7 Named To Women's Honorary Fraternity

Sigma Delta Epsilon, the graduate women's scientific honorary, recently initiated seven women who are working for their master's degree in science. Following the ceremony, a banquet was held at the Nittany Lion Inn at which Dr. Helen B. Owens discussed "Women in Mathematics."

Ruth Everett, Marjorie C. Green, Adelaide A. Haggerty, Catherine H. Logan, Henrietta E. MacCoshie, Anne T. O'Brien, and Charlotte S. Schweitzer were initiated. These women have been chosen because of their high standards and excellent achievements in research work. To be eligible for membership they must be studying botany, chemistry, zoology, physics, or mathematics.

Dr. Julia M. Haber, president of the organization, will entertain the new initiates in her home on Saturday afternoon.

High Schools Receive Invitations for Plays

The second annual one-act scholastic play tournament will be held here on May 1, Frank S. Neusbaum, of the division of dramatics, announced. Invitations have been sent to all secondary schools in the state.

Because only a limited number of plays can be staged in a single day, district eliminations will be arranged if the entry list becomes too large. A board of at least three judges will criticize each play by mail.

Each contesting school will be expected to pay the royalty fee on the play plus traveling expenses, but the division of dramatics will provide the required scenery, furniture, and lighting.
