

We Women

By MARION A. RINGER

"Emily Post says—" has become institution.

An institution openly jeered at and secretly looked up to. We need an Emily Post in person at Penn State. There are not a few of us who stammer when introducing people, are at a loss when answering formal invitations, and don't know which fork to use first.

The new constitution of W. S. G. A. has provided for a more active House of Representatives. One of their plans is to have a series of talks upon etiquette applied to Penn State life by Mrs. Neva Morris. They will be in the form of open discussions after each meeting of the House. Mrs. Morris has become an expert upon the technicalities of social usage, and has steered many of us to the right phrases when sending invitations.

These meetings will be open to anyone wishing to attend. They would be a priceless help to all fraternity social secretaries. Girls who are interested in committee work would gain many tips to help them in planning our social affairs. In fact, we all would profit by these discussions.

W. S. G. A. gives a scholarship prize every year to the freshman girl attaining the highest average. The prize is fifty dollars; no other strings attached to it, just the highest average in the class.

Betty Stead received the award this year with an average of 2.89, in the lower division.

Standing at the head of your class is a great honor, but to be remunerated for it with fifty dollars is great fortune.

So, freshmen women, be aware of the fact that you have fair bounty to work for.

Footlights

Her delivery, however, was good and she got the most out of her lines. As the chauffeur Donald Geiger had several good speeches, most of which he muffed either because he mumbled them or turned them poorly.

The remainder of the cast, Lucille Giles, as Chester Borton's sweetheart; Beatrice Conford, as her mother; and Dorothy Clarke, as Miss Arden's secretary; was rather colorless. This, however, was due more to the script than to their performances.

The technical work was poorer than in any of last season's shows. There was nothing especially difficult about the sets, the properties, or the lights, yet they were badly handled. The light cues were not well timed; it was impossible to hear the radio any further back than Row C; there was no fire in the fireplace. The set looked thrown together, which was probably the case as we understand the designer and crew had only a few days in which to make it.

"Personal Appearance" was excellent entertainment. Most of its shortcomings were a result of the limited time available to get it ready. By next month, when it will be given at a dramatics convention here, it will be an improved show.—J. B.

40 Graduate Students To Receive N. Y. A. Aid

The number of graduate students who will be helped by NYA will be about 40, Dean Frank D. Kern announced today.

Many more applied and the granting of work was very difficult. Most of the students will be employed by helping with the research work done by the various schools.

Wilde Clinches Position On Lion Soccer Lineup

By JERRY WEINSTEIN

Cleverness again triumphed over power on the soccer field as one more player was added to Coach Bill Jeffrey's list of starters in the booters' opener with Bucknell this coming Saturday.

Dick Wilde, a newcomer, has clinched the outside left position and will take his place on the forward line along with four tried veterans. What decided Jeffrey's selection was the skill exhibited by Wilde in his passing and his general use of cleverness when power might have been substituted so easily.

Halfbacks a Problem

Still outstanding on the small list of Jeffrey's worries is the halfback line. With no veterans on hand from last year's successful aggregation, the halfback positions presented the main problem in building a new team. As it stands now, there is a toss-up between four players as to who will get the starting call at the three positions.

The center half post may be clinched by Walt Painter, giant sophomore, whose improvement in pre-season practices has been amazingly rapid. But the right half and left half spots are still wide open, with the selection open to the veteran Eddie Mandel, Frank Megrail, and Freddy Spiker.

Weddell Still Out

The remaining positions on the team are well taken care of by veterans with one exception, left halfback. Until today, it was expected that Dave Weddell's injured knee would be sufficiently healed for him to take his post. However, it will be at least another week before he will be in condition to start.

Until Weddell is ready, Bill Borda will take up the fullback duties. The letterman, Phil Barnes, is expected to more than take care of the other fullback area.

Soccer Socks

Outside of the appearance of Wilde as a competent addition to an already startlingly capable forward line, the main line of chatter around soccer headquarters is the new life of Carl Wacker . . . outstanding as a sophomore last year, Wacker has performed in practices this year with such ability as to amaze even the easy-going Jeffrey . . . Wacker has become more than smart . . . is making better use of his power kicks . . . his short-pass style will add to the Lions' offensive strength . . . and he will probably take Captain Bill McEwan's place at center forward next year . . .

CINEMANIA

Tonight, Max Reinhardt's production of Shakespeare's immortal fantasy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," plays at the Cathaum. The same arrangements will obtain today as were in effect yesterday. Those buying subscriptions to the Bell will receive a free ticket to the performance. It gives us a feeling of complete satisfaction to learn that there is at least one individual around the college who takes life seriously and apparently reads this column with a more or less critical eye. To our infuriated critic, we pass the laurel wreath for astute observation. The childish performance manifested during the showing of "Nine Days a Queen" on the part of the juvenile element of the audience was somewhat disconcerting. We gave up listening to the humble dialogue of the picture to enjoy to the fullest the scintillating collegiate wit we heard around us.

Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth" comes to the Cathaum Thursday. It will be Friday's feature at the Nittany. Walter Huston as Sam Dodsworth, Ruth Chatterton as Fran, Paul Lukas as Arnold, and Mary Astor as Edith Cortright bring to the screen this triangular process which has already been made into a novel, a play, and now a motion picture. Sidney Howard, who dramatized the stage version, authors the screen play. While William Wyler of "These Three" fame again goes in for first-class directing honors. Advance releases proclaim, "Any woman who has a husband can't afford to miss this picture."

"Ladies in Love" comes to the Cathaum Wednesday and the Nittany screen Thursday. Four lovely daughters of 20th Century brings happiness into your life. The beauty line-up of Janet Gaynor, Loretta Young, Constance Bennett, and Simone Simon teams with Don Ameche Paul Lukas, Tyrone Power, Jr., and Alan Mowbray to provide good entertainment.
