We, The Women—
 Is Your 'Little Sister'
 Getting Along Alright?

HAVE YOU seen her lately? Or did you ignore her after Freshman Week because she didn't measure up to your sorority rushing standards? Is she getting along alright? Or, does she need advice which you could give if you would visit her this afternoon?

A good many "Little Sisters" felt lower than the few people who didn't go to the Temple game last week-end when their "Big Sisters" refused to attend the Big Sister tea recently.

The Big Sister plan was started several years ago because it was felt that freshman women needed the guidance that only an upper-class woman could give. Such a plan is still necessary.

But most Big Sisters have formed the practice of taking Little Sisters to dinner and a movie during Freshman Week and then leaving them on their own during the period when they most need advice.

Greatest offenders are sorority women, many of whom sign up for Little Sisters with the hope that they can evade Panhellenic rushing regulations. If their Little Sisters aren't smooth enough to measure up to their sorority standards they are dropped quicker than a hot plate.

The responsibility is fixed by the list of Big and Little Sisters posted in the dean of women's office.

The friendships which have started between Big and Little Sisters are overshadowed, now, by the ignoring by Big Sisters of their freshman sisters who don't measure up to rushing material.

The plan is now a Penn State tradition and a coed institution. To abuse it is to evidence lack of College spirit. And upperclass women, as well as freshmen, know that Penn State spirit involves more than singing "Hail To The Lion" on a crowded football field.

Costume Parade To Climax Party

An old pair of pajamas worn backwards or a raggedy study dress, plus a cockeyed hairdo—in fact, anything but a skirt and sweater,—yields a successful costume formula for the Atherton Hall Hallowe'en party in the four Atherton lounges starting at 10 p.m. today.

Against a typically Hallowe'en setting, costumed women will vie for individual and group prizes in the costume parade scheduled for 11:30 p.m. and in a dimly lighted southeast lounge, uncanny ghost stories will be told.

Ten cents admission entitles guests to doughnuts, cider, and candy which will be served in the northeast lounge. Apple and candy contests at two cents a try will be featured in the southeast lounge with fortune telling for two cents in the southwest lounge. Proceeds will be used for a scholarship fund sponsored by WSGA Junior Service Board.

KD Secretary Feded

Charities will hold a coffee hour in honor of Miss Edna Sommerfeld, national secretary of Kappa Delta sorority, in the northwest lounge of Atherton at 5 p.m. today.
