

Team Physician Named To Health Service Staff

The appointment of an additional physician to the College Health staff, who will serve as team physician, has been approved by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, President Ralph D. Hetzel announced recently.

Dr. Alfred H. Grless, formerly a member of the health service at University of Nebraska and also assistant team physician for the Cornhuskers, will undertake his duties here in the latter part of August.

"The addition of Dr. Grless," Dr. Carl P. Schott, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, pointed out, "fills a long-felt need in the physical training department."

"His essential duties as team physician will be to look out for the physical welfare of varsity, freshman, and intramural teams," Dr. Schott explained.

Dr. Grless comes here with recognized medical experience behind him. He completed his medical work at the University of Pennsylvania.

Whitey Rhoda Gets Head Coaching Post To Succeed Barth

William "Whitey" Rhoda, colorful Lion gridiron and ring performer of three years ago, has recently been appointed head coach of athletics at South Williamsport High School. He succeeds Lou Barth, a former teammate on the football squad.

Rhoda, a Summer Session student at the College, will begin football workouts midway in August with a team that went undefeated up to its final game a year ago.

The rugged athlete, a victim of a severe accident which scalded him with torrid asphalt while working as a laborer on a State College building project between his junior and senior years, has regained his physical strength.

Rhoda has been continuing his coaching studies with remarkable scholastic success. However, he has not played football or boxed since 1936.

PROPAGANDA

those who answered the Institute's questionnaire cited the work of the Legion.

Ordinarily, the Legion seems to content itself with giving prizes for scholastic proficiency, with sponsoring track and field meets, and with sponsoring essay contests, generally on the Constitution. In some public schools, the Legion directs patriotic celebrations, or else supplies the main speaker. Almost invariably, however, this is done at the invitation of the school authorities, the superintendents and principals reported. Nor did many of them indicate that Legionnaires had put any pressure on the authorities.

(It has been suggested that Legionnaires do not have to bring pressure to bear on school executives since many school executives themselves are Legionnaires.)

Still, the Legion can bring pressure to bear when it wants to, and more effectively, perhaps, than any other group. And it does so, particularly when it believes that certain textbooks are unpatriotic. Forty-three different instances of this were cited by the educators who answered the Institute's questionnaire.

Possibly because the Legion is organized to work State-wide, possibly because it can rally so much support to whatever it may espouse, in twenty-six of the instances the result was: "State loyalty oath passed," or "publisher deleted objectionable passage," or "text-book no longer on list."

Almost invariably the Legion seems to have the support of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Only two superintendents mentioned the Sons of the American Revolution. The S.A.R., it would appear, is quite unconcerned about the public schools, or else is yet too small to exert much pressure. Not so the D.A.R. If the American Legion protests, the D.A.R. protests, too. Sometimes, though not often, it will even step right out in front.

The W.C.T.U., of course, believes that children should be taught about "the evils of drink." It has encountered little trouble in persuading State legislators to pass laws. Getting them enforced, however, is another problem. With few exceptions the stories told about W.C.T.U. pressure were concerned with petitions and delegations requesting that more emphasis be given in the school program to liquor's bad effects.

Apparently in the past the W.C.T.U.

has used methods that irritated some educators, for there were five comments in this vein: "Their attitude is getting better, much better, indeed. There was no explanation."

Significant among the other pressure groups that work in the schools are organizations of the foreign-born. These are concerned partly with having courses in their native tongues introduced, and partly in keeping any unfavorable mention of the homeland from creeping into history, civics, and geography classes. Particularly insistent about the latter are the Italian-born, the questionnaire showed. However, the problem seems to exist wherever there is any large number of people who came here from Europe. Poles, Germans (Czechs, and Swedes—all were mentioned as wanting their children reared with the knowledge of their parents' native language, and love of their parents' native land.

Newspapers are militant, too. Indeed, Howard K. Beale has said, "The American press is one of the worst restraints on the school." Discussing the "Forces that Control the Schools," Dr. Beale has remarked:

The New York Times, generally more fair-minded than many, has attacked teachers' unions and radicalism. The Los Angeles Times has been a large factor in maintaining business and political control of the Los Angeles schools. The Hearst papers not only carried the Charles Giant Miller attacks upon history textbooks, but have persistently baited "reds" and attacked freedom of teaching in other ways.

It must be remembered, however, that organizations will usually bring pressure upon school executives only when they cannot otherwise gain their ends. For that reason, the activities of pressure groups are indicative not so much of the extent of the propaganda that is being poured into the schools from outside as they are indicative of the extent of the average superintendent's resistance to such propaganda.

This isn't always true; but, in all probability, the W.C.T.U., for example, would not have to petition for greater emphasis on the evils of drink if superintendents and principals already were sold on the head for so much attention to alcohol.

Co-operation, not pressure, therefore is the chief way that propaganda seeps into the school room—cooperation with town, county, State, and Federal government agencies, with local service clubs; and with leading manufacturers.

Matill's Knot Softball Loop; Bisons Still Lead

Graham's Drop Two As League Nears End

While the previously undefeated Graham A.C. club was dropping two in a row, Matill's fast-stepping outfit copped two more to move into a first place deadlock with Graham's in the State College Soft Ball League.

Graham's, playing three games in as many nights, ran their winning streak to eight in a row by downing the Independents Monday night, but that same club came back Tuesday to hand the league-leaders their initial setback, 7-7. Graham's were forced to forfeit to the Corner Room Wednesday for the second loss in succession when a sufficient number of players failed to appear.

Meanwhile, Dick Ewalt's Matill ten clubbed out a 14-6 victory over the Corner and won forfeit from the Independents, who also lacked players Wednesday evening. Mineral Industries remained close on the heels of the co-leaders with two wins last week as the hotly-contested loop enters its final week.

Standings of the teams (including Wednesday's games):

| Team | W | L | Pct |
|--------------------|---|----|-----|
| Matill's | 8 | 2 | 800 |
| Graham's | 8 | 2 | 800 |
| Mineral Industries | 7 | 3 | 700 |
| Independents | 6 | 4 | 600 |
| Cook's Market | 4 | 6 | 400 |
| McKee's Market | 4 | 6 | 400 |
| Corner Room | 3 | 7 | 300 |
| Alpha Fire | 0 | 10 | 000 |

Session Playoffs Set For Tuesday at 4 P. M.

Paced by the once-defeated Bisons, a hearty crew of Phys Ed-ers, the American League softball league moves into its final week of a play-off series, best out of three games, between the respective winners of the American and National Leagues, is slated to begin Tuesday.

The Bisons, with a record of seven wins in eight starts, loom as the American loop favorites, while the Yorkers are battling it out with Phi Delta Theta and Delta Theta Sigma for the National flag.

Beaver House handed the Bisons their initial lacing by a 12-3 count on New Beaver practice field Monday. The Miners dogged close of the heels of the pace-setters by winning two, one a forfeit from the cellar-dwelling Collegians.

Games are played at 4 p.m. each Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, afternoons.

American League standings (including Wednesday's games):

| Team | W | L | Pct |
|-----------------|---|---|-----|
| Bisons | 7 | 1 | 875 |
| Miners | 6 | 2 | 750 |
| Beaver House | 4 | 4 | 500 |
| Mystics | 4 | 4 | 500 |
| Phi Gamma Delta | 2 | 6 | 250 |
| Collegians | 1 | 7 | 125 |
