

Runners Defeat Lehigh With Score of 15-to-40

Maclachlan, 33-03. It was State's fourth successive victory over the Engineers during the past four years of competition with the Brown and White.

The Lion runners will meet what is predicted to be their stiffest opponent on Saturday when they encounter the crew from Manhattan in New York. While the varsity is panting on the Van Cortlandt Park course, the freshmen will be opening their season at Ithaca, against Cornell.

Who Wants to Play?
The question that the game brings out most prominently is: who wants to play football, and who doesn't? There is no doubt that certain members of the "varsity" have no love of the game and cannot even strive to emulate their fiery, courageous captain, who is alone carrying the burden of his school's reputation. Or what there is left of it. There are fellows on the team who would like to play football but are prevented from doing so by the questionable weight of questionable senior reputations—reputations that were garnered in those last few "successful" campaigns.

When 1600 students produce a simon-pure team that can make a team of 5600 students look bad, there is something wrong besides the breaks.

cross-country captain George Harvey. Among the prominent visitors at the varsity encounter were President Ralph D. Hetzel and Dean Robert L. Sackett . . . with umbrellas . . . A Gettysburg man got mud in his eye . . . and the game was halted . . . and as one of the wits remarked, there wasn't a clean play after the opening whistle . . . "Dynamite" Mandel shot mud over the spectators and went completely Scotch with a "sorry Mac" . . . apology . . .

The halfbacks still are a question mark . . . with critics undecided whether they can pass as well as former lines . . . and thus insure a great team . . . led by Phil Barnes, the defense was impressive . . . and goalie Dick Haag managed to get a taste of defensive play on the few occasions the Gettysburg forwards pene-

Three Staff Members Speak at Conference

Three members of the college faculty are on the program for the meeting of the American Society of Metals, in Cleveland, Ohio, this week. Dr. William R. Ham, of the department of physics, delivered a paper yesterday; Dr. Wheeler P. Davey, of the department of chemistry and physics, will speak Thursday, and Dr. David F. McFarland, of the department of metallurgy, will preside at a session, Friday.

Aspirants for Swim Team to Meet Today

Varsity swimming candidates will meet today in 301, Recreation hall, at 4:30 o'clock to formulate plans for the beginning of the training in the gymnasium that will precede tank workouts. A three weeks' exercise program will get under way this week.

Freshman candidates will not be called until December 1, Coach Galbraith announced. Although it has not yet been decided, a meet for the yearlings may be arranged with Mercersburg.
