Collegian, P.S.C.A. Investigate State Y.M.C.A. Drive

During the past week numerous faculty members and townspeople have received letters from the State Y. M. C. A. of Pennsylvania located in Harrisburg soliciting funds and enclosing a booklet in which the signatures of a number of local men, together with the amount of their contributions, were written.

Because the signatures appeared to be false the suspicion was aroused that this was not a legitimate appeal. A result Harry Seaman, general secretary of the P. S. C. A., and the COLLEGIAN conducted a hurried investigation in order to determine the facts about the campaign. The COLLEGIAN has learned that in every instance which it has investigated the contribution was actually made, but that in most cases the men making it had not given anyone the authority to use their names.

The statement of Mr. Seaman and Prof. John H. Frizzell, chairman of the board follows: "May we say for the Penn State Christian Association that, while there is no disposition on our part in any way to disparage the State Y. M. C. A. and its work among high school students, to interfere with its drive for funds, or to reflect in the slightest degree on the approval given the appeal by our good friend and supporter, Professor William F. Gibbons, yet, in all fairness, it should be known that this drive is neither sponsored by nor in any way connected with the Penn State Christian Association."

Scholarships Awarded. Richard E. Luce '38 and Jesse L. Schimsky '38 were awarded scholarships for study of Oriental culture at Lingnan University, Canton, China. Prof. D. D. Stevenson, of the department of forestry, head of the scholarship committee, announced yesterday.

1st Photographic Salon To Open Saturday; Purple Quill Sponsors. Purple Quill, campus literary society, opens the first photographic salon on this campus in the exhibition room of the College library tomorrow. The exhibition of photographs will continue until after graduation.

The exhibitors who submitted pictures by invitation are as varied as their products. There is work of a 15-year-old high school boy as contrasted to the contributions of three grandfathers. Other contributors are drawn from the ranks of the freshman class and the faculty. Quite a contrast!

But whatever the age or ranking, all contributors to the Purple Quill salon are experienced photographers. Men like Professors Mack, Sperry, and Stout are practiced artists. Dr. Mack is the well-known wood-cutter whose work is familiar to students through its appearance in the Old Main Bell and the Science Leaflets. Professors Sperry and Stout have acquired wide renown for their excellence in photographic endeavor.

There is a wide variety of the pictures submitted. There are no cabages, but there are mushrooms—Prof. Medsger's study. Professor

Hillel Foundation Will Assist Nazi Refugees To Study

Group Plans To Bring Jewish Student To Campus.

Various Groups Pledge Over $400 to Student

Through the efforts of the Hillel Foundation here plans are now underway to bring a German refugee Jewish student to the Penn State campus next fall in order to study here for a year. Over $400 has already been pledged by various student groups and Rabbi Ephraim Fischhoff, who is leading the movement, expects to contact other independent groups before the close of College in an effort to enlist their aid and support.

Following a meeting of the W. S. G. A. this week, Gene C. Zeigler '37, president, reported this body was ready to pledge $100; that Owens, sophomore honorary society, would pledge another $100; and that a petition for free tuition for the German student would be sent to the administration.

Although no plans have been made as to whether a man or woman student will be brought here, Miss Zeigler said that the W. S. G. A. felt that a girl, living in a dormitory, would be able to make more contacts with students than would a man living in a fraternity.

Approximately $200 has been raised by the four Jewish fraternities here and contributions from individual students, faculty, and townspeople bring the entire total to nearly $500. Joseph P. Swift '36, retiring president of Interfraternity Council, presented the plan to that body Tuesday night and an official endorsement of it was passed.

"It is to be hoped that many students, activated by a deep loyalty to the fundamental American tradition of democracy, liberalism, and civil liberties, will demonstrate this feeling by supporting this humanitarian venture," Dr. Fischhoff said. "We will welcome any contribution, however small, that any individual or group may wish to make in order to show their sympathy with the movement."

