

Instead of Fighting Lehigh, Lions Fight Themselves and Lose

Engineers Outplay State Scoring Touchdown On Long Forward in Third Quarter; Extra Point Wins Game

By CHARLES M. WHEELER, JR.
Squabbling among themselves like babies and playing listless and uninspired football, Penn State's 1936 excuse was thoroughly outplayed and beaten in Saturday's Lehigh game.
It was no fluke that sent Lehigh off to its first victory over the trembling Lion since 1917; it was complete mastery. A student body of 1600 mingled with several thousand locals, many State alumni included, viewed the debacle.
And what that crowd saw was a group of inexperienced but well-coached youngsters with the love of the game in their blood take over a sluggish Lion with its tail between its legs. State acted as if it did not want to play football, and if that was its aim, this is a success story.

A Fighting Nature

What fight there was in the team Saturday was displayed by the players mixing it up with their teammates rather than with the common foe. One thing led to another until the only place that spirit was being displayed was in the huddle. And chief among the offenders were a couple of guys that did nothing all afternoon.

The score was 7-to-6 and might easily have been worse. Little did anyone think that the Nittany Lion would be battling desperately to stave off Lehigh scores, especially when in the "darkest years" State had regularly beaten Lehigh. But so it went. The end of the first half saved the Lion from being scored on.

Lehigh at that time took the ball on O'Hara's kick on its own 14-yard line, and three plays later the half ended with the ball on State's 15. A back-shovel pass to Peet who forwarded to Walton took the ball to the Lehigh 45. A pass, Pazzetti to Ellstrom, put the ball on the State 43, and then Heller passed to Ellstrom on the 15-yard line as the bewildered State defense wondered if it were fish day. The answer is that they were just suckers.

But don't underestimate that first half. The Lions made all three of their first downs in it. Think of that.

Wait Until the Last Half

It seems that the second half was destined to see all of the scoring. With ten minutes in the third period the Engineers had the ball on the State 41 after a punt. Wertz dropped back, and taking his time because he had plenty of it, threw a long, high pass to Pat Pazzetti on the 5. He stepped over with the score, and Ayer, who was rushed in, kicked the winning point from placement.

State tried to get going after Tommy (I'm a senior) Silvano had left in favor of Jumping Joe Metro who tried hard, at least, but had no place to go. They got a big break when Waugaman recovered Heller's fumble on the Lehigh 10. Four plays netted 6 yards, and Peet punted out on his own 28, another break. On the first play O'Hara threw State's only completed pass of the afternoon to Harry Harrison in the flat, who eluded the secondary and went down the right side to score. Luther (Dick Merriwell) Barth came rushing in to tie up the old ball game. After considerable treatment of the turf to set the stage, the ball was passed back and he almost raised it off the ground.

There stood the final score, 7-to-6. But what difference would it have made if he had kicked it? A tie score would have been little consolation. It might have gone down in the records that State held Lehigh to a tie, when as a matter of fact, they didn't come close.

Cherundolo Hurt During Game

Most pathetic sight of the afternoon was Captain Chuck Cherundolo standing out there and stopping the Lehigh offense all by himself while his teammates were crocheting. An All-American center if there ever was one playing with the State College amateur stock company. What support he did have came from Tor Torretti and Carl Waugaman.

And Chuck was hurt in the last quarter for the first time of his career but stayed in the game. Second most pathetic sight was Dud Enders, 224 pounds of defensive aggressiveness, with a heart to play the game if there ever was one, sitting on the bench all afternoon while the "varsity" missed them on the right, on the left, and through the middle.
Where the vaunted passing attack and the blocking that sent Mulhennberg helter-skelter was, is a matter of mystery. From the coaching department comes the news that all positions for the Cornell struggle on Saturday are open. Which is exact-

PSCA Campaign For Funds Ready To Start Monday

Will Continue Through Friday, Benjamin Announces

'Goal is the Sky,' Key Note of Money Drive

The annual Penn State Christian Association drive for funds will start on Monday and extend until the following Friday, according to Lester M. Benjamin '37, who is in charge of the campaign.

