You can TYPEWRITE
through this board

It looks like a telephone switchboard—actually it's a Teletypewriter exchange switchboard. Through such boards—located in 160 cities and towns—already more than 11,000 subscribers to Teletypewriter service are being inter-connected.

Subscribers carry on 2-way typewritten communication across the street or across the continent. Whatever is typed on the sending machine is reproduced exactly, instantly, at the other end of the wire.

When you join the business world, you'll find many progressive companies use Teletypewriter service. Speeding the written word—as the telephone speeds the spoken word—it is one more Bell System contribution to business efficiency.

1929 Thus there is no ground for the common assumption that our country was over-expanded in capital equipment. "Vast potential demands alike for basic commodities and for conventional necessities exist in the unfilled wants of the masses of the people, both urban and rural. It would require but a moderate increase in the consumption of the millions whose standards of living, even in 1929, were below the requirements for health and efficiency, to absorb the full productive capacity of the nation. The trouble is clearly not lack of desire but lack of purchasing power."

The investigators declared that the United States had not reached a stage of economic development in which it is possible to produce more than the American people as a whole would like to consume. It was also brought out that actual production in 1929 was accomplished on an industrial work week averaging 51 hours. There had been no such increase in productive efficiency as to warrant a reduction of the working week to 30 hours without seriously curtailing production and lowering the American standard of living. This was based upon the assumption that all those whom we call employables were working. Yet today many millions are idle while nearly a sixth of our population receives power. Obviously then, we need social legislation, not because of human improvidence or ignorance, but because our economic organism is breaking down.

What is the answer to this recurrent dilemma? Is capitalism, as we have come to know it, in process of self-stagnation? Will we find some secret formula to bring about a more equitable and more economic distribution of purchasing power? While we are exploring the solutions to these problems social security can never be more than a buffer between subsistence and disaster to the great mass of our population.

Housing Facilities Will Be Discussed

A discussion to determine the needs of the college community in housing required by the planned increase in enrollment next year will be made by the Student Welfare Committee of the College. The committee will discuss both the present housing facilities and the future needs. Out of this and other discussions will come defini-

ite recommendations to the college administration on the numerical size of next year's enrollment. Dean Wainock indicated. Members of the committee are Prof. Warren B. Mack, chairman, Prof. Franklin C. Banner, Harold A. Everett and Ruth E. Graham, Dr. Joseph P. Ritenour, Dean Chalotte E. Ray, and Dean Wainock.
