Peace Bond Sale To Open Today; 65 Salesmen Hear Libby, Movement Founder

Smith '37 Named Head Of Men's Division For Campaign.

Leaders Plan Canvass Of Fraternity Houses

Following a dinner held last night at which sixty-five peace bond salesmen were addressed by Frederick J. Libby, founder of the Peace Action movement, and by their division leaders, official sale of peace bonds will begin here today.

Ruth E. Koehler '36, leader of the women's division of the peace bond drive, told her force of the progress which has been made in contacting all the campus sororities. Edward T. Binns '38, chairman of the Student Peace Action Council, announced the selection of Alan L. Smith '37 as leader of the men's division of the canvass. Smith will replace Israel K. Shulman '37 who had been serving as temporary leader.

The new leader outlined the plans for contacting each fraternity house and stressed the need for real spirit in the drive. "The girls in signing up the sororities show how a conviction in the idea itself can be put across. Selling peace bonds isn't like getting rid of haberdashery or kitchen utensils; you must have faith in the success of the peace movement, and you need to wake up the boys to the need for support and action," he said.

Sales Technique Needed.

The bond sales force and staff of the State College Peace Action committee, composed of faculty and townspeople, has already been selling bonds. They were lauded by Mrs. Eva N. Morris, chairman of the downtown force.

Libby addressed the group informally on "Some Techniques in Selling Peace Bonds."

Libby, founder of the National Council for Prevention of War, and its executive secretary since its organization in 1921, replaced Miss Jeanette Rankin, who was originally scheduled to open Peace Emphasis Week here. Miss Rankin, it was learned, is a star member of the peace lobby in Washington and the consideration of and voting upon the neutrality legislation in Congress necessitated her being in the capital both yesterday and today.

Council in 14th Year

The National Council for Prevention of War is in its fourteenth year. It was formed as a clearing house by representatives of seventeen national organizations in 1921 to promote the success of the Washington Conference for Limitation of Armaments. Since that time it has changed to its present name, and has assumed the initiative in a program that has repeatedly illustrated the power of public opinion when informed, united, aroused, and directed at the makers of public policy, the local, state, and national governments.

During the past year it has worked in close cooperation with the League of Nations Association, emphasizing the importance of the League toward world peace. The National Student Forum on the Paris Pact is financed by the N. C. P. W. Sponsored by 500 leading educators and by Frank S. Kellogg as honorary chairman, it has enrolled in five years practically 1,000,000 high school pupils in 8,000 high schools for the study of the Pact.

A permanent representative is maintained at Geneva and a technical expert on disarmament. A staff of experts directs its energies at provoking peace action which is defined as action for peace by political strategy.

Peace Emphasis Week, February 17 to 22, has been created by the Student Peace Action Council for the purpose of getting students to begin thinking about peace in realistic, progressive terms, to declare their peace-mindedness, and to help support the national peace movement through the purchase of Peace Bonds.

Horwitz Chosen Head

The Penn State Camera Club held its first meeting Thursday evening. Silom S. Horwitz '39 was elected tentative chairman until such time as regular officers can be elected. The club will hold regular meetings on Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock in Old Main. Anyone interested in amateur photography is welcome at the meetings, but he must bring with him each time, one print as an example of his work, or suffer a fine of twenty-five cents.

Garner Will Head C.A. Forum Group

Conference for Middle Atlantic Region Delegates Meets At Buck Hill.

A Penn State delegation, headed by Weston D. Garner '38, will attend the annual Buck Hills Conference, a meeting of delegates from colleges and universities in the middle Atlantic region, which will be held at Buck Hill, Pa., on March 6, 7, and 8, under the auspices of the Student Christian movement of the Middle Atlantic region.

The delegation will participate in a series of forums and lectures on the relationship of Christianity to social action. Among the speakers who will address the conference are Rabbi Morris S. Lazarus, of Baltimore; Prof. Roland H. Bainton, of the Yale University Divinity School; and Paul Harris Jr., of the National Peace Action committee.

Extensive Program Planned

The three-day program will consist of a series of forum discussions and lectures. Charles P. Hogarth, associate secretary of the P. S. C. A., will lead a conference session on the discussion of peace plans for the middle Atlantic region. A full program of dinners, recreation, as well as discussions and lectures, has been planned.

Those who are interested in attending the conference may communicate with members of the committee leading the delegation. Members of the committee are Garner, chairman; Edward T. Binns '38, peace emphasis; Wesley C. Mohankern '36, transportation; George E. Sperling '36, publicity; Reva M. Lincoln '37, finance and registration; Edward K. Krugbill '39, program and exhibits; and Molly E. Pugh '39, worship emphasis. Prof. Marsh W. White, of the department of physics, is faculty adviser.

Van Dusen Delivers Sunday Chapel Talk

"Can We Believe that God is Love?" was the theme of Henry Pitney Van Dusen's chapel address in Schwab auditorium Sunday morning.

