

Saturday Evening Post
Plugs Nittany Lion Team

Take a good look at this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post. There's a full page story about last year's football game with Syracuse. "Red" Friesell, intercollegiate referee, takes off on the Syracuse-State game and gives it a play that it really deserves.

When the Post gives Penn State a full page story on football you know there's bound to be bigger and better expectations for this year.

Pause For Reflection

A copy of the Pitt News somehow found its way to this desk, and on glancing through it, I was attracted to this headline—"Sixty Frosh Gridders Report to Coach Kliskey's First Call." So, I read the article, which concerned how Pitt has a "new deal" in football, how 60 youngsters have reported for frosh football, even though they will never play out of their own sandbox.

And it all made me wonder what is in the future for Pitt, one of Penn State's oldest rivals and formerly the top-ranking gridiron power in the East.

Last fall a Pitt freshman team played Pitt's last freshman schedule. Under the Panther's "new deal," all intercollegiate competition is over for freshman athletes. Henceforth the incoming-class footballers, cagers, etc. must be content to compete among themselves during their first year.

According to the Pitt News, frosh football coach Nick Kliskey plans to organize a five or six team league to operate during the pigskin season. Occasionally, as a sort of after-dinner mint, the '44 grid-ders will be allowed to scrimmage against the varsity.

Lion Harriers Improve As Time Trials Near

With time trials for the Michigan State dual cross-country meet scheduled for Tuesday, the Nittany harriers are beginning to "pick up their heels" in practice sessions, Coach Chick Werner said yesterday.

"Captain Bill Smith looks better than he ever did, and Pop Thiel and Alex Bourgerie are prancing over the harrier course in better time than at the end of last year's season," Werner explained.

However, Herm Goffberg, who was looked upon as a successor to Frank Maule, last year's running mate to Bill Smith, and Chet Snyder are still suffering from leg injuries.

to play at least once a week, thus keeping them all in condition, learning the Pitt system, and in general a lot more conditioning than under the old system of intercollegiate play where only eleven men could be on the field at a time.

But, you can't convince me that sixty spirited boys can be kept interested in a program which gives them no chance of test their prowess against teams representing other institutions—that is only a matter of human nature. We all like to match our strength and wits against outside competition.

Fruit Information For The 1940-41 Season

All State College Grocery Stores can keep a supply of fresh, crisp apples on hand from the COLLEGE ORCHARD FARM COLD STORAGE at all times. Delivery is made to the stores each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

*The fruit is clean, carefully handled, and sized. Free from worms and rot.
 The packages are marked with the fruit variety, name, and size.*

Ask for apples by variety name, buy them in the original packages.
 Grapes are also ready for use now.

Off-grade apples and grapes for jelly and butter are available at the Cold Storage.

*A supply of cold, fresh, sweet cider is available at the Farm in gallon jugs at all times.
 This cider is made from sound, clean, fruit.*

McIntosh apples are ready for use. They are a fine, crisp, eating apple—try them baked also. Bake them in a slow oven and then brown quickly. It takes a good apple to make a good pie. You will like a McIntosh pie. Other good varieties, such as Grimes Golden, Smokehouse, Delicious, Jonathan, Stayman, Winesap, Baldwin and Rome, will follow as the season advances.

You are welcome to visit the College Orchard Farm to see the fruit being harvested, packed, and stored.
