Fifteen outstanding players from the three upper-class hockey teams have been elected to the honorary hockey varsity. It is particularly noteworthy that eight of the fifteen players are from the senior team, and they have been playing together since their freshman season, with the exception of Emma Jane Foster, who attended Lingnan University last year. The varsity was chosen this year by Miss Marie Haidt, Jean Nordrup, president of the W. A. A. board, and Peggy Bratton, hockey manager.

Members of the team include as follows, Emma Jane Foster '37, Jean Giddings '38, Fran Keesler '39, Barbara Lewis '39, Jean Nordrup '37 and Doris Smith '37. Members playing halfback are Amy Blandy '39, Ginney Goodman '37, Tillie Walker '38, and Gene Ziegler '37. Fullbacks are Beverly Brenizer '38, Florence Taylor '37, and Bertha Wright '39; goalie, Rita Alstadt '37.

The initial rifle turn-out Thursday was unusually promising with 115 prospects for this year's squad. The second practice will be in the Armory Tuesday at 4 o'clock and members of last year's squad are requested to be present. Kay Greiner has been elected the sophomore assistant to the rifle manager and Marian Skladal the freshman assistant.

Senior Engineers Hear Talk on Personality

"Personality, because it is a subjective rather than objective quality, is very difficult to define. It is the summation of one's knowledge plus physical characteristics plus will plus emotional reactions and the integral combination of these." These statements were issued by Dr. E. B. Roberts of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company of Pittsburgh who spoke to senior engineers at the Home Economics auditorium last Friday.

In his lecture Roberts used an equilateral triangle and a square to illustrate his points. He selected these figures because of the similarity of their structural relationship to the quality relationships of life.

By substituting the physical, mental, and social qualities of a person for the sides of these geometric figures, Roberts showed that the general makeup of the personality of an individual could be determined. The mental qualities being scholarship, analytical and thinking ability; the social are poise, cooperation, and a sense of human value; and the physical; health, energy, endurance, and physique.

Frosh Swimmers Start

Freshman swimming candidates should report to Glennland pool next Monday, November 30, for the first tryouts of the season. Coach Galbraith will observe candidates for all events at 4 o'clock. It is definite that there will be a freshman swimming team this year, with dual meet arrangements still pending.

Judging Team Leaves

Penn State's livestock judging team left today for a practice trip preparatory to competing in the intercollegiate contest Saturday at the International livestock exposition in Chicago. As champions in the big shows in the East, the Lions will compete with twenty-five teams from other parts of the country.

McClelland Wins Prize

Amy F. McClelland '38 won the prize offered by the Glee Club and Thespians at their annual dance Friday night. Given the choice of an expense paid Army-Navy game trip or $50, Miss Clelland chose the $50. She was determined the prize winner by draw.

State's Poultry Team Wins Annual Contest

Scoring 3232 points out of a possible 3600, Penn State's team won the 19th annual eastern poultry judging contest in New York City by the highest score ever made in this event. Dr. Dean R. Marble, coach of the team, said today.

Other teams in the contest placed in the following order: North Carolina State College, Cornell University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Rutgers University, Connecticut State College, Massachusetts State College, and the University of New Hampshire.
