

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

By FRANCIS SZYMCAK

Jay Daniels has been appointed manager of the horseshoe tournament. Saturday will be the last day to file entries. The double elimination system will be used. Twenty teams have been entered so far.

Bob Smith, athletic director of the Penn State Club, has been named as the non-fraternity representative to the intramural board.

Jack Fair, manager of the putting contest, announced that the first eliminations will be made from a double bracket. The flight winners will go into a single elimination bracket.

The intramural golf tournament eliminations are progressing rapidly into the quarter finals. Wetteran defeated Elder, 3-2; Gottle took over Haynes, 3-1, but lost to Markley, 5-4. Hebeda played a consistent game to take over Mahaffey, 1 up, and Gross, 3-2. He will probably meet co-captain Bennett in the quarter final match. Second flight winners include Patterson, Cleim, Snyder, and Feree. All other first round matches in this flight haven't been played as yet. The third flight winners to date are Beck, Spandau, Warnock, and Green.

The Record Crop

On quite a few of his records in the past three or four months Goodman's outfit has lost some of its spontaneity. The boys seem to be working too hard. Pick Yourself Up, however, is evidence that they are still tops among he swing bands. After the intro Benny takes eight measures; then he and Joel Harris divide a chorus. A hot trumpet lick and more Goodman himself. The reverse, Down South Camp Meeting, is in the typical Goodman manner with nothing special to distinguish it except the usual smooth ensemble work. (Victor 25587).

Another record of Benny's that will probably be a local favorite is You Turned The Tables on Me. Helen Ward contributes one of her usual sexy choruses and the rest of the number is pretty commercial too. It's played in slow tempo with the usual drive. Here's Love in Your Eye, the reverse, is in medium tempo and will please you if you like Goodman. (Victor 25591).

Buy Jimmy Dorsey's Boston Tea Party and get your money back by playing the first chorus and offering to bet the boys at the House who think they know orchestras that they can't name the band. It has all the mechanics of a Goodman arrangement. The reads take a phrase in the lower register and play around with it while the brass reinforce the rhythm on the accented notes. A novelty vocal chorus occupies the middle of the record and Jimmy Dorsey heightens the Goodman impression by taking a clarinet lick

Trial Officers Named By Freshmen Women

The first set of trial officers for the Freshman girl's class was announced at class meeting held in the Home Economics auditorium Monday night.

Vivan Hatper, temporary president, officiated. The other trial officers were: vice-president, Sarah Keisen; treasurer, Mildred Long; and social chairman, Polly Wirtz.

During the meeting the second group of officers was voted on and the third group nominated. Permanent officers will be chosen from the three groups.

Miss Kathrine Phelps, head of the freshman girl's dormitories, spoke stressing the importance of the freshmen girls becoming acquainted with the upperclass girls.

or two near the end. The backing, It Ain't Right, is in the same style. (Decca 901).

Roy Eldridge is the star of two recent Fletcher Henderson recordings. In Jim Town Blues he takes only about eight measures but its high spot of the record. This is played in fast tempo and Eldridge does impossible trumpet tricks in a high register. A clarinet chorus, some nice trombone ensemble work, and the string bass of Israel Crosby at the end of the record stand out. You Can Depend On Me, the backing, is even better. Eldridge and the rhythm section takes an entire chorus followed by Choo Benny's tenor. Dick Vance's vocal is nothing outstanding but the clarinet and tenor choruses which follow are. (Victor 25597)
