

France To Award Prize to Student

Valuable Books To Go To "Most Deserving" Ambassador Had Planned Visit

The French Government will award a valuable volume to the "most deserving" student attending the French Institute here, it was announced today in a communication received by Prof. Frederic Ernst, director of the Institute, from Jules Henry, Charge d'Affaires of the French Embassy, at Washington, D. C.

The volume, work of Sainte-Beuve, noted critic of French literature, is entitled "Galerie de Portraits Historiques," and will be presented to a student designated by the 14 Institute faculty members.

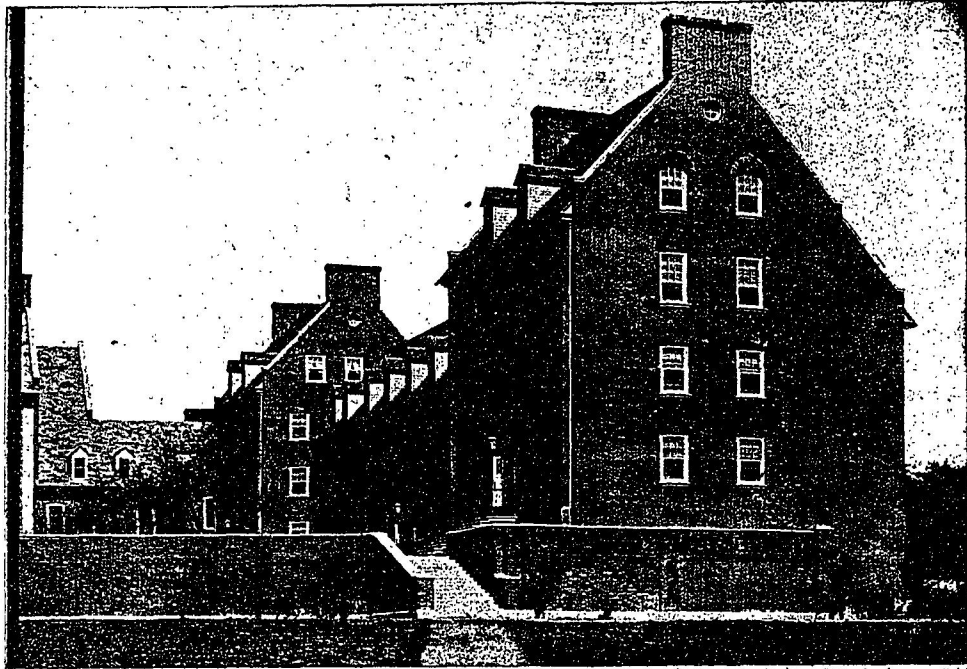

In addition to this award, two medals to as many students will be presented by "Alliance Francaise," international organization whose purpose is the furtherance of French education throughout the world. The winners of these will also be designated by the faculty members.

Another prize will be awarded to the student who has made the most progress in French study during the session. A student committee will choose the recipient of the award. Members of the committee are John Mangano, Margaret Hum, Marguerite Laughlin, Ruth Ernst, and Mayzee Regan.

Professor Ernst stated that the French ambassador had planned to visit the Institute this month but that the fall of the Blum cabinet last month made his return to Paris imperative.

Tomorrow night Prof. Mathurin Dondo, of the University of California, is scheduled to give an illustrated lecture on "The Cathedral of Reims" at Irwin Hall, Institute headquarters.

Boys Should Meet Date Expenses, Students Say

"Should Girls Prior to Actual Engagement Meet Their Own Expenses When on Dates?" Eleven of the students enrolled in the All-State High School Group say "No." Two say "Yes."

The most popular forms of dating are (1) at home (2) movies (3) dances and (4) lunches, according to the high school students. They also decided that $1.04 was the average amount spent on a "movie date."

Asked what they considered the most generally useful subject in the high school curriculum, the group voted 10-3 for English, placing composition, grammar and spelling before history, one for problems of democracy and one for mathematics. History ranked second as a whole and the applied arts placed third.

The group also decided that a combined program of intramural and interscholastic athletics should be carried out in high school with the intramural program in most high schools enlarged.

Considering social accomplishments, the group decided that the two most valuable were ball room dancing and bridge, with horse back riding, swimming, tennis and golf placing in the order listed.

All of the results were the outcome of group discussions. The class, which consists of high school students averaging 16 years of age, is one of the two of its kind in the country, the other being found at Iowa State College. The discussion groups are especially unique, Prof. Joseph F. O'Brien, of the division of speech and director of the group, explained.

During the last week of the session a contest and group discussion on the subject of clothes will be held. A new passenger airplane weighing more than six tons can lift 6000 lbs. more than its own weight and fly at a speed of 200 miles an hour.

Classes Will Give 8 One-Act Plays

Division of Dramatics Groups Have Three on Monday, Three Tuesday

Two classes of the Division of Dramatics—a group in play production and a graduate class in direction—will present six one-act plays in the Little Theatre, Old Main on Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 o'clock.

Tickets for both performances are available at Prof. Arthur C. Cloos' office on the fourth floor of Old Main. All are welcome to those on hand.

