

Between The Lions

ders and Niek Zochowski, are back in school again. . . . After bidding for years for recognition as a college boxing referee, Chet Smith, sports ed. of the Pittsburgh Press, who was to have worked some of the fights here, had to give up the job because he was assigned to cover the Pittsburgh Pirates in winter training at Catalina Island. . . . Lew Shollenberger, sophomore 125-pound wrestler, has something to live up to. His father was a Lion matman in '11, '12, and '13, capturing the team in the latter year. . . . The winter track meet disclosed some good material, among others a dash man who signs his name on the registration banks as Adam Stanislaus Dominick Bartholomew Kalmanowicz. We're thankful they only use last names in the box scores. . . . And speaking of names, Leo's real surname is Hauck. He was billed Houck on a boxing program in his early fistie days and that version stuck.

at 15-to-8. Lawther's five stepped up their scoring pace and at the half the Mountaineers with twenty-one points had but a two-point lead. In the early part of the second half, West Virginia held a 27-to-21 margin which the Lions cut to 32-to-29. With two minutes remaining, Corbin, Jack Goetz and Stan D'Orazio each scored a field goal to determine the final score. Goetz was high score with seventeen points while Michoff trailed him with five field goals and two foul shots.

Faculty Represented by 162 Various Colleges, Universities

Penn State's 690 resident faculty got their undergraduate degrees at 162 colleges and universities in the United States and Europe. In a survey compiled by the Collegian, it was found, that of this number, 152 professors, assistant professors, instructors, and graduate assistants were graduated from this college. Cornell has contributed nineteen faculty members to lead all other schools except State. Columbia and the University of Illinois have each sent fifteen graduates to teach here. Others who have given us ten or more of their graduates are Ohio State and the University of Minnesota, each with twelve; the University of Pennsylvania, eleven; and the University of Michigan, ten. Our neighbor, Bucknell, has supplied us with only three faculty members. All of the leading agriculture and engineering colleges of the country are represented. Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, the "big three" among schools of higher learning, have sent us only six, five,

Debaters To Feature Parliamentary Session

The first parliamentary session on the campus this year will be held in the Home Economics auditorium on Monday night at 8 o'clock, when the Penn State and University of Pittsburgh debaters will lead a discussion on the question, "Resolved: that Congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry." Fred L. Young '37 and J. Edwin Matz '38 will represent Penn State and uphold the affirmative side of the question. Open discussion from the floor will follow the introductory speeches, and an audience vote will be taken on the motions presented by each side. Prof. Joseph F. O'Brien, coach of the men's debating team, will act as chairman. On February 25, the men's debating team will meet the Seton Hill women's team in a split team debate on the subject, "Resolved: that bridge does more harm than good." This will be the first time that this subject has been debated on this campus.

Campus Data Sought For College Archives

A campus-wide campaign for miscellaneous printed matter and pictures relating day-by-day activities of the College, its faculty and students, has been inaugurated by the College Library, Willard P. Lewis, librarian, announced yesterday. Posters, tickets, programs, menu cards, schedules, instruction sheets, rules and regulations, building and room plans, and other such seemingly trifling material is being solicited from the student body. Students willing to contribute such material, whether in loose form or in the form of scrapbooks, are asked to send it to the librarian's office. Such material frequently tells the story of a college period even more graphically than the files of the more formal publications, Mr. Lewis claims. All material collected will be housed in the archives pertaining to the College.

Library Acquires New Books for Collection

The College Library has recently received several acquisitions which strengthen its various collections. One of the few remaining sets of "Sabin's Dictionary of Books Relating to America" has been added to the history group. The P.S. Science club donated $85.50 to the library. Prof. Henry W. Popp, associate professor of botany, in donating the money stipulated that it will be devoted to the purchase of the writings of the world famous scientists not now in the library. Four items were recently added to the Priestley collection, two by gift from the New York State Library and two by purchase. The library's Priestley holdings are being checked with the other famous Priestley collection in America belonging to Yale University.

World's Fair Building Plans Put on Display

Original designs for an applied arts building for the 1939 New York World's Fair are on display in the exhibition gallery of the department of architecture this week. The designs are the work of professional architects. The division of fine arts is also exhibiting twenty water color drawings made by students at the Payette undergraduate center at Uniontown. During the last half of February, fifty 18th century Japanese prints from the Metropolitan museum of New York City, will be exhibited. Watercolors by Frederique A. Counsel of Altoona, will be shown during the same period.

Balis Wins 2 National Architecture Awards

Joseph Balis, a graduate student in architecture, won two outstanding awards in national competitions during the past week. It was announced yesterday by Prof. B. K. Johnstone, head of the department of architecture. Balis copped a medal in the Emerson prize contest, sponsored annually in New York City by the Beaux Arts Institute of Design. Approximately 180 students from all parts of the country participated. He was also one of the ten men selected from a field of 300 to enter the second of three preliminary contests for the Paris Prize. The prize yields to the ultimate winner a stipend of $4,000 for two and one-half years of study in Paris.

C.A. To Hold Worship Ceremony on Sunday

To emphasize the Student World Day of Prayer, the Christian Association will hold a special worship service in the Hugh Beaver room in Old Main at 4:45 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. The plan is being promoted by the World Student Christian Federation. Several foreign students will participate in leading the worships. Their subjects will show the significance of this day of prayer, facts concerning the W.S.C.F., and the relationship of groups and individuals on this campus to the organization.

Vocational Guide Series Available

Wagner Announces Acquisition Of Research Monographs For LA Students

Dr. Charles C. Wagner, administrative assistant to the dean of the School of the Liberal Arts, announced that the students in the various liberal arts curriculae were invited to room 12, South Liberal Arts building, to review the series of vocational pamphlets which are available. The Institute of Research has published a series of monographs under the title, "Chose Your Life Work." This material deals with the various occupations allied with the liberal arts courses and covers the vocations in regard to analysis of personal qualifications, educational background, value of an avocation, and a summary of each career.

Liberal Arts Fields Reviewed The phases of Liberal Arts which are described in the publications include accountancy, advertising, banking, book-store operation, commercial and industrial art, commerce and trade association secretaryship, consular and foreign trade service, criminology, diplomacy, dramatic art, government service, and hotel management.

Also the careers of industrial and personnel work, insurance, investment banking, journalism, laboratory, technician, law, librarianship, manufacturing, merchandising, music, private and social secretary, publishing, restaurant and tea-room operation, salesmanship, social work, statistical work, and teaching are adequately reviewed.

These national surveys cover both the attractive and unattractive sides, the opportunities at the start, source of income, average earning, maximum earnings, and a word picture of the typical day's activities.

U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye says:
"I enjoy the comfort a light smoke gives my throat"

"I have smoked Luckies off and on ever since my first term in the Senate 11 years ago, and I have always enjoyed their taste and the feeling of comfort and safety a light smoke gives my throat. I have done a great deal of public speaking, on the floor of the Senate, over the radio and at conferences. Necessarily this results in a strain on the voice. So naturally, in smoking, I have to think of my throat—and I have found that a light smoke is suitable to my throat."

Gerald P. Nye
HON. GERALD P. NYE
U. S. SENATOR FROM NORTH DAKOTA

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Senator Nye's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.
