

April Health Treatments Increase Over Last Year

Approximately fifteen hundred patients were treated in the Dispensary in April as compared with about 1000 cases treated last year for the same period, Dr. Joseph P. Ritenour, director of the College Health Service, revealed.

While 41 patients were interned in the Infirmary last year in April for 135 days, 74 patients remained in bed for 193 days, showing a slight decrease in average days spent in the infirmary.

College Faculty Writes Numerous Research Articles

Last Year's Published Works Number 358; Full Length Books Printed

That faculty members of the College are prominent in the field of research is evidenced by the total of 358 books, bulletins, technical papers, and magazine articles which were written last year.

A booklet called "Publications and Research" is published each year by the College and the latest issue required 60 pages to list only the major scientific and professional contributions that appeared.

Not only were a large number of scientific bulletins published by the College's Agricultural, Engineering, and Mineral Industries experiment stations, but 15 full-length books were printed. The remainder were articles in scientific magazines, leaflets, and reports of scientific meetings.

Faculty Books Printed

Among the full-length books and manuals published were the following: Manual of Chordate Zoology, by Russell D. Casselberry, Valse Basques, by Hummel Fishburn, Track and Field, by Ray M. Conger, Poetry and Its Forms, by Mason Long, American Diplomacy and the Boer War, by John H. Ferguson, Outline of Public Utilities, by Leonard A. Doggett, The Improvement of Teaching in Secondary Schools, by Frank A. Butler, Theory of Mechanical Refrigeration, by Norman R. Sparks, Principles of Economics, by Carl W. Hasek, A Manual of Heat and Temperature Measurement, by Robert L. Weber, Accounting and Finance for Pennsylvania Municipalities, by Charles J. Rowland and H. O. Faylor, Argument, by Harold F. Graves, Types of Persuasion, by Harold F. Graves and John S. Bowman, and Principles of Business Law in Pennsylvania, 2nd Edition, by Sheldon C. Tanner.

Stoddart Defends Education Policy

Wants Mediocre Students Trained For Citizenship

"A leader is without influence if he has no followers, and the more intelligent the followers the better will be the results attained," said Dean Charles W. Stoddart of the Liberal Arts School yesterday in defense of the tendency in modern education to pay more attention to mediocre students than to gifted ones.

While admitting that a few of the privately endowed colleges can afford to limit their activities to the education of only the best students, Dean Stoddart believes that publicly-endowed institutions are charged with the responsibility of giving an adequate training to all future citizens who can carry the work reasonably well.

In answering Dr. Frank Aydelotte, President of Swarthmore College who asserted at the University of Virginia on April 13 that he believes in placing the emphasis on the training of leadership, Dean Stoddart said the leaders in a democracy should be trained, but in a democracy the average student should also be trained in those fundamentals which make for better citizenship.

27 'Dawn Patrol' Flyers Ready For Solo Training

"Dawn patrol" flying has enabled 27 of the 30 student pilots in the Civil Aeronautics Authority program here to enter the solo phase of their training.

The practice flights start each morning at 6:30 and continue at intervals until dusk so that students can get in their required minimum of 35 flying hours without missing classes. According to Sherman Lutz, pilot of the State College Airport and in charge of the flying, practically all of the 30 students will complete their requirements for CAA certificates and pilot licenses before the close of the college year.

Meanwhile, Prof. Harold A. Everett, in charge of the ground school instruction, reported that all 30 regular enrollees and three alternates have passed the final ground school examinations. This phase of the instruction was given by members of the College faculty.

Radcliff, Blumenstein Get U.S. Army Appointments

E. Gilbert Radcliff '40 and Robert R. Blumenstein '40 received appointments as second lieutenants in the United States Army and passed final physical examinations successfully at Carlisle Sunday, Major Donovan P. Yeuell, department of military science and tactics, announced yesterday.

The appointments will be effective about July 1. Radcliff and Blumenstein, who was originally an alternate, are the first Penn State men to be appointed to the regular army since the present ROTC set-up was established. Blumenstein was named when the two appointees ahead of him failed to pass their examinations.

Valuable Exhibit Is Featured By MI Departments

History Of World Shown By Permanent Displays Of Mineral Industries

The complete history of the world unfolded before your eyes! Dinosaur footprints, bones, and even a 50,000-year-old dinosaur gizzard, a piece of petrified wood from the oldest known forest in the world. Thousands of dollars worth of exhibits ranging from a working model of a coal mine to samples of all known kinds of precious and semi-precious stones.

Contained in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington? Perhaps, but also part of a display that few students realize exists, that maintained by the School of Mineral Industries in the MI Building.

Over 500 feet of glass cases enclose exhibits of quartz formations beautiful beyond powers of description, gold nuggets, tusks and teeth of giant mastodons that roamed the earth over 20,000 years ago. You can see dinosaur remains and footprints that were made 50,000 years in the past. A long time ago? Walk down to the far end of the line of fossils and you will see "Fossil from Pre-Cambrian Era, 500,000,000 years old!"

The door to a small darkened room next to the display of precious and semi-precious stones is labeled, "Fluorescent Minerals," and inside is one of the most beautiful and impressive exhibits to be seen.

F. M. Swartz, professor of paleontology, or any of the MI instructors, are only too glad to answer any questions you may have to ask about any of the articles on exhibition.

First Hillel Council Election This Week

Polling Thursday And Friday From 1:30 To 5 P. M.; Results To Be Announced Sunday At Senior Social

Ballots for the first representative student council in Hillel history will be cast at the Foundation Thursday and Friday, 1:30 to 5 p. m. Results will be announced at the Senior Social at Phi Sigma Delta fraternity Sunday night.

Each member of the Foundation will vote for 14 of the 25 candidates presented by the nominating committee. The persons receiving the greatest number of votes will constitute the new Council with the highest two automatically moving up to the executive committee.

The new set-up, designed to widen Hillel participation and democratize Hillel government, will go into effect immediately after elections. The new council will meet with the present cabinet within two weeks and elect a new president, two vice-presidents, a secretary, and a treasurer.

Additional candidates may be added to the original slate of 25 by a petition bearing the names of 10 women and 20 men, all members of Hillel in good standing. Matriculation cards and Hillel membership cards will be required at time of voting. Voting by proxy will not be permitted.

Slate Listed

The complete slate, as selected by the nominating committee, includes:

Juniors: Herbert D. Berger, Mirella Blackman, Ruth Goldstein, Estelle J. Margulies, David M. Orkin, Edythe B. Rickel, Harriet Singer, and Robert I. Weiss.

Sophomores: Harold J. Berger, Hazy Friedman, Arthur H. Jaffe, Corinne H. Kahn, Florence F. Rosenfeld, Irwin Schwartz, Stanley J. Silverman, Martin Sonnenfeld, and Arthur E. Stern.

Locklin Debunks Collegiate Myth

'Joe College' Type Out As Typical Student

Hollywood and novels to the contrary, there are no such typical students as "Joe College" or "Betty Coed," says Prof. A. Pauline Locklin of the department of English literature.

"There is no more a student type," she asserts, "than there is a student nose. No two students can be depended upon to think alike about anything. Students are just young people who happen to be attending college."

"College students are no more alike in what they eat or drink or wear than any other group of young people," she says.

Professor Locklin, who collects generalizations about college students as a hobby, concludes that the public's image of the average college student is based on mere superficialities.

Nathaniel Eaton was the first president of Harvard in 1640.
