

Between The Lions

Members of next spring's lacrosse team will have an added incentive to work for. Acceptance of an invitation from England to send an all-American team there for a series of games next June has been accepted by the U. S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association, according to Coach Nick Thiel, who attended a recent meeting of the group in New York.

Under the present plan, England is prepared to pay all but $300 of the expense of each man making the trip. Assurances of support were received from Yale, Princeton, Syracuse, Penn and Cornell. Details of the trip will be worked out by Laurie Cox of Syracuse. As members of Penn State teams have been picked on All-American teams in the past, it is probable that several of the Lion stickmen will be considered for next year's trip.

coach. Lawther feels that it will probably be necessary for the team to compete in a game or two in order to fully orient themselves to the new system.

The Penn squad, also, will be handicapped. Co-captain Franny Murray, guard, and one of their best players, will not be with the Red and Blue, but will be returning from the Pacific Coast where he is to play on New Year's Day on Andy Kerr's all-eastern football team. However, Bob Dougherty and Jim Hauze, also gridmen, are expected to join the squad before the State game. Hauze is a guard while Dougherty is a forward.

Lost to State

When Coach Lou Jourdet issued a call for basketball candidates at Penn, eight lettermen from last year's team returned. With a nucleus of this sort, he has been able to build a team that should keep their opponents stepping.

The Red and Blue quintet last year won twelve games and lost nine. They fell before the Lion squad with a score of 31-to-26. It was State's first victory over Penn since 1923, when they handed them a 30-to-23 defeat. Last year's victory was only the Lions' sixth triumph of the twenty-six game series which started in 1901.

Two of the high scorers in last year's fray, big Roy Menzel and Co-captain Roger Hangar, are back again this year. Menzel is a center and Hangar a guard.

Coach Names Probable Line-up for Gym Team

Ray Runkle, a sophomore, will probably be the gym team's number one man on the horizontal bar this year, according to Coach Julian Glasser.

George Terwilleger, a varsity man last year, may return to school in February, but he will have to fight it out with Runkle for that number one man spot on the "high" bar.

With the first position practically settled, two other men who look good are Sam Beck and Franny Megrall, who was a sophomore star in soccer.

The schedule has been definitely arranged as follows: February 6—Army at West Point; February 13—Navy, at Annapolis; and February 17—Temple here.

Varsity Swim Team Defeats Frosh, 46-20

Bunk Takes 2 Events; McLaughlin Wins Dive for '40

Penn State's varsity swim team defeated the freshmen 46-to-20 in a meet at the Glenland Pool, Wednesday night.

Ken Bunk, a sophomore, defeated Captain Jim Cumming in the first event of the meet, the 220-yard free-style. The race, a very close one, turned out to be a duel between the two varsity men, Bunk winning in the final yards. Ed Zachs and Jack Fraizer, freshmen, finished third and fourth respectively.

The fancy diving was won by a freshman, Guy McLaughlin, who beat Ray Parks and Marty Hart of the varsity. McLaughlin has a fine record, being unbeaten in practice competition so far.

The 440 yard free-style and the 200-yard back-stroke were clean sweeps for the varsity with Bob Holden winning the former, and Captain Cumming and Dick Geiger turning back the yearlings in the latter.

Charlie Welch, another second year man, took a close one from the freshman, Edgar McClintock and Al Bechtel, of the varsity, in the 50-yard free-style. Welch, starting slowly, came from behind to nip the leaders at the finish.

The varsity had the 100 yard free-style all to themselves when Ken Bunk, Bill Helriegel, and Floyd Quick finished in the order named. Bunk, finding himself in strong company, won only through a last minute sprint.

The varsity relay team put on the best show of the evening, using Cumming, Welch, Bill Helriegel and Quick, the varsity found one of its strongest combinations which should prove troublesome to Lion opponents in the future.

After reviewing the meet, Coach Bob Galbraith said although many of his men were on the sick list, he was well satisfied with his teams and issued instructions for the men to keep in condition over the holidays.

and both lasted until it was all over, although Cromwell came close not doing so. It wasn't that he had been hit much, but that he wasn't in a number 1 condition. In fact that is what decided the fight. Harry was a little too tired in the final stanza to do much about anything. Thereby Quailley gained the decision. Harry

Observatory Camera Ready for Placement

The new astrograph camera presented to the College by the Class of '36 has just been completed, according to Dr. Henry L. Yearley of the School of Chemistry and Physics. It has been declared by Dr. Harlow Shaply of Harvard to be one of the best of its kind.

The camera will be installed in the new observatory which is nearing completion. The observatory, now a permanent fixture on the roof of Buckhout Laboratory, will be formally opened shortly after the Christmas recess.

This observatory will co-operate with six others in the country in studying the variable star fields. The information gathered by this observatory will be sent to Harvard and studied along with the other reports. The purpose of having more than one observing is to insure visibility on nights when visibility is needed, and it is thought that, there will be at least one place where the star field may be studied each night.

Blue Uniforms Arrive; Make Ski Meet Plans

The ski team of the Penn State Ski Club will not lack color when it meets its first opposition during the vacation at Lake Placid, for each member will be garbed in a new navy-blue uniform.

The uniforms, which arrived just recently, are made up of a heavy wool zipper jacket and ski pants of the same material. The Ski Club seal in white stands out against the navy-blue of the jacket. They are warm and serviceable as well as decorative.

In addition to the meet at Lake Placid, the team is also entered in an invitation meet at Olean, N. Y., on January 4. Preparations are under way for the proposed Penn State Invitation Meet to be held here near the end of January.
