Unknown Michigan Squad To Open Wrestling Season For 1936 Tomorrow at 4

O'Dowd, Shaffer, Krupa, Calvin, Waite, Light, Brooks, Wolfson Get Starting Berths Against Western Invaders.

By TOWNSEND SWALM

Tomorrow the 1936 edition of Charlie Speidel's pony ballet answers its first curtain call against a definitely unknown quantity, Michigan, in Recreation Hall at 4 o'clock. News travels slowly out of the west and aside from the fact that not a man on the squad has had more than one year of varsity experience, nothing is known of Michigan's ability, or lack of it.

Coming as a climax to a little over two weeks of intensive training since Christmas vacation, last Wednesday saw the last try-out match for berths on the participant's bench in tomorrow's fracas.

Facing the Big Ten representatives tomorrow will be four regulars from last year's erratic team; one last year's sub; and three men who will face intercollegiate competition for the first time. Big Joe O'Dowd is top weight representative. Joe has picked up about ten pounds (making a total of 225), since last year, but in Wright, Michigan heavy, he needs a gross poundage of 240 if gridiron statistics are to be believed.

Ross Shaffer, who got the starting berth from Austin Eisenman with no little difficulty, will probably tangle with Juan Rodriguez, 175-pounder from Puerto Rico. In the 165 division, Joe Krupa, after losing to Hepler in the interclass matches, came back to win the opener position by a small margin; his opponent will be Bissell, a regular on last year's Ann Arbor group.

Calvin, who saw action against Syracuse last year, will probably come to grips with Louis Muscuruskus, who saw some action with the westerners last year. Sully Waite, who again had trouble suppressing the rebellious Aldo Zazzi in Wednesday's match, a sophomore. Sophomore Ray Brooks will have his hands full in the person of Al Rubin, letter winner for Michigan last year. Sammy Wolfson meets Speicher, a sophomore, who must have something on the ball since his picture was one of the five sent here by Michigan's publicity department.

To predict on present evidence would be to invite disaster. However, after the mats are dragged off tomorrow night, more of an insight into the future of Penn State's grapplers will have been afforded.

Between The Lions

By WALT FREUNSCHE

Anyone who cherishes the bitter memory of the State-Syracuse football game of last season, such as myself, must have been gratified at the result of the basketball game Wednesday night. It not only interrupted a winning streak but it established the fact that the Lions will be serious contenders for a spot in the first division of the Conference. To expect too much of State in its first year of Conference competition would not be fair to players or coach; after all, they play a fast game of ball in that league.

What this writer liked about Wednesday's game was the way in which the team never gave up the fight even when the going looked mighty tough. They played smart ball and deserve lots of credit.

Walt Freunsch

Followers of the fistcuffing sport will be interested to note that Harvard beat Virginia in an intercollegiate battle for the first defeat suffered by the Southerners in something like five years. What ought to be more pertinent and cheering is the news that Cornell toppled Syracuse in boxing to the tune of 5 1/2-to-2 1/2. This might be taken as an indication that pugilism at the Saline City institution is hitting a new low.

Revenge over Syracuse even in such a thing as a badminton game would be sweet enough, but this year the Lions are out to make a clean sweep in all sports. Daburn it if we don't think that it can be done.

That Penn State has a "booboisie" in its environs is no secret, but this strange class waits until some visiting college makes its appearance on our athletic field or floor before it becomes so painfully conspicuous.

Perhaps these misguided souls think that their boisterous support of the team by booing at inopportune moments will be considered as a welcome display of school spirit. This fallacious belief ought not to be encouraged. The next time some raucous gent sits next to you jets off steam by razzing officials or opponents, just turn toward him with as much dignity as possible and inquire coldly, "What the—?"

And if YOU happen to be the raucous gent in question, resolve firmly not to let your passion for a bit of Blue and White bunting lead you so far astray as to permit you to make of yourself a first rate ass.

Your scribe wishes too that the bleacher coaches wouldn't be so selfish with their knowledge. Wednesday night there was enough cage theory expounded in our vicinity to make Spike's team invincible, if only the propounders would give him a break and let him in on it. Strangely enough, these bleacher coaches dispense their wares only to similarly misinformed persons about them. This brand of guff drives one batty: "Boo! Pishchudnock! Take him out, he's a bum! He couldn't make a basket if he had to! Boo, Boo! Watch him now! Look! Oh, he made it! Didn't I tell you he was O. K.? Yes, Pishchudnock!"

1939 Class Wins Mit Tournament With 5 Victories

2 Technical Knockouts Feature Bout; 6 Get Decisions.

Sophs 2nd, '37 Team 3rd, '36 Men Lose All

The process of seniority was reversed in the interclass boxing tournament Tuesday when the freshmen won first place with five points, sophomores second with two points, juniors third with one championship, and the seniors as "also rans."

Al Tapman, intramural champion, repeated his championship performance by annexing the 115-pound title by defeating Wilson. Tapman began throwing his roundhouse punches with the sound of the opening gong and had Wilson helpless by the middle of the round. Tapman was awarded a T. K. O. at the close of the first round.

Sopchak, another intramural champ, added another first place to the freshmen's list by capturing the 125-pound title when he defeated Haigh. Sopchak forced the fight and was given the decision after three rounds.

Swartz won the 135-pound title for the sophomores by defeating Niebel. Niebel rushed the fight but wore himself out when the fight was half completed.

Soose added another championship for the freshmen by getting a T. K. O. over Rosella in the second round. Rosella became sick in the second round and was unable to continue the fight.

In the 155-pound class Livermore caused an upset by defeating a much favored Fochr who was an intramural champion. Continuing the upset Tel-tel was given a decision over Patrick among the 165-pounders. Teller displayed a right that rivals Joe Louis' for power; Teller had advanced to the finals only through his murderous right and gave it plenty of action in the fight with Patrick. Patrick was floored and waited for the count of nine in the first round. He was floored again in the third round.

Kociubinsky was awarded a decision over Kapitula to win in the 175-pounder. In the unlimited division Covolus defeated Werner by a decision.

Leading the trek to Cornell is Max Derecum, forestry instructor, who organized the club early this week. Derecum, a former Cornell winter sports star, will act as one of the officials as he has done many times in the past. He will also take pictures of the meet which will be shown here later.

Paul Massey and Lou Hall are entered at Ithaca. Massey, a junior transfer, will take part in three events: the nine-mile cross-country ski, down hill skiing, and slalom. Massey has had much skiing experience, having spent years at the sport in the White mountains and other well-known winter resorts.

Hall, a former New England prep school skiing star, will enter the cross-country run in addition to the langlauf. If he finds himself in good condition, he will try his hand at a few other events.

Another Penn State Ski Club member will journey to the Allegheny State Park, N. Y., to participate in the annual Buffalo Ski Club meet. He is Al Grow, sophomore transfer, and is a member of the famous Lake Placid Sno Birds.

Grow is a jumper of note. He is the present record-holder of the Buffalo meet, having recorded a jump of 194 feet. In addition to this, in 1932, Grow won the Junior North American championship as an all-around winter sports expert. It was runner-up to this title in 1931. At the Buffalo Club meet Grow will participate in his specialty, the jump, and will also give some exhibitions. One of the special features of this exhibition will be an intricate and most difficult double-flip, done after the take-off of the jump.

At a meeting of interested students held Tuesday night, the Penn State Ski club was formed with a present