On Monday night, the three plays scheduled are "A Little Learning," "For the Love of Michael," and "A Paternity Case."

Tuesday night, "In Mrs. Saturday's Shop," "Everybody's Husband," and "I'm Not Complaining" are the productions. Reason for the two performances is the large number enrolled in the courses.

Steel Door Guards Famous Spanish Souvenirs in Chapel

Three miles to Spain? Impossible! Yet it is true! A real Spanish chapel, imported years ago, stands on the estate of Col. Theodore D. Boal near Boalsburg. Placed in a strong well-barred building this treasure house of art, history, and sentiment takes one into the heart of old Spain in the days before Columbus.

The entrance to the chapel is through a heavy-gauge steel door, behind which is the original door, now protected from the weather. A heavy silver cross, flanked by candlesticks, dominates the altar. Above the altar one's eye is attracted to the religious pictures which are framed in heavy gold in a manner similar to the Baroque.

On the north side of the room an oil painting of the death of Columbus showing his last few friends attending him, is both colorful and forceful. Another scene of a religious nature across the room balances it. Against the wall are placed the embroidered chairs used by the family during services.

Original manuscripts of many of America's famous explorers are contained within the heavy walls of the chapel. These works, written in beautiful penmanship, have proven an invaluable source of information about the early adventurers in this country, the attaches to the Spanish Embassy often visiting in Boalsburg to inspect these documents. Many of the accounts are very hard to translate as they were written in Old Spanish.

Visitors to the chapel are not encouraged. Those who have been fortunate enough to gain admission feel for a short while that they have turned the clock back 500 years and are living in what was once the peaceful land of olive trees.

Wegs' Hold Picnic At Nature Study Camp

The "Wegs," an organization of the wives of graduates students in education, held a picnic on Tuesday afternoon at the Nature Study Camp. A short hike was taken through the Alan Segar forest and a tour was made of the camp, while a picnic supper served in the mess hall, completed the day.

The next meeting of the "Wegs" will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hurrell on Hamilton avenue at 3 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Albert K. Sundberg heads the committee in charge of entertainment.

Johnson Delivers 1st Of Thursday Lectures

Delivering the first of a series of Thursday evening lectures, Dr. Burgess Johnson, of Union College spoke last Thursday night on "Wild Authors I Have Met." The auditorium was well filled to hear the speaker discuss his experiences as an educator and editor.

Dr. Johnson began his career in journalism working on a newspaper under Lincoln Steffens. Kicked "upstairs" to the Putnam Publishing firm, he soon attained the honorary position of "literary advisor to the company." While with the Putnams, Dr. Johnson learned to know the famous literary figures, including Mark Twain and Elbert Hubbard. Later friendships included O. Henry, Arnold Bennett, John Masfield, and others.

The speaker's personal observations of these men were the spice to his talk. Mark Twain's flowing mustache and excessive profanity, O. Henry's moodiness, Bennett's impassiveness and "high squeaky voice and Masfield's modesty, all were discussed by Dr. Johnson.

Stevens, Ferguson, Reede Favor CIO in Faculty Poll

"What is your opinion of the C. I. O. and its present drive to recruit the steel and automobile industries?"

This was the question asked of various faculty members throughout the week by the Summer Collegian in an effort to determine the trend of faculty opinion on the activities of the growing Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis.

Following are some of the faculty views: Prof. Sylvester K. Stevens, of the department of history and political science: "I feel that industrial unionism as represented by the C. I. O. is the type of labor movement most apt to succeed and be beneficial in the United States. The development of a powerful labor movement is one of the first essentials of our modern democracy."

"In its early stages the C. I. O. will inevitably be somewhat irresponsible and unorthodox in methods and actions. This should not lead to a hasty demand for regulations of unions. The time for this will come when labor obtains some equality of bargaining power with capital."

Dr. John H. Ferguson, of the department of history and political science: "The emergence of a strong labor movement was long overdue. It was a very real necessity to counterbalance large economic groups and it is inevitable that under the present circumstances there should be excesses on the part of both contesting groups in the form of demands and violence. But this should not blind us to the fact that stability and higher standards of living can come to the masses only through one agency action of organized labor."

Arthur H. Reede, of the department of economics and sociology: "I approve of the type of organization which the CIO advocates, namely the industrial type as opposed to the craft type. However, at the present time it would be very much better for the interests of labor if the split between the two could be avoided.

"Criticism of the CIO in the public press as Communist, etc., is entirely unfounded. The leaders of the CIO follow essentially the same methods as those of the A. F. of L., and with exception of advocating industrial unionism have essentially the same objectives. One reason the CIO has received as much criticism as it has, has been that its energies have been directed into too many channels at one time.

"It is unquestionably true in isolated instances that individuals who are members of the CIO affiliates have carried offensive weapons and used abusive epithets. It is doubtful, however, that they have shown any greater tendency to violence than earlier labor organizations or the employer associations with which they are in conflict. It would be well, of course, to legislate in the interests of a smaller amount of violence on both sides of the labor struggle."