"We are not so much interested in the money which a group pledges as we are in the spirit which it manifests in backing such a movement," Dr. Fischhoff said. "By this action Penn State will join the colleges who have thus demonstrated their opposition to the policies of Nazi Germany."

Enough money must be raised, in order to bring the student here, to convince U. S. immigration officials that he will not become a dependent. A bureau in New York City which directs the work of assisting German Jewish students to study in universities throughout the world will notify the German government and arrange to bring the student here.

Brookwood Players Scheduled Here

Brookwood Players Will 'Chant' Reasons for Opposition to War

An unusual feature of the program to be presented by the Brookwood Players in Schwab auditorium Tuesday night, May 26, at 8 o'clock, will be the mass chant, "No Job of Ours," in which a chorus of voices effectively tell the reasons for opposition to war. The mass chant, a new technique in American drama, has proven exceedingly popular on previous tours of the Brookwood Players, and never fails to impress the audience, according to Elizabeth England, dramatics coach at Brookwood College, who is directing the current tour.

Opposition to war will be the theme of another feature of the program, "Guncotton," a play telling how a group of workers in a rayon factory did their bit to prevent war. Other items to be presented include "Speed-up," another mass chant; a play dealing with problems of government, as well as songs and novelty numbers.

The Brookwood Players consist of men and women from varied localities in every part of the country who have come to study at Brookwood College, Katonah, N. Y. The group playing here will visit fifty towns in the east, presenting its shows. The tours are made in a large twenty-passenger bus which carries players, scenery, lights and stage equipment.

All of the plays used by the Players have been written and produced by students at the school as part of their regular class work. This will be the first time that the Brookwood Players have given their performance on the Penn State campus, although they have played in several nearby towns including Bellefonte last year, where they were received enthusiastically.

As a part of its activities for the current semester, the Student Peace Action Council is sponsoring the Players and is being backed by the COLLEGIAN, Old Main Ball, Froth, the Social Problems Club, and the student members of Purple Quill. There will be no admission charged.

Miller '36, Charles M. Schwartz Jr. '36, and David Yellin '37. They upheld the negative side of the question: "Should the fraternity dating rules put in force at the beginning of the college year be continued?" Joseph F. O'Brien, of the division of speech, was judge of the contest.

A permanent cup, given by Forensic Council, and a rotating cup, awarded by Delta Sigma Rho, were awarded to the winners. Lewis A. Steinhaber '37 and Frederick L. Young '38, of Forensic Council, were in charge of the tournament.

'36 Class Gives $1,000 For Purchasing Telescope.

Remainder of Money Promised by College

The class of 1936 decided definitely Wednesday night to appropriate $3,000 toward the purchase of a memorial organ and $1,000 for the purchase of a photographic telescope to be erected possibly on the Botany building.

According to J. Briggs Pruitt, president of the class, the figures of the appropriations were only approximate, because the damage fund has not yet been taken from the class treasury.

Prof. Richard W. Grant, director of the department of music, said that the remainder of the money up to $10,000 for the organ would be supplied by the College. He has already contracted two organ building firms for estimates. He will immediately take action to award the contracts.

The $1,000 will pay for the special telescope, but the College will have to pay for the installation and the construction of a housing around the instrument.

'Stocks and Blondes' To Show for Last Time June 6

'Stocks and Blondes,' spring Thespian musical which scored sensational hits at its Interfraternity Ball and Junior Prom week-end presentations, will go into its final performance on Saturday night, June 6, at 7:15 o'clock.

Having for its romantic theme the riotous life of Jim Fiske and his companion "Robber Barons," Jay Gould and Daniel Drew, the costume musical show moves through ten scenes which depict the lives and loves of the colorful characters of post-Civil War days.

While the show has not been materially changed since its first presentation, the last showing next Saturday night promises to be the most successful, the production staff having benefited from past performances in whipping into shape a snappy musical show which lacks nothing. Director J. Ewing Kennedy will conduct rehearsals for the production next week. The music was written by Don Dixon and Hummel Fishburn, while the book is the work of Kennedy, Dick Allen and Johnny Binns.
