

Lion Gridders Raise Season's Curtain Today Against Bucknell Eleven As Penn State Students Greet Fathers on 17th Annual Dad's Day

Football, Chapel, 'Margin for Error' Feature Program

Penn State students will be hosts today to approximately 2,000 fathers who have arrived here for the 17th annual Dad's Day festivities, which have been arranged by the Association of Parents of Penn State.

The highlight of today's program will be the Penn State-Bucknell football game on New Beaver Field at 2 p.m. This contest will show the comparative strength of the Lion gridders who have been ranked as one of the leading teams in the east.

After the game, the Association of Parents of Penn State will convene briefly in Room 121, Liberal Arts Building, at 4:45 p.m. to discuss various student problems. Election of officers for one year terms and reports of committees will be transacted.

Fraternity dinners, fireside meetings, sorority and independent men's entertainments, will feature the informal receptions that will greet Dad in his stay on the campus.

A special Dad's Day chapel service will be held in Recreation Hall, instead of Schwab Auditorium, at 11 a.m. tomorrow, with Dr. Frank Kingdon, former president of the University of Newark, delivering a pertinent address on "The Resources of Faith."

"Margin for Error," a Penn State Player production satirizing the Nazi regime, will entertain Penn State Dads in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. today.

For those who appreciate art, two exhibitions will be displayed today at the College Art Gallery in the Main Engineering Building from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Fraternity Form To Help Delivery

A coupon that will guide Collegian's ace delivery boys to their subscribers' rooms in fraternity houses is published on page three of this issue.

Each fraternity subscriber should clip the coupon, fill in his name, and paste it on the door of their room. The delivery boys on Tuesday morning next will use these signs to begin delivery to the rooms.

The service will be the first of its kind attempted by the paper. Room delivery, however, will not be made in fraternity houses specifically reporting they do not want it. Carrier boys begin on their routes about 6 a.m. and usually are through by 7:30.

In order that non-subscribers do not paste coupons on their doors, delivery boys will be given lists of names to check with the coupons.

Anti-Nazi Comedy Offered Tonight

With "Margin for Error," a play designed to appeal to the average person's insatiable appetite for anything connected with current world affairs, the Penn State Players will open their 21st season in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. today.

"Margin for Error" is an anti-Nazi comedy, in which a German consul in a large American city, because of his avarice and greed, is despised by everyone—including his wife and the leader of the Nazi bund. Much of the play's comedy pivots on a Jewish policeman, assigned to guard the consulate.

The play was written by Clare Boothe. It was introduced on Broadway last season and in summer theatres was produced more than any other play.

The Players presentation of "Margin for Error" is directed by Frank S. Neusbaum assisted by Lawrence E. Tucker. Chief members of the technical staff are Dorothy B. Scott, designer, and Bruce S. Cook, technical supervisor.

28th Grid Battle Opens With Lions Favored To Win

By PAT NAGELBERG
The vaunted 1940 Penn State football team, slated by sports experts for great heights this year but with two important members on the sidelines with injuries, will lift the curtain on its 54th intercollegiate gridiron season at 2 p.m. today when Bucknell's Thundering Herd will charge on New Beaver Field to do battle with the favored Lions.

This year's game will mark the 28th battle between the two colleges with State on the winning end 17 times. Strangely enough, no tilt has ever ended in a tie. As is usually the case, the Bisons will be rated the underdog but history has proved that in the past highly favored Nittany elevens have fallen by the wayside against fighting Bucknell aggregations. During the past ten years, State has lost to today's opponent no less than seven times.

So it will be a confident yet wary Lion outfit that will take the field this afternoon. Many of the players still remember that 14 to 0 upset two years ago while only the spectacular running of Pepper Petrella gave the Lions a 13 to 3 victory last year.

Coach Bob Higgins will send a veteran combination into action at the opening whistle. With a single exception, all starters faced the visitors last year, the only newcomer to the team being Lloyd Parsons, senior end, who has seen little service in the past two years.

At right end for the Lions will be Tom Vargo, returning regular. Frank Platt and Walt Kniaz will be at the two tackle posts, the latter replacing injured Carl Stravinski. Wade Mori and Mike Garbinski, a pair of rough and ready guards will support the center of the line with Captain Leo Gajewski holding up the center of the forward wall.

Little Pepper Petrella, author of many sensational runs last year, will open up in the tailback or left halfback spot in place of Chuck Peters, who has been out of action for three weeks with an injured shoulder. Craig White is slated for the wingback position for the third straight year and Johnny Patrick will do the blocking and signal calling from the quarterback post. The Lions' punting and passing star, fullback Bill Smaltz, will round out the starting State backfield.

Bucknell's Coach Al Humphreys will put four returning veterans in the Bison backfield to combat the seasoned State powerhouse. Gene Hayes, an accurate passer and shifty runner, draws the starting assignment at quarterback. George

Wueller Returns From State Taxation Duties

Dr. Paul H. Wueller of the department of economics returned recently from Harrisburg where he was chairman of the policies and procedure committee of the Education Congress.

He recommended that the state assume between 35 and 40 per cent of the cost of public education. In order to finance the increase in expenditure as well as to liquidate the operating deficit he suggested that the legislature introduce a tax on earned income and on retail sales.