The annual canvass of students and faculty is to provide funds to aid in meeting the expenditures of the organization. The finances are needed to enable the P. S. C. A. to continue the service it has been rendering to students for the past sixty-one years.

Active in Many Ways

The association is one of the most active on the campus. Among its list of services are the publication of the freshman Handbook, the sponsoring of freshman mass meetings, seminars, fireside sessions, the bringing of famed speakers to the College, as well as the fostering of the student counselor plan for new students.

Previous years there was always a goal toward which the campaign was directed. This year "the goal is the sky," Benjamin promised. He also stated that every student is a member of the organization who participates in its activities or contributes toward its budget. Those who do not wish to pay their contribution now, may have it added to their registration fees next semester.

Leaders Carefully Chosen

Funds contributed by students and faculty members go directly to the budget while those from parents, friends, and the College cover overhead expenses—and secretaries' salaries.

The student advisory committee to aid in the organization is Frank A. Osterlund '37, Johnson Brenneman '37, George M. Hacker '37, Gene C. Ziegler '37, Jean B. Northup '37, Ross P. Shaffer '38, and Fes W. Tibbott '39. Division leaders are being carefully selected, as the success of the drive depends much upon this selection. The first meeting for these leaders will be in the Old Main Sandwich Shop at 6 o'clock tonight. The kickoff dinner to initiate the drive will be held at the Nittany Lion Inn at 5:30 o'clock next Monday. Margaret A. Wentzel '37 is chairman for the women and Benjamin will head the men. A faculty advisor has not been chosen as yet.

To Attend Convention

Dr. Carroll D. Champlin, of the department of education and psychology, together with Leonard M. Brockman '37 and Kenneth G. Brown '37 will attend the national convention of Kappa Phi Kappa, educational fraternity, at Birmingham, Alabama, during the latter part of this week.

Players Tryouts Set for Tonight

Directors Choose Five Shows For Season of 1936-37; Last Open Tryout

The casts for two Player productions will be determined tonight when tryouts for "Post Road" are conducted in the Little Theater in Old Main at 7 o'clock.

Prof. Arthur C. Cloetingh, of the division of dramatics, who will direct the Sophi Hop week-end show, "Post Road," will select his cast from both veteran Players and any newcomers who wish to try out. In addition, Prof. Frank S. Neusbaum, of the division of dramatics, will be present and choose prospective actors for his next production, to be held sometime in January.

The tryouts scheduled for tonight will probably be the last open to all students interested in acting. There may be another one in the spring, however.

Year's Shows Selected

Five shows have been selected by the Players for the remainder of the year, Professor Cloetingh announced. "Post Road" will be the December production. In January, Professor Neusbaum will direct a Greek comedy, "Lysistrata."
"Blind Alley," a melodrama, will be the first presentation of the second semester, to be held either in late February or early March. Professor Cloetingh will direct. Professor Neusbaum's spring show, "Tapestry in Gray," will be held in April. The Commencement production will be "Squaring the Circle."

Cornell Invites Hetzel

President and Mrs. Ralph D. Hetzel have accepted an invitation to attend the football game between Penn State and Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y., on Saturday. The invitation was extended by Dr. A. R. Mann, provost of Cornell University, and chairman of the executive committee of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities, of which President Hetzel is a member.

'Seeing Eye', German Shepherd Dog, To Lead Master To Classes

Within a few days, Penn State students will meet a graduate student from Morristown, N. J. His name is Rolfe, he's two years old, and he's a graduate of the "Seeing Eye" training school for dogs.

Rolfe is a German Shepherd and his profession is accompanying his master, a Penn State sophomore in the School of Liberal Arts, about town and campus.

Rolfe is directed by oral commands of "right," "left," or "forward," but it is the dog that leads, the sophomore who commands. By means of a leather leash and harness, Rolfe will take his master to class, remain until it is over, and will then attend the next hour with his master.

