SEX LIFE ON THE RHINE

ON THE FRONT PAGE of today's Collegian appears an interview with Georg Ernst Stern, a German native, now graduate assistant in architectural engineering. which includes a comparison of sex-conscious America with Hitler-conscious Germany.

In regard to Mr. Stern's assertion that "there is much less indulgence in amorousness (in Germany) than is found in American colleges," it would be interesting to ask him what he thinks causes Germany's enormous number of illegitimate children? Also it would be enlightening to know what technique the Germans use to meet Hitler's demand for babies, and more babies. Toward what end are Hitler's love camps devoted?

Mr. Stern, in viewing the American college student as he does, does not pay high tribute to the German business man when he says that the two are parallel. He goes on to say that his sex comparisons hold, as well, for the German and American people generally. Thus, he compares the finished product, the German business man, with the American college student, and says that they are equal.

But hold on-something still better is coming. He says; "The American student does anything he wants to do; the German student can do anything he wants to do, but there are many things he doesn't want to do.' Well, well, well, Mr. Stern. We wonder why?

DESERVES YOUR SUPPORT

ANNUALLY THE ARTISTS Course renders an invaluable service to the culture-conscious students of Penn State. With the College situated in an isolated community, two hundred miles from first rate drama, the leading music halls, and the opera, it is difficult for the students to obtain the advantages of the fine arts available to the students attending colleges in metropolitan areas other than through the unsatisfactory static-ridden radics.

Through the Artists Course the College yearly brings to the campus first class artistic talent because it is felt that there is a definite need for such a cultural supplement to any college curriculum. Until 1932 the Artists Course was produced through the efforts of the department of music and the Christian association. After a lapse until 1931, as a result of a request from the student body the College took over the management of the series and placed a representative All-College committee in charge. A fund was also created by action of the Board of Trustees which insured the Course against a deficit. This made it possible for the committee to secure more expensive talent without the threat of going in the hole.

Many outstanding names and organizations have graced the Artists Course programs from year to year. From the stage can be found the names of Cornelia Otis Skinner, and the famous Hedgerow players. Such leading singers as Lawrence Tilbet, Allan Jones, Richard Crooks, John Charles Thomas, Alexander Gray. and Greta Struchgold have appeared here. Instrumentalists Albert Spalding, Georges Enesco, and Charles Naegele, and organizations such as the National Symphony, the Cleveland Symphony, and the New York estras are other headliners. Trudi Schoon and her comic ballet, Shan-kar's Hindu ballet, and the Jooss European ballet are the world's leading interpreters of the dance.

The greatest service of all those that the Artists Course performs is that it makes a high quality of talent, witness the above names, available at a price the average student can meet. Despite the fact that the prices asked by artists have increased 25, 30, and even 35 per cent over last year, five numbers of the high standard set by the Course, have been secured and with only a slight rise in price.

The vacationing student around Times Square at Thanksgiving time will pay as much to see such performance on the stage or in a music hall as he probably would pay for all five numbers here. No other student activity is more deserving of student support than the Artists Course,-A. G. M.

MORE PEACE LEADERS like Philip Jacob, we ask after having talked with this Yale graduate, a personable and sensible young man, whose attitude toward current day topics indicates that common sense and logic is the approach to pursue in the democratic search for methods of promoting peace.

CAMPUSEER

Old Sol Himself:

Pete Olexy is still going strong-at least on the wise-cracks. While the team was in New York for the ICI-A's, Herb Hazzard tried Pete's old trick of posing as a newspaper reporter in a telephone interview. At about 8:30 one morning Olexy rolled over in hed and answered the phone.

"I'm a reporter," a voice said, "I'm representing the Herald,"

Unfortunately, Pete recognized the voice.

"Herald?" he said. "Are you sure it's not the New York Sun-getting me up so early?"

And Where Do You Live:

Russ Tryon is a sophomore landscape architect. and he was busying himself in the upper parts of Main Engineering the other day, when who should walk in but Prexy Hetzel.

Herzel launched a conversation: "How are you getting along. Do you like your work. It's a fine day, et:. . . .'

Said Tryon: "Why are you so interested. Do you live around here?"

Hetzel replied: "Why yes, I live right next door," By this time the guffaws from the boys and girls standing around were too visible for the reparter to continue.

Land-caper Tryon became exceedingly red.

It reminds us of the gent who tried to sell Bob Higgins a program for Saturday's game, and the next in line who tried to sell him a ticket.

A Dog's Life:

First it was does running rampant on New Beaver Field during games. Then it was a dog fight in the Bull Pen. Now it seems that a certain dog has been finding its way into Soc. 1 classes for the lectures.

The lectures, we discover, have reached the point where sex, marriage, etc., are being discussed.

Mistaken Identity:

The freshman football club was wending its weary but content way home after shellacking the Navy, 19-The usual term in connection with the Navy is "sink," but we'll let it go this time.

The boys stopped in Amity Hall, this way fron Harrisburg, ostensibly for a bite to cat.

Open-mouthed and interested no end was another

Finally he trudged up and bolted it out: "Are you boys the Notre Dame football team?"

Collegiana:

There is a story going around town about the Beta who was a wee bit that way the other night, and had a devil of a time with those windows that open onto the front porch from the Beta living room.

It seems that he couldn't get it straight when he was in the house and when he was on the porch. Suddealy he felt ill, threw open the windows, and-well, he was on the porch.

Also, there is the tale about Lucille Giles, who ran across something she wished to know about one day. Avrange properly the initials A. B. M. and T. for a similar incident.

It is said some of the boys are going to petition Ike Gilbert, the ticket man, for a scating arrangement for New Beaver Field for next houseparty-but it's to be

It has been reported that the local chapter of the five and ten cent store system sold a ray and a half of those ten-cent imitation wedding rings over houseparty week-end.

Stern expressed admiration of State College as a town. "German univer-sities are all located in cities, and although a city presents the best cultural environment for a student, the students of Penn State enjoy all of the natural advantages of the country, plus a high standard of living," he said.

Stern was graduated from the Uniersity of Munich and since then has raveled in Spain and the United tates. He attended the University of cansas before coming to Penn State.

'Fear' Policy Of Japs, Groff Says

But There's No Hope For Japan Even If She Wins, Lingnan Professor Concludes

"Apparently, the Japanese policy is to put fear into Chinese hearts every-where so as to attempt to force the Manking government to terms," Prof. Weidman "Daddy" Groff stated in a letter to Dean Watts from Linguan University, China, where he is head of the Agricultural school.

"But," he added, "I predict they will

"Daddy" Groff related his experiences of meeting young soldier boys and lenders in the Kwangsi province. In this undeveloped open country, the plow-shares were beaten into swords and the life of youth given in defense of the fatherland.

As Professor Groff sees the situa-tion, "there is no ray of hope for Ja-pan, even if she wins the present war, pan, even it saie wins one present was largely because she apparently does not have the welfure of all mankind in view. China, however, has the broader outlook of international life and world brotherhood. The present acrifices certainly cannot be in vain.
