

Parents To Petition New Dormitories for Women; Hear Dean Ray on Topic

Organization To Issue College Trustees' New Plans Group Seeks Adequate Recreation Facilities

The Association of Parents of Penn State at its annual business meeting held in the Little Theatre, Old Main, last Saturday morning, moved to petition the College Board of Trustees for adequate women's dormitories and a women's recreation building. This followed the address of Dean Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, in which she stressed the need of women's dormitories and recreational facilities by stating that the campus dormitories at present can accommodate only 400 of the 1000 women students.

This was substantiated further by David B. Pugh, newly-elected president of the association, who said that 700 qualified girls were turned away because of the lack of housing facilities. Four hundred and twenty women's applications had been received by July of this year to fill the quota of 250 admissions.

Commends Student Government

Dean Ray, in her talk on "Women of Penn State," commended the student government on its good sense, fair play, and judgment.

"The guidance of the Women's Students' Government Association," she said, "is the biggest factor in the success of women students. In 1911, seven women were graduated from Penn State, while in 1936, 232 were given degrees."

The women are divided generally into three groups, namely: home economics, education, and liberal arts. However, there are a few in agriculture, architecture, and pre-medical curriculae and one girl is enrolled in the School of Mineral Industries.

"Of the women in the class of 1935, 72 per cent were employed within six months after graduation, and we expect a higher percentage this year," Dean Ray concluded.

New Officers Elected

Frank A. Osterlund '37, president of the senior class, extended the welcome of the student body to the parents, and Gene C. Ziegler '37, president of Women's Student Government Association, after greeting the parents in behalf of the women students, asked the members of the association to consider the need of new dormitories and recreational facilities.

'Daddy' Rhoton at 70, Perfect Physical Model, Tells of Rigid Exercise

At 70, a perfect physical specimen, a model for every alert young man, that is Prof. A. L. Rhoton, better known as "Daddy" Rhoton, of the department of education.

Two or three times a week his flowing white hair may be seen bobbing up and down as he trots around the track in Recreation hall. He has a set program of exercise for himself which he has followed faithfully all his life. Proudly he says, "I will be 70 in March, and I feel as physically and mentally alert as ever."

His favorite form of exercise is with the medicine ball. At first they wouldn't let him have one, but now it is different: They have given him a ball for his use only, to keep in his locker.

It is a heart-warming sight to see this man, old in years but young in spirit, handling a heavily-padded leather ball better than many much younger men.

His program consists of about a half hour workout with the medicine ball, a few laps around the track, a little rowing machine exercise, and then a refreshing shower.

Carnegie, White Awards Available

Upperclassmen in First Tenth Of Their Classes Eligible For Scholarships

Eighteen scholarships, including the Louise Carnegie and John W. White awards, are now available to members of the upper three classes who stand in the first tenth of their respective classes. Application blanks must be obtained from the office of the chairman of the Committee on Academic Standards, Prof. Harold A. Everett, 208 Main Engineering building, and must be returned to the same office not later than October 15.

The application blank will require that the student include a statement as to what aid he is already receiving from the College or from outside sources, what his financial conditions and needs are at present, and as to what his college record is to date. A statement from the applicant's parents or guardian attesting to the accuracy of the information furnished must accompany the application. The applicant shall then appear before the committee for a personal interview.

Founded by Carnegie

The Louise Carnegie scholarships are maintained by a fund established by the late Andrew Carnegie. They include twelve awards with a value of $100 each, four to each class. The Committee on Academic Standards, plus a committee of three appointed by the Student Board, shall decide upon the applicants to receive the scholarships and recommend them to the President of the College. If he approves them, the nominations are submitted to the College Senate for ratification.

The John W. White scholarships include one scholarship on each class on the basis of the applicant's standing at the end of the preceding year. The senior award carries $200 with it; the junior award is worth $150; while the sophomore prize is worth $100 to the recipient. There are also three awards to the value of $100 each made for proficiency in Spanish.

Two are awarded to undergraduate students who are residents of the United States, who have not resided permanently in a Spanish-speaking country, for proficiency in Spanish. The third is awarded to a resident of a Latin-American country for his proficiency in English. These awards are made possible through the gifts of James G. White '82 in memory of his father, the Rev. John W. White.

