

Activities Fund Rises $6,284 Over Previous Year

An increase of $6,284.47 in the 1939-40 Student Activities fund over the balance at the close of the previous year was shown in the annual financial report, released yesterday by Neil M. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics.

Mr. Fleming ascribed this increase as "partly due" to two new accounts—Hat Societies and Forensic Council. Also included in the Student Activities account are the interclass budget system publications, Daily Collegian, Froth, Portfolio, Beaver Field Pictorial, WSGA, WRA, and the Penn State Players.

The interclass budget system started the fiscal year with a balance of $19,905.19, showed receipts of $47,159.45, expenditures of $43,398.02, and ended the year with a balance of $23,666.62. Of this balance, $18,906.44 is held in LaVie savings accounts.

Even with orchestras commanding higher prices than ever before, Mr. Fleming reported that all class dances "showed unusual profits." Their profits were: Senior Ball, $324.92; Junior Prom, $1,067.30; Soph Hop, $1,276.86.

Principal items of income other than dances were class dues, $23,666.92; caps and gowns, $5,775; commencement invitations, announcements, and programs, $956.82; freshman dinks, $784.81; Lion coats, $636.52; junior blazers, $622.85; interest on LaVie accounts, $465.19; and the student government convention, $216.40.

Main expenditures, excluding dances, were: LaVie, $12,659.70; caps and gowns, $7,329.95; Student Union, $1,715.12; Blue Band, $1,689.81, and numeral awards, $1,475.

One thousand, five hundred dollars was transferred to the permanent treasury fund of the class of 1940, leaving $794.40. This made the senior class balance $2,294.40 on June 30.

Marine Corps Seeks Graduates

About 20 members of last year's senior class have "shown interest in applying for special training leading to commissions as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve," it was disclosed yesterday by Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive secretary of the College.

The graduates signified their interest after the College had informed them individually of the offer by mail. The letters were sent out at the request of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Additional names are being received daily, Mr. Kenworthy said. In order to be forwarded to the Marine Corps, he added, the names must be received by next Tuesday.

"The Marine Corps asked only for names of graduates," Mr. Kenworthy pointed out. "Under no conditions will undergraduate students be considered."

"We were asked only for a list of names," he said, "and have no other information about the offer."

H. S. Graduates Get CAA Training

An experiment which might bring thousands of superior high school graduates under the same type of federal pilot training program now operating in colleges is approaching its final test at Altoona.

On October 6, examiners for the U. S. Army will submit tests there to a picked group of 21 high school graduates who have been given an intensive 12-week "refresher" course by the extension services of the College. If successful in the tests, these youths would be classed as having the equivalent of two years' college education—thus meeting the Army's basic educational requirement for pilot trainees.

"The purpose," said J. O. Keller, assistant to President Ralph D. Hetzel in charge of extension, "is to determine for the Civil Aeronautics Administration if definitely superior high school graduates throughout the country can be made eligible through such courses, thereby supplementing the reservoir of college pilots. CAA officials estimate that such a program might add as many as 20,000 new eligibles per year."

The College is giving instruction at seven non-college centers which are located at Matamoras, Sunbury, DuBois, Waynesboro, Conneville, Somerset, and Oil City. Altogether there are 12 non-college centers in the state and 200 in the nation.

23 Students Take Drivers' Training

For the first time, 23 Penn State students have enrolled in the State College Safe Driver Training Course which started last week. Twelve more College students are on the waiting list for the second course which will begin about November 1.

A total of 36 townspeople and students are taking 20 lessons in the dual control car and 10 instruction periods in the classroom. The instructors have been personally tutored by Prof. Amos E. Neyhart, director of the College Institute of Public Safety and originator of the course.

Final driving tests will be given by a Pennsylvania Motor Police representative who has been especially assigned here for the driver's examinations and advisory purposes.

Members of the Sponsoring Committee of the Safe Driver's Training School are Professors Francis J. Tschan, chairman, P. X. Rice, Julius E. Kaulfuss, and Mrs. Carroll Champlain, Mrs. Iva Beemer, Mrs. Louetta Neusbaum, Lorin J. Elder and Harry A. Leitzell.

Chief Juba Estimates 100 Students Get Tickets

Over 400 car owners were warned by borough police that they had violated the ordinance forbidding all night parking on streets by tags left on their cars between 2 and 6 a.m. yesterday.

Chief of Police John R. Juba estimated that approximately 100 student-owned cars were tagged.

Violators were informed by the tags that, "This first card is a warning . . . You will be fined $2 if this ticket is not signed and returned to the Police Office within 48 hours."

If the tag is returned to the Police Office by tonight, no fine will be levied. Each car owner is required to state the reason for his parking on the street.

According to information appearing on the tag, persons who have no garages must make arrangements with the Burgess and Council before they will be allowed to park all night on the streets.

From the statement on the tag, it is expected that persons who can show that they have no other place to park their cars may be allowed to park on the streets. Since parking in alleys is permitted, few such cases are expected to arise.