The sophomore acquired Rolfe about four weeks ago from the "Seeing Eye" school at Morristown. The student took a four weeks' training course and then learned how to handle the dog. The instruction included voice infection and intonation, methods of handling the dog, an aptitude, "depends on the infection I use in giving Rolfe commands. The voice must be cordial but firm. If the voice betrays irritation or anger, the dog notices it immediately and does not work efficiently."
The sophomore asks only one favor from the students and townspeople

here: that they will not pet or tease Rolfe or try to assist him along the street at crossings. "Seeing Eye" dogs are so delicately trained that any distracting influence tends to break the line of rigid conditioning to which they are subjected. Occasionally, when the dogs break training consistently, they must be sent back to the "Seeing Eye" for reconditioning in their profession.
It takes three months to condition the dogs. First, they are taught obedience, then, the principles of guiding, finally, studied disobedience, for the dog must disobey a command which might lead his master into danger. The trainers, who educate the dogs and teach the students how to use them, take a four-year course of study before they can become qualified instructors.
Students are selected for dogs as well as dogs for students. Upon application to the "Seeing Eye" school, the student is picked on qualifications which indicate that he will use the dog to the best advantage. There are now over 200 graduates from the school. Rolfe was graduated last Friday.
For several days, he and Rolfe will make the rounds of the town and campus so that Rolfe can become thoroughly familiar with the locality in which he and the student will live during the next three years.

Deadline For Syracuse Tickets Today at 5 P. M.

The deadline for ticket exchanges for the Houseparty football game with Syracuse is this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Fraternity and non-fraternity groups should present coupon number 6 from the athletic books at the Athletic Association office, together with money for any additional tickets desired.
Tickets for the Cornell game to be played at Ithaca Saturday are now available at the Athletic Association window. Reserved seats on the fifty-yard line can be obtained for $3.30.

Enrollment Hits New High Record

Latecomers Continue Enrolling With 5564 Students Now On College Lists

With late comers still registering, College enrollment this fall already has reached a new high of 5664 students, Registrar William S. Hoffman announced today.

The gross of 5623 for the school year of 1935-36, a record up to that time, was surpassed early in the present semester, he said.

Registrar Hoffman's statistics also show that the total for this year is divided between 4597 men and 1067 women, with women registered in all seven schools of the College.

Total registration by schools follows: Agriculture, 1209; Chemistry and Physics, 641; Engineering, 886; Education, 613; Liberal Arts, 1526; Mineral Industries, 245; Physical Education, 182; Graduate School, 242. There are also 89 special students and 20 in the transition section.

Of the total enrolled, 5061 students are candidates for bachelor's degrees. A division of the enrollment by classes reveals 922 students in the senior class, 1031 in the junior class, 1639 sophomores, 1458 freshmen, 173 two-year students, and 89 specials.

Outdoor Enthusiasts To Meet Tonight At Rec Hall

Moving pictures showing skiing activity here last year will be given tonight at 7:30 o'clock to outdoor enthusiasts as they meet for the second time in an effort to further interest in the excellent facilities of the surrounding mountains. The meeting will be held in Room 301, Recreation hall.

In the first meeting last Friday a group of over forty students discussed the various opportunities for hiking, mountain-climbing, and skiing, and more than fifteen automobiles went out to the range of mountains near Boalsburg Sunday to view the work being done there by forestry students and other outdoor fanciers. The discussion will be continued tonight.

Ski Trail Work Progresses

Work on a ski trail for the coming winter has been progressing and much was accomplished on Sunday. When finished, the trail will compare favorably with others built by the various New England colleges. In addition to the work for skiing being done, a group is also constructing a lean-to in the Boalsburg district.

The meetings and the work will be under the direction of Max Dercum, instructor in forestry, who organized the ski team last winter, and Ray Conger, instructor in physical education and Athletics. Ben Harriman, a graduate student, is assisting.

Formal Tone Marks 1937 Issue of 'Lavie'

The 1937 La Vie has chosen a formal theme. Broad smiles on faces of the men will be omitted so that the general tone of the senior section will conform to the formal clothes worn.

