

BETWEEN THE LIONS

By BOB GRUBB

One of those three-ring sports circuses that crops up every now and then on Nittany Lion schedules will take place in Recreation Hall tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Speaking of three-ring circuses, few events rival track and field events like the Penn Relays for real eye-strain on the part of the spectators, unless it be the early rounds of an intercollegiate wrestling tournament.

With three matches being run at one time, the spectator gets a good workout. Almost as good, in fact, as Charlie Speidel does in his contortionist act during a dual meet.

There will be between 5,000 and 6,000 persons in Rec Hall tomorrow night. But there is one person who cannot be there and it is to this person that attention of the crowd will be directed.

The Brother Act is just as much in vogue here at State as it ever was. On the wrestling team we have the Craighhead twins, who incidentally, are giving Coach Charlie Speidel no little trouble because they refuse to wrestle each other to determine where they stand.

3 Major Lion Teams Meet Opponents Here Tomorrow

West Virginia Trims Cagers In Close Fray

Quintet To Meet Owls In Conference Tilt Here Tomorrow

By WOODROW W. BIERLY The Lion cagers dropped to fifth place in the Conference standing when they lost to West Virginia by a 36-to-31 score at Morgantown on Wednesday night.

Coach John Lawther remains undecided as to the starting line-up against the Owls. Max Corbin sustained a knee injury in the West Virginia game that may keep him off the floor tomorrow night and necessitate a change of positions among the other players.

2nd Mountaineer Victory The Owls come here with four league victories to their credit, one of them being the 42-to-23 win over the Lions which enabled Temple to step into second place.

The game at Morgantown gave the Mountaineers their first league victory since they defeated Georgetown in their initial loop battle. Lawther's starting five consisted of Sol Miehoff and Corbin at forward, Joe Prokka and Jack Reichenbach at guard, and Jay McWilliams as center.

Lions Take Lead The Lions took an early lead which they maintained during the first eight minutes after which the Mountaineers tied the score and continued to shoot baskets until the count stood

Boxers Face 2nd Hard Test In Navy Struggle Tomorrow

Lions Out for 2nd Win in 15-Year Rivalry; Both Teams Have Clean Records

By JERRY WEINSTEIN Navy will provide Penn State's boxers with their second in a series of four severe tests in Recreation hall tomorrow night at 7 o'clock.

What is probably the longest intercollegiate ring rivalry will be renewed when the Lions and Middles clash. Since 1920, shortly after college boxing started, Penn State and Navy have met fifteen times.

Temple Trounces Gymnasts, 42-12

Chet Phillips, Olympic Ace, Tops Scorers; Parton Takes Only State First

Penn State's gymnastics team was trounced by Temple's national champions, 42-to-12, in Recreation Hall on Wednesday night in the Lions' only home meet and season's finale.

Led by Chet Phillips, Olympic star, and Joe Hewlett, the Owls took all first places except one. Julie Parton, State's rope climber, nosed out Philadelphia tonight.

Phillips, showing no ill effects from a recent illness and sore wrists, stole the show by scoring twenty points. He had firsts in the high bar, parallel bars, rings, and tumbling.

Frosh Cagers Face Carnegie Tech, Pitt

Penn State's freshman basketball team faces a huge task on the road this week-end, with two stiff tussles slated against the yearlings of Carnegie Tech and Pitt.

Fireworks are due to explode today when the undefeated Lion cubs collide with Carnegie Tech's high-flying Scots, also victorious in all their starts. Despite the fact that its record is marred by defeat, Coach Nick Thiel also expects plenty of trouble from the Pitt brigade tomorrow.

Only one change will mark the starting line-up against the Tartans today. Howard McWilliams will replace "Sandy" Kranich at center.

Women in Sports

By CAROLINE TYSON Intra-mural sports will start in Rec Hall Monday night at 7 and extend until 10 o'clock. Teams competing in the initial contests will be posted in Mac Hall lobby and in the W.A.A. office today.

W.A.A. points are furnishing the indoor sportswomen with wide variety and increasing opportunities toward numerals, blazers, or loving cups. Points will be given for Monday Rec Hall attendance, providing the hours spent there are not phys.