"Christianity reaches its climax in the belief of God and that the ultimate reality is to be thought of in terms of love, truth, and righteousness. We have lost this conception today because we have tried to cut short the pathways to reality and have failed to admit the laws of the universe," the speaker maintained.

It is impossible to know God if we don't know our fellowmen, said Van Dusen. If we don't know our brothers, whom we can see, then any worship we profess towards God, whom we can't see, is insincere, he pointed out. We must forgive the offenses of our fellowmen if we want God to forgive us, said the speaker.

"Our human relationships must be straightened out before we try to worship God. Since God's concern is toward our fellowmen we must love them and then we can come to the love of a God and the positive pathway to a conception of Christianity," he concluded.

I.F. Council Asks Houses To Name Initiation Dates

Fraternities To Make Choice From List Of 3 Types.

Pollitt '36 Advocates 72-Hour Hazing Period

In an effort to establish a uniform period of informal fraternity initiations, fraternities on the campus will be asked to select from a list of three alternatives their choice of the type of "Hell Week" observance.

This action was taken by Interfraternity Conference at a meeting on Thursday night after the committee on informal initiation had submitted its recommendations. The report of the committee was presented by Evan Pollitt '36, chairman.

Decision to submit the three alternatives to each fraternity came after the motion of Charles M. Schwartz jr. '36 to abolish "Hell Week" as a Penn State institution was defeated by vote of the council representatives.

Pollitt Presents Plan

The plan as presented by Pollitt advocated a 72-hour period of informal initiation to take place at any time during the last ten days of February, with a penalty of a $25 fine for all houses failing to comply with the code.

The considerations which will be presented to the fraternities by their council representatives are: (1) complete abolition of "Hell Week"; (2) informal initiation period of one day; (3) informal initiation period of three days during the last week in February.

Tells Conference Plans

If none of these recommendations are acceptable, the committee chairman explained, each fraternity will be asked to submit suggestions through their council representatives. A motion was adopted that the recommendations be adopted that the recommendations be adopted and a copy sent to each fraternity president, with the instructions to return them, together with any comments, before the next council meeting.

Plans for the Biennial Interfraternity conference to be held here, February 28 and 29 were outlined to the council by Thurman C. Tejan '36, chairman of the committee. Senior and junior representatives as well as house presidents were requested to attend the banquet to be held at the Nittany Lion Inn Friday, February 28, at 6:30 o'clock. Representatives were also requested to contact national officers of their fraternities in an effort to secure speakers for the affair.

President Joseph P. Swift '36 announced that several houses had already been fined for failure to remove snow from sidewalks and reiterated the request of Burgess Wilbur F. Leitzell for cooperation of fraternities in this respect. Israel K. Shulman '37 requested the cooperation of all fraternities in the observance of Peace Emphasis Week and the sale of Peace Bonds.

Orators To Face A.U. Squad Here

Team To Engage in 6 Debates; Zarger, Egli, Shadle Leave For Eastern Trip.

The Penn State debaters will meet the American University orators in a split-team audience shift-of-opinion debate in the Home Economics auditorium Thursday night featuring the team's program of six debates this week.

The topic to be discussed will be: Resolved that married women in industry should be replaced by individuals with no other means of support. Miss Betty Stephen '37, of the American University, and Aaron N. Decker '36 will take the negative side of the question. Miss Jane Getz '38, of American University, and Roy Wilkinson jr. '37 will take the affirmative.

Leave for Eastern Trip

Decker and Wilkinson left yesterday for Allentown to meet the Cedar Crest College debaters in a split-team discussion of the question: Should college graduates earning a salary of $1500 a year marry before the age of twenty-five?

Today S. James Zarger '36, William H. Egli '37, and Robert I. Shadle '37 leave State College for an eastern trip which includes debates with Rutgers, Columbia, C. G. N. Y., and the University of Pennsylvania. Joseph F. O'Brien, of the division of speech, and men's debate coach, accompanied the team.

The orators meet Rutgers tonight, Columbia University tomorrow, and C. G. N. Y. Thursday on the supreme court question. Saturday the team opposes the University of Pennsylvania debaters on the subject: Should R. O. T. C. be abolished in schools and colleges? Penn State will take the negative. This debate will be broadcast over station WCAU in Philadelphia at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Conducts New Class

Prof. Charles J. Rowland, of the economics and sociology department, conducts a sociology class at Williamsport. His class was started last week through the cooperation of the College extension services with Williamsport officials.

PACS Conclave To Begin Friday; Eighty Expected

Warnock To Welcome Students at First Of Meetings.

Henderson Will Speak On Freedom of Press

About eighty students are expected to attend the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Association of College Students to be held here Friday and Saturday, Philip G. Evans '36, treasurer of the organization and chairman of the convention, announced today.

Registration of attending delegates will be held in Old Main Friday morning and the convention will be opened officially at 1:30 o'clock that afternoon when Dean of Men Arthur R. Warnock welcomes the visitors at a meeting to be held in Room 401, Old Main. Arthur Bouton, of Dickinson College, president of the association, will be in charge of the meeting.

