Summer Collegian Celebrates 20th Volume of Publication

Published for the first time on June 30, 1916, the Summer Collegian marks its 20th year of publication this summer. During that period there were three years that the paper was not published.

The first copy was of four pages, each of which was one-half the size of the present paper. The subscription rate was 25 cents while single copies sold for five cents. J. O. Lawrence and J. F. Harvey were publishers of the paper while A. O. Vorse served as editor.

Among the stories found in the first issue was one stating that McAllister Hall had been closed for the summer for alterations and would reopen the following year as a women's dormitory instead of a men's hall. A total of 782 students were registered for the session, which was an increase of 207 over the previous year. The last issue that year listed the names of the students enrolled.

The following year the paper was edited by students enrolled in the journalism course (English K) and the instructor served as the editor. The work was required in the course. The paper was a losing proposition both years and consequently was not published in 1917.

The following year, both students and faculty felt the Collegian was badly needed and an attempt to resume publication was made. The paper was made an all-College publication with an aim to cover all events on the campus. It was changed from a Wednesday to a Thursday publication and was published by G. S. Wykoff who remained in charge for several years. In 1921 the subscription rate had reached the sum of 50 cents and a vigorous fight was waged for the paper.

Since that time, there have been two years that the paper wasn't published. In 1934, the staff was forced to suspend issue before the Summer Session was ended. After that, the Summer Session office gave its support and sanction and the finances were placed in the hands of the Student Union.

In stating the original purpose of the Summer Collegian, the editorial of the first issue read as follows:

"The Summer Collegian, a weekly newspaper of six issues, will be published under the auspices of the Pennsylvania State College during the Summer Session for teachers. It is supported by private interests who are bearing the financial uncertainties of the enterprise. Neither the College nor any of its employees will participate in the earnings or losses as the case may be.

"The movement to establish permanently the Summer Collegian as the official news organ of the Summer Session has the approval and support of the State College authorities. Official supervision is given to the newspaper by a representative of the institution and he assumes complete responsibility for all matter entering the news columns."

Mansion Donated as New Home For Dubois Undergraduate Center

DuBois Mansions, one of the show-spots of the city of DuBois, has been made available to house the DuBois Undergraduate Center of the Pennsylvania State College. It was announced today by David B. Pugh, director of Arts and Science Extension and supervisor of undergraduate centers of the Pennsylvania State College.

Included is a large tract of ground, beautifully landscaped, and two buildings, one of which contains approximately 30 rooms. The smaller of the two buildings will be remodelled for a science hall while the larger one will be the main building. A WPA project will begin within three weeks and when completed, there will be available many class rooms, a stage and an assembly room with a capacity of 200.

Last year the Misses Carolyn and Sara DuBois enrolled for a night course in Spanish and upon the completion of their course, spent some time in Mexico. The contact established at the school developed a friendly feeling of confidence in the work done there and their desires to see the work progress resulted in their deeding the property to the DuBois board of education for use as a college center.

Mr. Pugh explained that in addition to serving the regular freshmen and sophomore students, the new quarters will better enable the extension service to serve the varied adult needs in the DuBois area. Plans are already under way for conducting a series of courses for the American Institute of Bankers and dramatic, musical and literary groups will also be served.

Trip to Cave 1st Excursion For Summer

Group To Visit Penn's Cave Tomorrow Afternoon

Tour On Monday Goes To Alexander Caverns

The first of the Summer Sessions excursions, under the direction of Prof. William R. White, will leave from in front of the auditorium for Penn's Cave at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The second of these excursions is scheduled for Monday of next week, when two trips will be made to the Alexander Caverns. The first will leave from in front of the Auditorium at 8 a. m. and the second at 1:30 p. m. Free transportation will be provided for a limited number. Admission to Penn's Cave is 75 cents while a reduced rate of 40 cents admission will be charged at the Alexander Caverns.

Directions Given

Penn's Cave is 18 miles east of State College and may be reached by crossing Nittany Mountain to Centre Hall and then turning east on Route 95. The cave is five miles from Centre Hall and located only a short distance from the main route.

Alexander Caverns are located near Lewistown. They may be reached by driving on Route 322 from State College and turning off near Milroy. Those desiring to take their own cars should arrange to arrive at the caverns between 9 and 3 o'clock.

Picturesque Caverns

Penn's Cave, one of the state's most picturesque caverns, is a large subterranean cave, formed by the disintegration of the limestone rock. Trips through the cavern are made by motor boat and require about 40 minutes. The cavern is one mile in length and the boat passes through an artificial tunnel at the end of the cave, turns about on a lake, and then returns to the entrance where the trip was started.

The Alexander Caverns, opened several years ago, are a series of wet and dry caves. They are especially noted for the formations of stalactite and stalagmite, which range in color from a pure white to a deep chocolate brown.

Registration Below Last Year's Total

Figures Not Complete; Late Registrants Not Included

327 Attended College At Past Intersession

A total of only 2,531 students have enrolled for the Main Session of the Summer Sessions, according to figures released yesterday by William S. Hoffman, College registrar. The total is not complete since it does not include students in the forestry, mine, geology, and surveying camps nor all of the late registrants.

Registration figures to date this year are lower than the totals for either of the last three years. In 1936 the total enrollment was 2,793, the preceding year, 2,559, and in 1934, 2,570.

A total of 23 students enrolled for the courses at the Nature Camp and more than 70 at the French Institute. Registering in the High School Speech Group are 14 high school students and graduates.

550 at Altoona

Five hundred and fifty have unrolled for the Summer Session at Altoona, where registration was held last Saturday. Last year 152 were registered there while 17 were enrolled at Johnstown. No students are registered at Johnstown this year.

The registration of students who attended the Intersession that closed on June 25 reached 327, which is one more than the number registered here last year.

Whitney To Talk At 8 on Tuesday

Address in 110, Home Economics Building, Open to Public; First of Series

Dr. Gerald D. Whitney, deputy state superintendent of public instruction of Harrisburg, will speak on "A Perspective on Vocational Education" in Room 110, Home Economics building, from 8 to 9 o'clock on Tuesday night. The meeting is open to all who are interested.

Dr. Whitney taught for several years in the Pittsburgh public schools. He was later made director of vocational education in the Altoona public schools, served as supervisor of industrial education in the State Department of Public Instruction and as director of vocational education at the University of Pittsburgh.

Works With Dr. Ade

Dr. Whitney is thoroughly familiar with the educational needs of the State, both in the field of vocational education and general education. In close cooperation with Dr. Lester K. Ade, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, he is engaged in constructively furthering the cause of education in Pennsylvania.

The meeting on Tuesday night is the first of a series scheduled for the Summer Session. The series was planned to enable students attending the Summer Sessions to become better acquainted with leaders in the field of education.

500 Permits Granted To Summer Students

The campus patrol announced today that approximately 500 summer session students have received automobile permits from the College, entitling them to operate cars in the College vicinity for the present sessions.

This number, from a student body of approximately 2,530, is high compared with the 600 permits issued during the regular sessions from a total of 5,600 students.

Because of the number of cars in use on the campus at present, the patrol has announced that parking on the main campus driveway will be forbidden during the day. Student parking areas have been designated as the Atherton street area, back of the Chemistry Annex, and the stock judging pavilion.
