

Temple Student Defies Draft

Ernest Kurkjian, 24-year-old Temple pre-theological student, doesn't want to be drafted, but he ought to study a little constitutional law, according to Dr. John H. Ferguson, assistant professor of political science.

Kurkjian is waiting to see what happens when someone violates the Selective Service Act. He claims that the law is unconstitutional under the provisions of the 13th Amendment which provides that no "involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States."

Dr. Ferguson pointed out that in 1918 the Supreme Court handed down a decision in a similar case, testing the constitutionality of the World War I selective service act. In that case, Arver v. United States, Chief Justice White held that military service is not an imposition of involuntary servitude since military service is a citizen's duty.

If Kurkjian desired to test the constitutionality of the present law, Dr. Ferguson explained, resisting the law was certainly not the proper way to do it. Correct procedure would have been to get an injunction or restraining order from a court.

In New York eight divinity students and two Socialists are appearing before a grand jury for failing to register. Their claim is that registration for military service is in opposition to the constitutional provisions regarding religious and political freedom.

Here also, a Supreme Court precedent has been established, although it may not wholly govern the present case. In 1934 the Supreme Court ruled that it was not an abridgement of freedom of worship for the University of California to require military training of its students.

'Bomber' Dodges Nazis, Gets Here

Persistence may be a virtue, but with the animal husbandry department it is an obsession.

A certain "Cough Drop" Luton Hoo 679 had some sons. These were bred and exhibited by the College and were Grand Champion wether lambs and pen of lambs at the International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, in 1939 and 1940. In addition, Cough Drop had some daughters. As usual, that is where complications stepped in.

Cough Drop came from the Lady of Ludlow's Farms in Scotland. Because of the department's desire to continue the line-breeding, the ideal mate for the daughters had to come from the old home town.

After a bit of inter-oceanic correspondence, a Southdown yearling ram having the official alias of Luton Hoo 877 was selected as the lucky bridegroom. The only fly in

Hibshman Thanks Faculty, Students For Cooperation

Edward K. Hibshman, chairman of the College draft registration committee, yesterday thanked the student body and the 90 faculty and staff registrars for their cooperation at registration, Wednesday. "There was no congestion whatsoever," Mr. Hibshman said. "This was directly due to the promptness of the students in reporting at the scheduled hours and to the competent work of the registrars."

Sale of Temple Tickets Begins Monday Morning

Tickets for the Temple football game in Philadelphia next Saturday will go on sale at the Athletic Association box office at 8 a. m. on Monday, Harold R. Gilbert, assistant to the graduate manager of athletics, announced yesterday.

The price of admission will be $2.85 and will entitle students to sit in the reserved State section between the 35 and 45 yard lines. A football holiday has been announced for the day of the game and there will be no classes.

This afternoon a special exhibit of prints and color facsimiles will be on display by Dr. Konrad Prothmann of New York in Room 303 Main Engineering. The collection is composed of reproductions of prints by old and modern masters.

Lions Seek Third Straight Victory Against Lehigh At Bethlehem Today

Stars In Today's Grid Battle

Tom Vargo, left, Penn State end, and Bill Hauserman, above, Lehigh guard and captain, are expected to star in today's football battle between the Engineers and the Lions at Bethlehem. State will be trying for its third straight victory. (For story, see column five.)

Lehigh Selected To Start In Late Lineup Change

By PAT NAGELBERG

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 18 — A gridiron rivalry which dates back to 1888 will be resumed in Taylor Stadium tomorrow when Penn State will seek its third straight victory of the season against a thrice-beaten Lehigh team. A play by play broadcast of the game will be made over KDKA by veteran announcers Claude Haring and Bill Sutherland. The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p. m.

The contest will be the 21st in a series that started 52 years ago. State has triumphed on 12 occasions, the Engineers have won seven, and a 7-7 deadlock was played in 1920.

While the Lions are overwhelming favorites, Coach Bob Higgins is welding together the strongest possible lineup and will make only one change in the starting eleven that took the field against West Virginia last Saturday.

