

Lion Grid Yearlings Defeat Plebes, 19-0, In Mud To Close Season

Peters, Patrick Score On Long 3rd Quarter Dashes; White Tallies In 1st Period

Victory Marks Cubs' 3rd In 6 Starts; White's Punting Drives Middies Back Deep Into Own Territory

By SAL SALA

Penn State's yearling gridlers proved themselves true thoroughbred mudders Saturday, defeating the Navy Plebes, 19-0, in a thick sea of mud at Annapolis. It marked the season's finale for both teams and State's third win against as many losses.

A heavy, steady 24-hour downpour on Friday transformed the playing field into a quagmire through which players slid and splashed, the Midshipment coming out second best. Numerals on the jerseys were barely discernible after four plays were run and the managers were tearing on and off the field with the rosin.

Lions Score on Long Runs

Treacherous as the footing was, State and Navy backs slithered through the line to reel off long gains. Malcolm, Navy back, crashed off left tackle, shook off would-be tacklers, and waded 50 yards before Wade Mori cut him down from the rear on State's 30 early in the third quarter. Later in the period, Blount picked up 20 yards to the State's 26 on a fake reverse that completely fooled State.

The Lions were more fortunate in that their long canters resulted in points. In an exchange of punts that opened the second half, Chuck Peters snared one of Blount's kicks on the Plebe's 45-yard line. Charging down the center field, Peters slipped through two knots of Middies, cut to the sidelines, received effective blocking to cross the line standing up.

Receiving the succeeding kick-off, Navy passed on the first play. Johnny Patrick, State's blocking back, intercepted the ball on the Plebes' 40, picked up interference and sprinted over the goal unmolested.

State Takes Early Lead

The Nittany Lions chalked up seven points in the opening four minutes of play. With the ball on their 20-yard stripe after a running play lost two yards, the Plebes called on Blount to punt. State's forward wall crashed through and Abe Karlin, State center, blocked the punt. Parsons, right end, recovered for State on the nine from where Craig White sped around left end on a reverse to score. Patrick place-kicked the extra point.

State twice threatened in the second quarter but the power that drove them within striking distance suddenly left them and Navy took possession to kick out of danger. Chalking up first downs in one or two plays, the yearlings marched 60 yards to a first down on the Middies' 10 in seven plays. But here, as in the Pitt, Cornell, and Syracuse tilts, goal-shyness overtook them and fourth down found the ball three yards short of a touchdown.

Lions Stopped on One-Foot Line
An exchange of punts drove Navy back on its 34-yard line with State in possession of the ball. Peters passed to Vargo who lateraled to Beahm just before he was tackled. Beahm continued to the 10 where he was knocked out of bounds by Blount.

However, the Lions were penalized to the Navy 30 on a holding penalty called by the referee on the 15-yard line. Crowell leaped high to grasp Beahm's pass on the four but in three plunges, the ball rested on the one-foot line. Referee Wilkinson started to raise his hands as White cracked into the line from the one-yard line, but he lowered them as Craig was pushed back. He placed the ball just short of the double line.

The Plebes were forced to play a defensive game during the first half, continually finding themselves with their backs to the wall as a result of State drives and White's punting. Blount kicked 12 times in the first his hard, timely blocking and vicious tackling was instrumental in stopping Jim Meade and the Maryland Terps Saturday.

half, seven of them on first down, Navy not caring to risk a fumble with the soggy pigskin.

White Out-Punts Blount

White clearly out-punted Blount in the first three periods. He placed his kicks out of reach of the safety man, the ball rolling for extra yardage into Navy territory and preventing the safety man from returning them. His punts never failed to set Navy back into its own territory and save his team from possible scoring. Crowell took up the punting duties in the last period.

The Lions opened the second half with the intention of protecting their slim 7-0 lead, and made no effort to run or pass. While the Midshipmen vainly attempted to blast the Cubs' line, State called on White's toe to boot the Middies back into their territory.

The Middies staged three offenses that carried them beyond State's 20-yard line. The first of these came after Blount's 20-yard romp on a fake reverse to State's 26-yard line. Four plays gave them a first down on the 16 but here the Lions held and White punted over the safety man's head to Navy's 20.

The others came in the last period and were stopped on the 19 and 22-yard lines respectively.

Probe S. C. Taprooms

Operatives of the State Liquor Control Board made simultaneous visits on State College's taprooms at about 11 o'clock Saturday night, at the height of the annual houseparty celebration. Operatives termed their visit a "routine investigation" as they checked on licenses and the ages of patrons of the town's establishments.

Earthquake Recorded

The seismograph at the school of mineral industries at the College recorded an earthquake at 6:14 a.m. yesterday morning. The instrument recorded a disturbance for about three quarters of an hour. Distance of the focus was about 3,300 miles from State College, and it is assumed to have been in Alaska.

150-POUND FOOTBALL IN YOUR COLLEGE?

At Princeton, Yale, Rutgers, Penn, Lafayette, Cornell and other schools a new kind of football is coming to the fore. It's fast, spectacular. You can't play on these bantam teams if you weigh more than 150 pounds. Speed and brains count more than weight. With no big stadiums, no big training tables, no big injuries, the pigskin peewees have made their sport most exciting to watch, most popular to play. Let Arnold Nicholson tell you the story of midget football, and why it's sweeping the colleges, in Little Men—Here's How.
