

Gridmen Face Crucial Struggle Of Season at Cornell Tomorrow

Leave at 7:30 O'clock
From Corner for
Ithaca Game
Economos, Metro To Start Against Bears

By CHARLES M. WHEELER, JR.
Whether or not Penn State will play football this season will be decided tomorrow as the Lions face "the crucial test of the year" with Cornell. The team leaves this morning at 7:30 o'clock from the Corner.
Apparently taking the Lehigh beating to heart and determining to get going, the Lions waged two ferocious scrimmages on Tuesday and Wednesday in preparation for the tilt. Again injuries will hamper the Lion attack.
Paul Enders who was shifted to tackle Tuesday received a severe kick on the leg and was in the infirmary for two days. Whether or not he will be able to play tomorrow is a matter of conjecture. John Economos will see his first action since the Muhlenberg game at a starting guard position, but Lang and O'Hara are still questionable as to their condition. Adessa is still out, as is Zochowski. And Harrison, Toretti, Denise and Cherundolo will be playing with charleyhorses and minor ailments.
Barantovich May Start
Alex Barantovich who was knocked cold in Tuesday's scrimmage will possibly start at one end with Smith and Waugaman battling for the other terminal position. Dean Hanley and Dan DeMarino will play tackle.
Economos and Toretti will be the guards, and Captain Cherundolo will be the pivot man. Windy Wear will probably start at quarterback, with Joe Metro playing fullback. Sammy Donato will be at one halfback, and the other position will be filled from Denise, Harrison, and O'Hara.
Cornell's starting array will find nine sophomores and two veterans lining up. The only experienced men will be Captain Jack Batten, one of the east's greatest punters, in the backfield, and Ted Hughes at center. But the Bears have a very heavy team, one that averages nearly 200 on the line and 185 in the backfield.
Snavely a Nemes
They will be led by an old State nemes, Carl Snavely. It is significant to note that the Lions have never

Hobbies Selected By Outing Group

Faculty Members, Townspeople
Volunteer To Cooperate
In Meetings, Hikes

More than fifty-five students, attending the second meeting of outdoor enthusiasts held Tuesday night, selected many new hobbies which will be discussed and viewed on trips to be taken in the near future.
Included in the list of activities are archery, firearms in the woods, cookery, fishing and hunting technique, skating, skiing, snowshoeing, overnight hiking, first aid, rocks, mineral and animal identification, and practical astronomy. The indoor program aside from physical education activities will be announced later.
Several members of the faculty and townspeople who are experts in the various fields have been queried concerning their interest in the program, and all have signified their willingness to conduct the meetings and hikes which will get under way by next week.
After the students have demonstrated that their interest is of a permanent nature they will probably join the National Association of Outdoor Clubs which has members in the leading colleges in the country.
The School of Physical Education and Athletics is sponsoring a broad program of recreational activities utilizing the services of faculty and townspeople who are especially interested and skilled in certain activities. The hiking group has been the first step along this line.

Tschan at Meeting
Dr. Francis J. Tschan, of the department of history, has just returned from attending a meeting of the Committee on Organization and Policy of the American Association of University Professors at Chicago over the past week-end.

Thespian Show To Feature Girl Dance Team Among Specialties

Featuring the freshman girl dance trio of Pat Altwater, Peggy Lytle, and Louise Stringert among other talented specialty numbers, the Thespian wealth of material is preparing for the first show of the year, "Steer Clear," with the opening but a week away.
Unusual because of the rare amount of first year ability uncovered, "Steer Clear" will have more specialties than any show here has ever had. And ranking with the topnotchers is this girl dance team.
Pat Altwater, the tall girl who will be in the center, has been dancing since she was six, taking lessons from such well-known teachers as Karl Heinrich, Burt Layton, Jack Barry, and Ruth St. Dennis. She has appeared with the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Opera Company, and for three years she has been teaching in her own studio.
Peggy Lytle has been dancing since she was seven, when she started under William Lehman in New York and continued later under the tutelage of Ned Wayburn. She has appeared in professional dance numbers since she was nine years old.
Louise Stringert has been hoofing it for seven years, appearing with her sister Martha at one time on the Stanley Theatre stage in Pittsburgh. Her public appearances have been numerous and well received.
One addition to the lead cast has been made in Frances M. Gates '37 as Peggy Hopkins Joyce.
Bill Bottorf and his orchestra will be the stage band for the production written by J. Lloyd Larkins '37 and John E. Thompson '37. A jam band of six taken from the band will feature a novelty skit of twelve minutes.

Late Dance Refused By Student Committee

Reaffirming its traditional policy of granting later hours only during houseparty week-ends, the Senate Committee on Student Welfare Tuesday denied petitions from two fraternity groups asking for an extension of their dances past the Friday night 12 o'clock deadline.

Dr. Davis Addresses Fraternity Counselors

A talk by Dr. Elwood C. Davis, of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, featured the first meeting of the Fraternity Counselors at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house Tuesday night.
Emphasizing the folly of fraternity counselors and fraternity men in scuffling at the individual interest of the student no matter how much he may diverge from the interests of others, Dr. Davis advised tact in trying to get men out for activities on the campus.
Plans for a second dinner with Interfraternity Council, a custom inaugurated last year under the leadership of Dr. Francis J. Tschan, president and vice-president of the counselors last year, have been made but no date set.
New officers for the year are Francis J. Hanrahan, instructor in mechanics, president; Frank Schlow, town merchant, vice-president; and Prof. Arthur L. Tobias, of the School of Engineering, secretary. Prof. Burke M. Hermann, of the department of history, was elected delegate-at-large to the Executive Committee. Other members are the present officers and the presidents for the past two years.

Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel expressed his approval of the P. S. C. A. drive, which will open on Monday, in his statement, "When we realize that this association is organized to aid all students to make our campus life friendlier and finer, to help the individual student in his religious life, we should all want to have a part in the work and to support it."
A letter signed by Frank A. Osterlund, senior class president; Ross P. Shaffer '38, president of the junior class; Fes W. Tibbott '39, president of the sophomore class; and Gene C. Ziegler '37, president of Women's Student Government, was received this week.
The letter reads: "Now that the time for your annual Finance Drive draws near, we wish the P. S. C. A. much success again this year. Every Penn State begins to realize, before he leaves Penn State, the value of such an active organization on our campus. Sixty-one years is alone evidence of its worth. We, as Penn State men and women, should certainly do our part in support of such a worthwhile cause."