Senior men are urged to take non-smiling pictures for their section of the 1937 La Vie, so that it will correspond to the appearance of the rest of the book.

Tuxedos are available at the Photo Shop for those who do not have them or find it inconvenient to wear their own to the Photo Shop, but it would be advisable to wear one's own.

If a senior finds it impossible to come to the Photo Shop at the time set on his appointment card, he should come when he has time that same day or at the latest the following day.

Christy '40 Dies; Injury to Brain Cause of Death

Football Game Held As Contributing To Sudden End

Student Hurt in Class Here Friday Morning

A post-mortem yesterday afternoon showed that the death of Joseph A. Christy '40, who died at the College Infirmary Sunday night at 11:20 o'clock, was due to an effusion into the cerebellum, together with a brain tumor. Dr. W. R. Henton, Centre County Coroner conducted the investigation, assisted by Dr. J. V. Foster, local physician, and Dr. Joseph P. Ritenour, College doctor.

The effusion affected the respiratory nerve centers in the brain. It came as a result of the diseased condition of that organ. It had been thought that his death was due to an injury that he may have sustained while playing touch football. The Coroner, however, stated that while that may have hastened his death slightly, it could not in any way have been the actual cause.

Christy, a native of Wilkensburg, enrolled in mechanical engineering, had been in good health according to his friends. He complained of a headache last Friday following a game of touch football in his physical education class that morning. He had fallen several times in the game but had not been injured in any way.

Attended by Dr. Glenn Saturday morning he felt worse and his roommate, William Cooper '40, called Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, local physician. Dr. Glenn examined Christy that afternoon. He was not told of the football game and diagnosed the ailment as an infection of the right frontal sinus. He gave treatment to the student and assured his friends at O'Keefe Manor on 301 South Allen street, where Christy lived, that there was no cause for alarm.

There was no improvement in his condition Sunday so Cooper and another friend carried him to the College Infirmary where he was admitted early in the afternoon. Later in the day he was examined by Dr. Charles Dietrich, College doctor. He too felt that the case was not serious.

Artificial Respiration Given

Sunday night the nurse on duty noticed that Christy was restless. She called Dr. Ritenour. Even then it did not appear that the student was seriously ill. Dr. Ritenour examined his pulse and while doing that the patient's respiration suddenly ceased. Artificial respiration was resorted to and continued for nearly an hour, but at 11:20 the student died.

Christy was the oldest son of Mrs. Flora S. Christy, of 623 Whitney avenue, Wilkensburg. He is survived by two brothers and a sister. The funeral will be held there today or tomorrow.

Engineers Visit Here

Approximately seventy-five engineers from five different institutions will visit the College Friday and Saturday for a meeting of the Allegheny section of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education.

Want To Know The Low-Down? 'Phone Operators---They Know

It's an obscure office, the telephone exchange in Old Main, but it is the busiest and most necessary to the College set-up. To quote: "It's where East meets West to carry on a friendly chat."

The operators there know plenty—that the old L'Amitie house and Miles street dorm carry on the longest conversations, that Women's building gets the calls for a certain week, then Grange has its hey-day, and ad infinitum.

Over 5000 calls a day go through the Old Main switchboard. The seven operators work on two different shifts: one from 8 a. m. to 12 noon, from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 7:30 to 10 p. m.; the other from 7 a. m. to 12 noon, 5 to 7:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 7:30 a. m. There are two and sometimes three girls at work at all times except from 12 noon to 1 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 8:30 a. m.

The break in the busy day of phone calls comes at 10 p. m., after which time the College phones to the women's dormitories and fraternities are discontinued. The men's fraternities and dormitories have all-night tele-

Four Political Parties Will Offer Symposium Thurs. Night at 8:30

Representative Speakers Will Address Students On 'What Our Party Offers Youth'; Publications, ASU Sponsor

Penn State students will have an opportunity to hear what the Communist, Democratic, Republican, and Socialist parties offer youth when the representatives of these parties gather together for the first political symposium in the history of the College in Schwab auditorium Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Speaking on "What Our Party Offers Youth," each representative will present his party's youth plank in twenty minutes or less. After the last speaker, the forum will be thrown open for questions from the floor.