Bursar Selected To Replace Open Treasurer Post

Clark '19 Will Assume New College Job In November

No Disposition Made Regarding Treasurer

Russell E. Clark '19 has been named to the newly created post of bursar at the College with the authorization of the Board of Trustees, Samuel K. Hostetter, assistant to the President in charge of business and finance, announced Saturday. No disposition has yet been made of the post of treasurer which was left vacant by the resignation of William G. Murtorf.

Mr. Clark assumes the office of bursar on November 15. He comes to the College from the Scranton-Keystone Junior College where, since November 1934, he has served as Comptroller. Previous to his affiliation with the junior college he was associated with the International Textbook Company, a subsidiary of the International Correspondence Schools, where his work largely involved accounting.

He became associated with the Scranton-Keystone Junior College in September 1934 on a part-time basis. His first assignment consisted of teaching freshman classes in accounting. At the request of the college administration he was called upon to revise the system of accounting previously used at the Keystone Academy so that it might meet the needs of the new organization. His appointment as comptroller followed in November 1934. Pressure of other duties made it necessary for him to discontinue teaching after the first three semesters.

In his new post, Mr. Clark will have charge of the receipts and disbursements of cash funds. Mr. Hostetter stated in making his announcement of Clark's appointment.

While a student, Clark was active in a number of student endeavors. He was a member of Skull and Bones, the Cuheco Club, the Y. M. C. A. cabinet, and the Lackawanna Club. Among the publication activities to his credit are editor-in-chief of the 1919 La Vie; member of the Froth board; and editor-in-chief of the Y. M. C. A. Handbook.

'La Vie' Mails Seniors Date Cards This Week

Date cards will be mailed this week by the La Vie to all seniors. The card states the time at which the student is to appear at the Penn State Photo Shop to have his picture taken for the 1936 year-book.

Senior men will be required to wear tuxedos to have their pictures taken. The tie must be of the square black bow style and a winged collar must be worn. Students who do not possess a tuxedo will be able to borrow one at the Photo Shop, but the committee stressed the fact that every one, who has a tuxedo, wear his own. In this way much time and inconvenience can be saved. The formal dress is in keeping with the modernistic theme that the staff has chosen for the 1936 La Vie.

Junior candidates for the staff will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon. This is also the last call for candidates, according to Walter L. Peterson '37, editor of La Vie.

Psychologists Will Give Tests To 7000 Job Seekers in State

Employers are learning to use psychological tests as an aid in picking their best workers for business and industry.

According to Dr. Bruce V. Moore, chairman of the department of education and psychology, psychologists who work through the extension services of the college plan to give employment tests to nearly 7000 job applicants in Pennsylvania during the current academic year.

Expansion this year of the testing service provided for Pennsylvania industries by Penn State has been made possible through employment of a graduate assistant, Edwin J. Carr, who will devote half his time to giving and scoring the tests.

The employee selection service is available to any Pennsylvania employer willing to pay the costs of materials and supervision, Dr. Moore said.

Wear Sparkplugs 45-0 Rout of Mules in 1st Game; 10,000 Attend

Windy, Silvano, Metro Score Twice As Gridmen Pile Up Largest Opening Day Score Since '26; Cherundolo Stars

By CHARLES M. WHEELER, JR.

Diminutive Windy Wear entered the ball game Saturday with six minutes to go in the first quarter and scored 10 plays later to set off the spark that fanned itself into a flame, enveloping the Mules of Muhlenberg with its intensity. There was nothing but a bare hulk after 45 State points had crossed the goal line before 10,000 fans, the largest opening day turnout in history.

Outdoing even the predictions of the craziest optimists, the Nittany Lions snarled, then roared; and finally jumped up and down on the humbled Lutherans and piled up their largest opening score since 1926.

Led by Wear, Tommy Silvano, and Joe Metro on the offensive and Captain Cherundolo on the defensive, the Lion scored in every period, once in the first, twice in the second, three times in the riotous third, and once in the final stanza. Wear, Silvano, and Metro scored twice each, while Carl Waugaman carried the other counter across on a pass.

