And A Second Later—Harry Stole It From Him

in the second period on State's own 40-yard line, with Harry moving to midfield before he was hauled down. On the next play, hammering Lloyd Ikes charged 50 yards down the gridiron for the Lions' fifth touchdown. Final score was 59-6, with Harrison accounting for three of the scores (Bethlehem Globe-Times Photo)

Class Of '32 Gives Gift To College For Old Main Project

Work To Start 'Within Reasonable Time;' Alumni Group Also Appropriates $2,000 For Library

A gift of $4,500 to launch the proposed mural project for Old Main "within a reasonable time" was presented to the College over the past week-end by the Class of 1932.

An additional $2,000—the approximate balance of the class fund—was appropriated to the Library as an endowment, "the interest of which is to be used annually for the purchase of books."

Gifts Acknowledged

The gifts were acknowledged officially by President Ralph D. Hetzel and will be presented to the Board of Trustees for its action at the next regular meeting.

The presentation, culminating more than 18 months of investigation, was made formally by Hugh R. (Ridge) Riley, Jr., chairman of the Class of 1932 Memorial Committee.

"On the basis of the return of postal cards from members of the class," Riley said in his communication to the president, "it seems that there is an overwhelming sentiment in favor of the action of the committee. I am, therefore, making this formal presentation of the Class of 1932 Memorial Fund to the College with the understanding that it be used for murals on the walls of Old Main and as an endowment fund for the purchase of books for the College Library."

The present status of the fund Riley pointed out, shows $4,111.42 on hand in cash or investments and $2,724.55 in "notes receivable," making a grand total of $6,835.97.

"The committee is willing to cooperate with the College," Riley said, "to the extent of assisting in the collection of overdue notes so that the full value of the fund can be turned over to the Board of Trustees for the desired project."

"It is understood that the amount now available ($4,111.42) is at the immediate disposal of the person or persons selected by the Board to carry out the mural project."

Must Be Sanctioned

In its final report last week, the committee said:

"It is understood that such murals (decorating the walls of the lobby of Old Main) are to be sanctioned by the Board of Trustees or such responsible persons to be selected by the Board, that the subject matter of the murals shall reflect the character, the tradition and the spirit of Penn State and shall therefore serve as an ever-living monument."

Lingnan Stops All Classes As Drive Starts

Women Students To Depart. No Notice Yet Received By Dean Watts

Lingnan University at Canton, China, for the last 27 years traditionally known here as "Penn State in China," suspended classes Thursday for an indefinite period and ordered all women students to leave the campus.

Dean Ralph L. Watts of the School of Agriculture, a member of the board of directors of Lingnan, as yet has had no official notice of the closing of the university, it was learned yesterday.

Lingnan is American owned but is leased by the American board of directors to the Chinese government of directors, acting for the Chinese government which helps support the university.

One source of American support of Lingnan is the College which annually gives to Lingnan all collections received in Sunday chapel services. During the last academic year, Penn State sent $2,697.47 to Lingnan, of which $1,940.45 came from chapel collections.

Dean of the School of Agriculture at Lingnan is G. Weidman Groff, Penn State '07, long known to students here as "Daddy" Groff. Lingnan and Penn State have up to the outset of the Sino-Japanese war exchanged students, but this year the plan was dropped because of impending danger in South China.

Poll Shows 38% Of Students Want War

Thirty-eight percent of Penn State students were somewhat disappointed by the peaceful settlement of European affairs. This was indicated by a campus survey conducted by Dr. William M. Lepley, assistant professor of psychology.

Members of Doctor Lepley's psychology 7 class asked 228 men and 67 women this question "Do you not, in a half-guilty sort of way, hope that war will break out in Europe?" This query was made before the climax of the foreign situation in an attempt to study the effect of propaganda upon college students.

Forty-four percent of the men expressed a desire to see war, while 36 per cent of the women voted for a peaceful settlement. The junior class was unique in that it led the number wanting war, with 56 per cent of its men and 14 per cent of its women admitting that they relished the prospect of a war. The freshmen decidedly didn't want a war, only 36 per cent of the men voting for a war, while women showed a 100 per cent will ingness for peace.

The people approached were also asked, in order to obtain other data as to background whether they had had relatives in the World War, whether on or both of their parents was foreign born, whether or not they were fraternity members, and to what class they belonged.
