assue of the Collegian containing Dean Warnock dance committee appointments had been released, two resignation-from the group were presented," Cent declared

Kent and Daniel Thomas Ji, were the men who resigned
The reason given for such action was that until the official notice only three or four of a committee of nine had been consulted as to whether or not they wished to serve on the committee; and only those three or four had even been notified of their appointment. "Presumably, then," Kent pointed resignation ingered, in the minder out, "some fear of widespread resignation ingered in the minder of the higher-ups of the clique, and the safest way to make against it was to display the names publicly beforehand"

Reason Not Understood
When two resignations did at ise, Kent and Daniel Thomas Ji

When two resignations did arise, When two resignations did arise, the officials replied to queries of clique members that they could understand no reason for such action since all members had been fully consulted previously, and had expressed a willingness to serve, Kent explained

Kent explained
"This was and can be proved an unmitigated falsehood, the resigning committeem a stated."
Attempting to deal with the withdrawals in such a way that news of them would not reach the rener all student population, the lique heads per maded Thomas to retain his post, Kent charged.

would be an unpleasant way out, for "it would mean a public admission of the fact that somewhere within the rank and file of the clique there was at least one dissenter, and it was too suggestive of the true fact—that a dissenting group evisted," the statement continued 'Kent questioned this policy of covering up a resignation and not tovering up a resignation and not appointing a replacement as being incoherent with the "clean poli-tics" platform instrumental in a 1941 Campus clique victory last

Consider Larger Problem

"May proposal to keep freshmen ont of fraternity houses for a year must be considered in connection with the much larger question of proper housing and supervision of all freshmen "Warnock asserted "When the College can provide a system of housing and supervision of a system of housing and supervision of the freshmen that will meet the minimum demands of parents without using fraternity houses, it think it is likely that the College will desire all freshmen to live under that system." Warnock added At the present time, because of the existence of a housing problem in town an expected increase of 400 men in freshman enrollment, next year, and an insufficient number of men's dormitories on campus, it is highly likely that such a system will not be adopted soon structure and system will not be adopted soon as severe will be moderate shocks."
