Varsity Smothers Freshmen Gridders

A weak punt enabled Peters and Ickes to alternate at carrying the ball over for another score, with the latter plowing through from the three. Briggs' pass interception and run for a touchdown was called back when the Varsity was detected for clipping. However, White and Peters combined efforts for the sixth tally of the half.

Easy For Third Team

A third string Blue team found the going just as smooth for them and this crew got their quota of three touchdowns per quarter. Bob Hojn, Vic Gentilman, Sam Kopach, and Ott Wuenschel worked behind Angelo Conte Lloyd Parsons, Wade Mori, Leon Gajek, Mike Creak, Wallace Fation and G.J. Radcliffe.

Shortly after the second half kickoff, Hojn intercepted a Cub pass and ran to the five. On fourth down Hojn flipped a flat pass to Conte for the six points. Another pass interception by Gajek with a lateral to Giamantoni went for a touchdown only to have a second clipping penalty put he ball in play on the 15. Rollins circled right end for the score.

Vargo Recovers Fumble

Vargo's recovery of a Fresh fumble gave Rollins a chance to tally his third count; just before the third quarter ended and run the total to 59.

Whitey Kinnard, Dick Ewalt, Joe Coeca, and Ickes went into the Varsity backfield and till another pass interception gave Coeca an opportunity to dash over for touchdown No. 10.

Peters tallied the sixteenth on a double reverse, and an end-around to Vargo battled McAndrews' gang for the final touchdown of the hectic afternoon.

a pair who looked good even in defeat.

In other words, just as it seems to be the case in every one of Penn State's football opponents this season, Maryland has been blessed by the return of experienced gridders, and added to the fact that they lost their first game, the Terrapins will show up here Saturday determined to spoil the opening of Penn State's 22nd grid season.

Administration, I have nothing to do with the carrying on of the work."

However, he added, "Hunter and Caldwell have done a lot of work under the Works Progress Administration programs and have built a school house at Philipsburg. I feel pretty confident that employment of architects such as they are is one of the best guarantees against irregularities."

Then he moved to the College's participation in the program.

"The College itself," said the Senator, "is being very active in the building contracts and has in its employ men of very high personal standing and of a great deal of ability who are in contact with these jobs every day and who, I am quite sure, would not hesitate to complain at once in the event that irregularities occurred."

"Not only that, there are a great many men of distinct personal capacity at the College who see this work in progress every day and I am quite sure would check quickly anything important that occurred."

"Consequently," he added, "I have my doubts as to whether anything has occurred in the construction at the College which is not exactly according to plans and specifications, and I doubt whether there is any work in the whole Authority program which is subject to more rigid inspection than the program at the College."

We Women

Most paradoxical news of the week is that women's organizations among dances in Mary Beaver White Hall, new recreation building for women, will be obliged to "cut the gym" for their affairs. There are no folding chairs in the hall, so an additional cost will be incurred in transporting them from other buildings.

Although Finances Atherton Hall seems completed to the minute detail, architects forgot that the girls might like to dance once in a while. An ultimatum has been delivered forbidding that carpets be rolled for dancers. They're tucking down the halls these days.

We still see no improvement in the phone system. Our patience is holding out, but one fraternity house that tried to call out for a doctor at 10:30 waited half an hour to get hold of an operator.

In explaining this situation, Robert Y. Sigworth, grounds and buildings said, "at present long distance calls get first preference, town calls second, and outgoing calls, by the women third."

The happiest thing to report is the noticeable improvement in dormitory meals. Three years ago there was nothing but complaint three times a day. There are few gumblyings heard these days except now and then at the noon hour.

We've noticed that those at the Dean's table have a hard time getting through the crowd at the dining room door in Mac Hall. How about a little patience, girls? Remember, too, that upperclassmen enter after the Dean and freshmen follow.

TNE Head Suggests Rush Code Changes

a method could be found to install such a system here."

A William Engel, Jr., '40, Theta Xi rushing chairman, made the following statement: "By deferring freshmen pledging until after the Thanksgiving recess, many of the problems arising in the camped rushing situation of the present would be avoided."

Indefinite Open House Periods

"Open House periods could continue indefinitely during the early part of the first semester and in formal contacts could be done away with. This would give the rushees and the fraternity men sufficient time to become well acquainted, and 'lead-piping' would be out."

"While the Interfraternity Council has made a definite step forward with the 1938 Rushing Code, they would do well to seriously consider delayed rushing."

Phi Delta Theta's rushing chairman, Rice F. Ryan, '39, suggested that an ideal type of code particularly at Penn State, should be one which deferred pledging until Thanksgiving or even later. "This would eliminate any need for rushing rules, as open rushing would prevail all fall," Ryan claimed.