Harrison Outstanding

The sensational leadership and broken field running of Wear was virtually equalled by Harry Harrison as he led a conglomeration of State reserves in the latter portion of the game in an assault on the Muhlenberg goal line.

The game started out with a confident Mule outfit receiving and kicking deep into Lion territory. An intercepted pass gave the Mules the ball again and Farrell kicked it over the goal line.

State kicked again and Farrell, the outstanding opponent of the day, broke through the center of the line and ran 29 yards to the Lion 34 yard line before he was brought down. Patrick ended the threat by intercepting a pass on his own 15.

Wear went in as Economos recovered Laing's fumble and with the aid of Tommy Silvano marched 66 yards to the first score. Featured in the drive was a 14-yard pass from Wear to Adessa and the beautiful 21-yard run around right end on which the Rabbit scored standing up. Silvano's kick was wide.

Silvano Scores

An 18-yard run by Wear and one of 13 yards by Patrick put the ball on the 25 in the second quarter. Tommy Silvano then ripped off 20 yards through the middle and scored two plays later. This time Schuyler missed.

After Farrell's kick which Wear returned to his own 34 from the 17, State was off again. Wear went around right end for 11 and then passed to Frank Smith, who made a beautiful catch as he was knocked down on the Mule 32. It was a 24-yard gain. Silvano then took things in hand and scored after a drive with John Patrick. The score was 18-to-0 as Silvano intercepted Gutekunst's pass as the half ended.

Under the leadership of Harrison, the Lions lost little time in the third quarter. After Cherundolo smeared Gutekunst for a loss, Farrell punted

If You Haven't Heard 'Froggy Bottom,' You May on Friday Night

Have you heard "Froggy Bottom?" Chances are you haven't, and if you haven't you should.

And do you know what "Froggy Bottom" is? Well, "Froggy Bottom" is a piece of music that is neither swing nor sweet. It's kind of up and down, low and high, but mostly low. And in music circles it's quite the "nuts" when arranged well.

Do you want to hear "Froggy Bottom?" Certainly you do. And here is how. Join that throng of folks that is trekking up to Rec Hall Friday to the annual COLLEGIAN dance and hear "Froggy Bottom" for yourself as played by Newell Townsend and his orchestra in their local debut for the year.

They are going to play from 9 until 12 o'clock. And they are going to mix it up with swing, sweet, and low. They have been practicing for three weeks now and have everything under control.

But if you aren't coming just to dance and because you subscribed to the COLLEGIAN, if you are going to force that ugly word "sex" into the picture—well, all right. You, and you, and you will be taken care of, too.

For Townsend is sporting these days a new girl vocalist, Doris Mauche. She's a newcomer to the campus, a transfer, and does her chanting with a mean vengeance.

And if you haven't subscribed to the COLLEGIAN yet to get your free ticket, why you know it's never too late. Just go to the Student Union office.

Co-ed Carnival Proves Success in Featuring Campus Organizations

The co-ed activities carnival, sponsored by W. S. G. A., was presented in the Armory Friday night. The entertainment included skits submitted by the prominent women's activities on the campus.

With tap-dancing, jukes and songs, the W. S. A. board presented a minstrel show; the publications women including COLLEGIAN, La Vie, Bell, and Froth, reviewed, in an exaggerated manner "how a freshman should go out for publications." The Louise Homer organization displayed "its talented musicians" in a unique fashion with their "rhythm band," and the Ellen H. Richards Club, Omicron Nu, and the Home Economics Club modeled outfits of what should be worn at the proper time.

Activities Represented

Among the more distinguished guests attending the carnival in costume were Mrs. Morris, Grange chaperon, who appeared as "Raggy Ann," and Miss Burkholder, assistant dean of women, who was disguised as a circus ringmaster.

Deris S. Sander '38 acted as general chairman of the carnival. Ruth Edgar '38 was in charge of the invitations; Lucia E. Oehl '39 of the publicity; and Frances A. Duritsa '38 of the refreshment committee.