On the eve of the game the Lion mentor has selected Bob "Sonny" Rice, sophomore left halfback and former Bethlehem High star, to replace Chuck Peters in the tailback spot where he will be given a chance to shine before his hometown crowd. An outstanding player in practice sessions to date, Rice has seen little action in the first two games because he plays the same position as Pepper Petrella and Peters, the Lions' leading ball carriers.

Petrella, with two touchdowns and 250 yards gained from scrimmage to his credit, as well as Peters are expected to enter the battle after it gets under way.

In the fullback post for the second straight Saturday will be chunky Earl "Sparky" Brown, 165

Watkins Records Afternoon Hours

A record of class hours attended at 3 and 4 o'clock by College students has been compiled by Ray V. Watkins, College scheduling officer, and introduced to the All-College Cabinet which is considering the recent proposal to abolish 4 o'clocks.

In his survey, Watkins found that approximately 4,660 hours or 932 curricula were open for these two class hours, but only 1,145 hours or 49 per cent have been scheduled at 3 o'clock with 624 hours of 27 per cent at 4 o'clock.

One interesting factor, revealed by Watkins, is that two and three hour laboratory periods were responsible for the highest percentage of late afternoon classes.

Chemistry laboratory hours interfere with 3 and 4 o'clock vacant periods more than any other curricula with 5 per cent deficiency; other courses ranking from 2 to 3 per cent are home economics, physical education, mechanical engineering, industrial engineering, and botany.

"However," Watkins explained, "it is a certainty that all Wednesday and Friday 4 o'clocks will be abolished as an experiment in insuring committee and organization groups to meet in the school day instead of at evening sessions."

History Meeting Here Ends Today

The Pennsylvania Historical Association will end its two-day conference today with a business and discussion meeting this morning and a luncheon program and tour at Bellefonte this afternoon.

Approximately 150 delegates from all colleges in Pennsylvania gathered here yesterday, climaxing the day's program with the annual banquet at the Nittany Lion last night. Dr. Asa E. Martin presided, while Dr. Solon J. Buck's address, "The Living Past," featured the dinner program.

This morning a business meeting and a discussion of the topic, "The Scotch-Irish in Pennsylvania," will be held in Room 121, Liberal Arts. The delegates will then gather for a luncheon sponsored by the Centre County Historical Society at 12:30 p. m. at the Penn Belle Hotel, Bellefonte.

The luncheon will commemorate the town's three past governors, Curtin, Beaver and Hastings, with papers being presented concerning each. Following the luncheon, a tour of points of interest in and around Bellefonte will begin at 2:30 p. m. as the final feature of the conference.

College President Will Speak At Chapel Services

The president of Gettysburg College, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, will speak at Chapel services tomorrow morning. His subject has not been announced.

Dr. Hanson received his A. B. degree at Roanoke College. Later he studied abroad at the Berlin, Leipzig and Halle universities, and then attended Bucknell and Lafayette in this country.

He has been president of Gettysburg College since 1923.

During his college education he became a member of Kappa Phi Kappa, Phi Beta Kappa, and Scabard and Blade.

Chambers '44 Party Head

John J. Chambers was elected chairman of the freshman Independent party at a meeting held last Wednesday.

Late News Bulletins

New York — WPA workers charged the Democratic party yesterday with intimidating the workers through ward "helpers" and the passing about of democratic literature. A representative from the Workers Alliance stated that the Hatch act is being violated and that the increase of the enrollment of WPA workers backs up his statement of Democratic intimidation.

Washington — The Democratic party has begun an open political campaign. President Roosevelt will make a series of five campaign speeches using as an excuse for campaigning, "that Willkie has been making 'falsifications.'" The Republicans in answer say that Roosevelt is becoming "jittery" over the gaining popularity of Willkie.

London — English officials released the report last night that 6,950 citizens were killed and 10,650 injured during the month of September.

Carpenter To Speak

Professor Ray Carpenter, associate professor of education and psychology, will speak at the Freshman Council Cabin retreat at the PSCA Cabin in Shingletown Gap this afternoon.
