

College Sets Up Own Draft Registration

Cabinet Petition Desires Gallu '40 To Dedicate Song

A letter addressed to Fred Waring petitioning him to permit Sammy Gallu '40 to sing the newly completed Penn State song on Waring's radio program on October 11 was written yesterday by the executive committee of the All-College Cabinet.

A petition to that effect has been circulated on the campus and the entire student body unanimously approved of having the former Glee Club soloist dedicate the song. Gallu has been connected with Fred Waring's organization since graduation last June, first as a member of his celebrated glee club, and more recently as one of the singers at the Aquacade at the World's Fair in New York.

The letter dispatched to Waring was as follows:

The All-College Cabinet,
The Pennsylvania State College,
State College, Pa.,
October 1, 1940.

Fred Waring—

The faculty and students are very happy to learn that the new Penn State song has been completed and is to be dedicated on your radio program, Chesterfield Pleasure Time, on October 11th.

The student body here at State has indicated its desire to have Sammy Gallu '40, who is connected with your organization, sing the number on the dedication date. All of us would greatly appreciate this.

On behalf of the Pennsylvania State College, this body wishes to thank you for your genuine interest in Penn State.

Sincerely,
The All-College Cabinet.

IFC Hears Report On Rushing Code

"The past rushing season seems conspicuously successful because most of the fraternities have pledged their quotas, and, there were virtually no infractions in the new code," said Prof. Marsh W. White, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Interfraternity Council, at the year's first meeting of IFC last night.

In his report Professor White further pointed out that, due to code, serious college work started nearly a week earlier than last year. The committee also expressed approval of the house guest plan, since, out of the 277 house guests, 219 pledged the house at which they were guests.

H. Edward Wagner '41, president of IFC, brought up the question of a fraternity dating code. A code was passed that is virtually the same as last year's, but more concise. The problem of the enforcement of this code was raised and Wagner requested all possible suggestions along this line, stating that this was a real problem that needed to be solved.

Police Chief R. Juba gave a talk to the Council on the relationship between town officials and the fraternities. Chief Juba said that the Town Council requests the presence of all fraternity presidents at their next meeting, in the Borough Building, at 6 p.m. Monday, when the problem of the street signs being torn down in the last pajama parade will be discussed.

Prof. Sheldon C. Tanner, adviser of the Council, spoke briefly on this year's rushing code.

A ROTC Sergeant? He's Still A Private!

The basic two-year ROTC course given at the College will not exempt a student from being called to conscription duty under the new draft law, it was announced yesterday by the military department.

However, a student's previous training will naturally increase his chances for advancement. The draftee can postpone his leaving for army training until the end of the academic year.

Any student who takes the advanced ROTC course will not be called for the draft until he has completed his college education.

If he is called for service after graduation, he will automatically start as a second lieutenant at the regular army salary.

The following bulletin from the War Department headquarters, Third Corps area, Baltimore, has been released to the Collegian:

"Do not confuse the Regular Army with other proposed military training organizations. The Regular Army has a two fold duty; first to be the initial protective force in our defense plans, and second to train any force necessary to meeting expanding needs. The Regular Army service need not be temporary, but a permanent career.

"Soldiers and officers of the Regular Army are almost continually going to school themselves, to thoroughly know their own jobs, or teaching others to be better soldiers. A modern army is so complex it needs many specialists, experts, and mechanics in practically every trade, craft, or profession known in civil life."

Oswald Garrison Villard, Editor of 'The Nation,' Will Lecture On 'Our Way of Life' At 8 P.M. Today

Renowned Editor

OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD

Author To Lead Forum For Journalism Students

Oswald Garrison Villard, former editor and now contributing editor of The Nation, will speak on "Is Our Way of Life Doomed—Or Can We Avoid Fascism?" in Schwab Auditorium at 8 p.m. today in the first of four PSCA lecture series featuring prominent speakers. There will be no admission charge.

Earlier today, Villard will conduct an informal round table forum with only journalism students admitted in the Hugh Beaver Room in Old Main at 4 p.m.

A strict advocate of liberalism and progressive changes, this noted author and lecturer has championed the rights of the colored man and fought for woman suffrage when others were scorning the idea.

Villard started his journalistic career as a reporter for the Philadelphia Press, working his way up the newspaper ladder until he became editorial writer and president of the New York Evening Post in 1897.

In 1918, Villard sold The Post to assume the editorship of The Nation, which quickly became the foremost independent weekly of the country. Its liberal policies reflected the spirit of Villard.

He retired in 1933, becoming contributing editor and publisher of The Nation, and finally sold the paper in 1935, remaining only as contributing editor.

Some of the prominent books which Villard has written are "John Brown—A Biography Fifty Years After," "Germany Embattled," "Some Newspapers and Newspapermen," "Prophets, True and False," and "The German Phoenix."

Timeliness Marks Dad's Day Play

Timeliness, in connection with anti-Nazi feeling prevalent on the campus and in the entire country, is the main selling point of "Margin for Error" to be presented by the Penn State Players in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Casting of the show was completed only yesterday when Stanley Goffberg '44 was given the bit part of Captain Mulrooney, a typical Irish policeman. First dress rehearsal was held last night under the direction of Lawrence E. Tucker, instructor in dramatics, who assumed direction of the comedy when Frank S. Neusbaum became ill. However, Director Neusbaum is expected to rejoin the play today.

Playwright Claire Booth takes as the central figure in "Margin for Error" a much-hated German Consul, played by Robert Shellenberger '44. Leon Rabinowitz '43 is Moe Finklestein, a policeman assigned to guard the German consulate.

Nobody—not even his wife or the Bund leader—likes the consul and when he is murdered everybody is happy except Moe. In the final act Moe, too, brightens up when, amid a barrage of anti-Nazi wisecracks, he solves the murder.

Elect Campus '43 Heads

1,800 Students Will Enroll In Armory On October 16

The College will conduct its own draft registration for undergraduates and graduate students in the Armory on the October 16 registration day, a specially organized committee was told by President Hetzel yesterday morning.

The registration has been approved by the Centre County commissioners and will relieve students of the necessity of going home to register. The commissioners later will forward the registration cards to the students' home districts where they will be handled by the local draft boards.

The approximately 1,800 male students between the ages of 21 and 36 who are required by law to register will be excused from class during the time required for their own registration. Classes will not be suspended.

Approximately 75 members of the College staff will be sworn in as registrars to act under the authority of the county commissioners. They will register undergraduates and graduate students but not College employees. The latter group will register at the State College polling places.

The form to be filled out by each registrant will include his name and legal residence. Students' legal residences will be those of their parents unless they have established legal residence in the proper manner elsewhere.

The registrant will also give the name and address of some person who will know his address during the next several years. The student registrant will give The Pennsylvania State College as his employer. Other information required has to do with his description for identification purposes.

After the registration day, the cards of all students will be turned over the Centre County commissioners, who in turn will send them to county commissioners of the students' respective home districts.

Failure to register carries with it a severe penalty. Arrangements will be made to send a registrar to enroll any students confined by illness.

Members of the committee appointed by President Hetzel to arrange the registration are: Edward K. Hibbsman (chairman), Russell E. Clark, William S. Hoffman, Arthur R. Warnock, Harold R. Gilbert, Ray V. Watkins, C. V. D. Bissett, C. Russell Eck and Arnold C. Laich '41.
