Possibly Riley and Jim Smith will take the forward posts on the final line-up and Mike Kornick and Frank Smith, will be the guards.

The Ithaca squad looks imposing. Four of the eleven men who are taking the trip stand well over six feet. John Dillon, Ithaca Center, is a tall, in his court shoes. Tom Jones, who also tips the ball, is only an inch shorter than his teammate. Gideon Hawley, right forward, hits 6 feet 1 and weighs 175 pounds. The midcourt of this combination is a gentleman by the name of Al Snake who is only six feet tall and weighs just about 200 pounds net, but is reputed to be fast despite his weight. Then there's another right forward, in case Hawley gets tired, who tops 6 feet 1.

It looks as though the Lions were in for a bit of a blow when that horde of giants breaks loose tomorrow night. In the last twenty-one years, Penn State has lost only two openers. We don't predict, now. We wait.

Between The Lions

By WALT FREUNTSCH

Perhaps it was an unfortunate choice of words that led me to say "Don't fight intolerance with the same weapon." Yet I fail to see why the Olympics should be used as a political football to express American disapproval of the Hitler attitude. The A.A.U. tempest is largely the result of political windjammers who are being acted upon by disgruntled constituents somewhere, and the "peepul" must be served. No one approves of Hitler, but won't it cause more ill feeling if we stay out than if we enter and seek some other field in which to express our disgust for the Nazi anti-semiticism?

Why not a panel discussion on this campus to clear the atmosphere locally? There is basis for pro and con discussion, and their ought to be enough well informed persons to make it a worthwhile exchange of opinion. Why doesn't some campus group such as the P.S.C.A. or possibly the I.R.C. do something about this?

Women in Sports

By REGINA RYAN

The Army-Navy hockey teams were selected, on the basis of playing during the fall, by the W.A.A. Board Wednesday night.

Sis Bitling, Ruth Lamberger, Betty Springer, Kitty Wagner, Pennie Waite, and Selena Dunderlich were the seniors elected to the Army-Navy lines. The nine juniors chosen were Rita Altstadt, Sally Bushong, Ginnie Goodman, Dot Hennicke, Jean Northrup, Betty Pennell, Flossie Taylor, Maria Weber, and Gene Ziegler. The junior team as a whole did a number 1 work on the hockey field this fall.

Frances Duritsa, Martha Giddings, Helen Ketner, Frieda Knepper, Ida Rainey, and Betty Smith were the freshmen women who were named on the teams. The sophomores had a very poor team this year and the above mentioned girls can consider themselves as wearing feathers in their hats, for they carried on for dear old '35.

The Army-Navy game is played every year with the best hockey players selected from all classes, the winner is thereby the championship team.