Henderson To Speak

Harry B. Henderson jr. '36, editor of the COLLEGIAN, will be the principal speaker at the afternoon meeting. He will discuss "Freedom of the Press," one of the subjects under consideration by the convention.

Speakers at the meetings on Saturday will include Gertrude Ely, head of the women's division of the Works Progress Administration of this State, and Helen Schmadel, of the department of education at Seton Hill College, who will speak on the subject, "Accent on College Students."

2 Banquets Scheduled

Two banquets will be held for the delegates. Dean of Women Charlotte E. Ray will speak Friday night following a banquet in the Sandwich Shop. The final session of the convention will be held at the Nittany Lion Inn Saturday night. The speaker at this meeting will be Margaret Taylor, vice president of the National Student Federation of America.

This will be the second annual meeting of the association, the one last year being held here also. At that meeting the group adopted their present constitution and discussed a number of problems pertaining to student government, publications, and public affairs.

Subjects with which they will deal this year are the adoption of a permanent youth program similar in scope to the present NYA, democracy in student government, and freedom of the collegiate press.

Dennis Cites Challenge To Farmer in Lecture

Prof. William V. Dennis, of the department of agricultural economics, emphasized the challenge to farmers as keeping alive the traditions, democratic ideals, and faith of rural life in a recent lecture to faculty and students.

Professor Dennis outlined the comparative freedom of action and other values found in farming to the millions who are now unemployed.

Sanders Will Feature Penn State Songs At Soph Hop

"When Joe Sanders 'the ole' left hauder' plays here for Soph Hop on March 6 he will feature Penn State songs and music that originated on this campus. Any person wishing to have some special number played at the dance may make their requests to the co-chairmen, Bernard J. Burkett and Byron Cressy.

Sanders and his orchestra, which is now making a tour of colleges in the south, is featuring local numbers at each dance along with his own compositions.

It has become an old Sanders' custom to take a vacation every year for a much needed rest. He usually returns from the vacation with a pile of songs and dance numbers that he has written.

Some of the numbers which he has written and which he will feature when he plays here are, "Do You Miss Me," "I'll Never Forget I Love You," "Nights Night," which he uses as his identifying theme, "I Found a Rose in the Snow," "Halfway to Dawn" and "Soft Lips."

'Sunken Bell' Will Feature Marionettes

Cloetingh Plans To Use Remote Control Of Music.

For the first time in the history of local dramatics, marionettes and remote control music will be used when the Players present Gerhardt Hauptmann's "The Sunken Bell" in Schwab auditorium Friday and Saturday of this week under the direction of Prof. Arthur C. Cloetingh, director of the division of dramatics.

Twelve animal marionettes created by Mrs. Merit Scott, designer of the set, depicting the forest friends of a witch, will be used in the second act while Heinrich is in the forest. They will be operated from a well in the ceiling of the stage by strings thirty feet in length.

Two major interpretive dance sequences have been arranged under the direction of J. Ewing Kennedy, of the department of music. The one takes place in the first act and portrays the life of the elves in the forest of Rautendelcin, the spirit of pure nature. In the chorus of elves are: Margaret I. Doherty '37, Hermione H. Hunt '38, Barbara H. Hanson '39, Barbara A. Wood '39, Shirley R. Hulms '38, Maria H. Weber '37, Louise H. Sutton '38, and Barbara J. Howarth '36.

Players' Lead

IOLA D. MURRAY '39

A group of talented youngsters from the Children's Theatre will characterize dwarfs in the fourth act when Heinrich, in a fantastic nightmare, dreams that these grotesque dwarfs, who are afraid of bells, have come to torture him, the bell moulder. Responsibility for staging the entire production rests on Morris H. Wood '37 who, with a corps of assistants, has been assembling the largest and most difficult sets ever used in Schwab auditorium. In all there are three sets, each using the entire width between the proscenium arches and having a drop-line of eighteen feet, four feet taller than the conventional size representing the forest paths and knolls. An artificial floor is being built to cover the entire stage floor. The sets were designed by Mrs. Merit Scott.

Seeking to get a better blend of dialogue and music, the directors plan to use a virolta unit placed in the orchestra pit and connected with a radio back stage. The volume can thus be controlled from an audience position and the danger of the conductor drowning out dialogue will be eliminated. Alma J. Doran '37, a music education major, will be at the controls.

Costumes for twenty-three members of the cast are being made under the supervision of Frances G. Hamilton '36. Lillian J. Lawyer '37 is in charge of properties, and Nellie B. Gravatt, graduate student in dramatics, will head the operators of the animal marionettes.

Keller Talks to Alumni

Prof. Edward L. Keller and Millard T. Bunnell, both of the engineering extension department, attended a meeting of the Penn State Alumni in Altoona last week. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Keller on extension work at the College.
