WHAT GOES ON HERE?

LAST SEPTEMBER, approximately 6,800 students enrolled at the College for the current semester.

To all outward appearances, there was nothing peculiar about this group except for the fact that it represented the largest student body in the 75-year history of the College.

Among those 6,800, however, there was one student who was destined within eight weeks to become the victim of one of the most unfair and most indefensible tricks this College could ever perpetrate.

Now this student is a member of the junior class who has spent four full semesters here. He isn't exactly brilliant but he has managed to get along.

Last month came the "blow-grades," and mid-semester records showed him to be deficient in 11 credits, passing in six.

Ordinarily, of course, one would expect that the College would give the student a chance to make up his deficiencies during the second half of the semester. But such was not the case here.

For last week the Dean of the school in which the student was registered notified him that he had been dropped from College, that he would not be permitted to finish the semester, that he would be unable to collect any refund on his enrollment fees because too much time had expired since the opening day of school.

NOW LET'S face the facts. The student has paid his fees. He has been duly enrolled for the entire semester. The College cannot possibly replace him with another student this semester even if it desired to do so.

Under these circumstances, why shouldn't he be permitted to continue his studies? Why shouldn't he be given the chance to make up his deficiencies as every other student is?

Why shouldn't he be permitted to continue the courses which he is passing and for which he has every right in the world to gain credit?

AS FAR AS the Collegian is able to see, the College could conceivably have but two reasons for its action in this case.

Either the College feels it would be impossible for the student to make up his deficiencies in the time remaining and that it would be more economical for him to go home.

Or the College feels that even if the student should make up these deficiencies he would not have enough credits at the end of the semester to warrant his remaining in school.

If the first case be true—if the College believes the student would be unable to make up the deficiencies—the Collegian holds that if the student is willing to gamble on his chances and his ability, he should be permitted to do so. After all, if he has paid for a full semester's education, why shouldn't he be given the benefit of a FULL semester?

If the second case be true—if the College believes the student would not have enough credits at the end of the semester to warrant his staying in school—the Collegian holds that he should not have been permitted to enroll this semester in the first place and lose several hundred dollars in the bargain.

FRANKLY, the Collegian does not know what forces are motivating this action. Perhaps the whole case is an exception to College policy. The Collegian hopes so and hopes further that the administration will move quickly to right this wrong before the student suffers irreparable damage by being forced to stay away from classes when he should be attending.

Yes, the Collegian realizes that constant pressure from would-be students, who have every right to be enrolled here but who have been excluded because of limited facilities, forces the College to be strict in its policies.

But to be strict and to be ruthless are two entirely different things.

OLD MANIA

Capital Stock:

Doc Tschan, in his History 27 class the other day, asked the class to give a definition of Hell. Dave "Powerhouse" Cohen immediately piped up with "when a fellow gets married."

"No," said the Doc, "when a man gets married, he merely takes on a liability."

"You're right," chirped Cohen, "but little assets follow."

Two Sleepy People:

And it remained for Bobby Potts, delatuch rancher, to take on a Tschan-termed liability over the week-end when he was married to a Bellefonte lass. All the delatuch cowboys kissed the blushing bride. Bob won't let his marital duties interfere with his senior C and F course but will commute from a little nest in Bellefonte.

Have You Forgotten Too Soon:

Amidst the aftermath of unstaffed criticism and irrational coach-baiting that always follows a so-called disastrous grid season like the one just past, we found this dedication in the September, 1940 issue of Froth.

We dedicate this issue to Bob Higgins because it is our way of wishing him success as Penn State's new football coach. May the tongues of his critics become fouled in their tonsils.

Little Fish Story:

Once there was a little girl named Jean Chew. Jean was in the Infirmary. She had a cough. It was a very bad cough. She was lonely. Her only company were the goldfish. They lived in a bowl beside her bed. They blissfully swam in circles. The water looked muddy. The Doctor gave Jean a bottle of medicine. It didn't taste so good. In fact, it was bitter 'n' all hell. It looked muddy, too. Surprisingly, the fish still swam in circles.

Pork Chops and Gravy:

Another glorious week-end has gone pfft and Maniac shudders at the rapid approach of June and there are only 16 more shopping days till Xmas. We didn't think much of the amateur nite Friday. The performers weren't given a chance by the rank amateurs in the audience and someone ought to lynch that dip with the perverted sense of humor who kept ringing an alarm clock every two minutes.

Things we made a note of at Saturday night's game like Gilbert looking hearty in the crowd of 6000 and not a single paid admission. Chuck Peters wearing one of those caps that Will Osborne gave the varsity quidders. Paul Gies and Peggy Moyer walking in as though they didn't know she was to be named Harvest Queen. The Collegian staff is in accord with the selection, especially the managing editor.

Just Plain Chatter: a letter from Jim Dugan, ex Froth editor, tells us of a big evening of negro music "From Spirituals to Swing" to be held at Carnegie Hall December 23. He's the publicity department. Di Keogh, a dentist from Penn, wants to know if eng' comp prof Duke Mitchell still wears that Scotch plaid underwear that Brenda Diana Duff Frazier who's filling the papers, can park her four millions and size four and a half A's under our typewriter desk anytime.