Ask Student Cooperation

J. A. Sexton, director of research in the State Insurance department and former University of Pennsylvania instructor, will speak for the Democratic party. Mr. N. Sparks, district organizer for Western Pennsylvania, will present the Communist party youth program. Representatives of the Republican and Socialist parties have not yet been named by their State Committees.

Kroll Will Talk To I. F. Pledges

PSCA To Sponsor 4th Banquet At Nittany Lion Inn On Sunday Night

The Rev. William E. Kroll '17 will be a featured speaker at the fourth annual Inter-fraternity Pledge banquet to be held at the Nittany Lion Inn at 6 o'clock Sunday night. Charles W. Cable '37, chairman of the committee in charge, announced today. The banquet, sponsored each year by the Penn State Christian Association with the cooperation of the Inter-fraternity Council, is given for the pledges of all fraternities participating.

Varsity Quartet Will Sing

Reverend Kroll, better known as "Bill" or "Pop," once had a brilliant college career, numbering among his activities positions as class historian, associate editor of the 1917 La Vie, member of the editorial staff of the Collegian, the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, and class basketball team. He is a member of the Phi Delta Theta and Alpha Zeta fraternities, Lions Paw, the Forensic Council, and the Student Council. At the present time he is pastor of the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian Church, East Orange, New Jersey.

In addition to the speech by Rev. Kroll, entertainment will be offered by the Varsity Quartet consisting of Richard W. O'Connor '37, Charles W. Tilden '37, Jack E. Platt '37, James P. Unangst '37, and Donald H. Dixon '37, pianist.

Hal Spring to Address College A.S.U. Chapter

Hal Spring, regional organizer for the American Student Union, will address a short meeting of the Penn State chapter in Room 415, Old Main, Thursday night at 7 o'clock. The meeting will take place immediately before the election forum and will consist of a discussion of future A. S. U. activities.

On Saturday night the Union will conduct a social at the home of Prof. Edward R. Van Sant, of the department of economics and sociology. The program will include refreshments and dancing and admission will be twenty-five cents. All interested are invited.

Team Members Listed

Composing the women's team will be Myra C. Cohen '37, Kathleen E. Gibbby '38, Lucille D. Hayes '38, Martha Marush '38, Fenne L. Warner '38, Ruth H. Zang '38, Florence E. Long '39, Beulah F. Gerheim '39, Lillian F. Marion '39, Elizabeth M. Reyburn '39, Harriet A. Ricketts '39, Florence V. Watkins '39, Marjorie E. Witsil '39, and Julia R. Zubroff '39.

Men who were chosen are Benjamin, Ralph N. de Camp '37, M. Calvin Cost '37, Robert A. Gans '37, Glen L. Wetzel '37, James Willford '37, J. Edwin Matz '38, Young, Fred S. Carlson '39, Jack R. Cobb '39, Ray P. Fishburne '39, Dorothy D. Jeffrey '39, Arthur R. Neary '39, Edwin K. Taylor '39, Dennis A. Weaver '39, E. David Cohen '40, Thomas D. Conway '40, James D. Lucke '40, and Jones Kauffman '40.

P. S. Club Will Hold Second Annual Dance

The second informal Houseparty Dance of the Penn State Club will be held at the Nittany Lion Inn October 30, Howard B. Frankenkfield '37, chairman of the dance committee, announced after the Alumni Day meeting of the club. Frankenkfield stated that a popular recording orchestra would provide the music. The other members of the dance committee are George L. Donovan, John H. Hetrick '38, Robert W. Werts '38, and Charles H. Hugus '39.

Werts, who is also chairman of the dancing class committee, announced that it was not too late to sign up for the weekly dancing class which is in charge of Miss Amy M. Fischer, of the School of Physical Education and Athletics. Tickets can be purchased at the Student Union desk for the second lesson, which will be given at Recreation hall Monday night, October 26.
