Col. Ambrose R. Emery, head of the military department, reported yesterday that he will leave the College tomorrow for a 10-day conference in Washington, return to the College afterwards, then leave again for a permanent assignment in Macon, Ga.

His statement was issued to clarify reports that had been prevalent since his departure was first announced last Friday morning.

Colonel Emery added that this conference held by the Chief of the Infantry Office, was being called to discuss the establishment of four new Infantry Replacement Centers, throughout the country, which will be used for giving basic training to new men in the Army, both draftees and volunteers.

When, after returning to the College, Colonel Emery reports to Macon, Ga., for permanent duty, it will be for the purpose of commanding and building the first of these new Replacement Centers. He explained that there will be eight officers at the conference in Washington. Four of them will command these new bases and four will serve as their assistants.

The other three centers are to be built at Spartenburg, N. C., Camp Waters, Houston, Texas; and Camp Nacimeinto, San Diego, Cal.

Popenoe Advises Mature Marriage

"People should be physically, mentally, and intellectually matured before they marry," Dr. Paul Popenoe, general director of Family Relations Institute, Los Angeles, California advised in an address before 900 students and townspeople in Schwab Auditorium last night.

Dr. Popenoe pointed out that the stage of adult maturity is reached when a person gets to love other people besides himself. According to Dr. Popenoe, there are many people who never reach this necessary point and therefore cannot hope to make a success of marriage. The worst offenders, he said, are those who have been tied to their mother's apron strings since early childhood.

"Too many young men and women think that marriage is a child's game," warned Dr. Popenoe. "Marriage in reality is a proposition which demands sacrifice, compromise, and complete understanding of the partner's point of view."

Dr. Popenoe advised young people to get interested in community affairs such as church work, clubs, and boy and girl scout organization. He stated that statistics proved that aggressive personalities tended to make better matrimonial pairs.

"There is an inadequate program of social life present in over 50 per cent of our schools and colleges," said Dr. Popenoe. "This is an unhealthy condition." He went on to say that it is the responsibility of the more fortunate ones to provide activities in which all would have an opportunity to advance their social and emotional maturity.

5,000 Fans To Turn Out For Mammoth Rally Today; Prexy Grants Half-Holiday

Their request for a Saturday football half-holiday granted, some 5,000 football-mad students hoping to see their football team complete its first undefeated season since 1921, will swarm over the Jordan Fertility Plots tonight in a mammoth bonfire pep rally expected to put last week's celebration to shame. The rally will start at 7 p. m.

Guests of honor will be the football players who leave Friday morning for Pittsburgh where a Penn State team has not beaten Pitt since 1919.

Aroused by word that Pitt students, just as enthusiastic over Saturday's contest, are wearing "Beat He— Out of State" buttons, the Lion rooters tonight will sacrifice a gigantic straw panther to the flames of their victory bonfire.

President Ralph D. Hetzel yesterday afternoon granted the All-College Cabinet's request for a football half-holiday Saturday morning. The complete text of his letter to Arnold C. Laich '41, All-College president, appears on page two. The holiday cut fine will not go into effect until next

MI Monthly Paper Describes School

The current issue of "Mineral Industries," published by the School of Mineral Industries and issued this week, includes a complete survey of the School, with articles, pictures, and drawings explaining every aspect of the School's activities.

This issue is the result of careful study, and it is believed that no other school has ever undertaken a similar project.

A double spread on the center pages of the 8-page edition is devoted to drawings of the floor plans of the MI Building, including the new wing.

The whole edition is given over to articles explaining the trends and objectives of the School. An editorial by Dean Edward Steidle stresses the unity of the Commonwealth, mineral industries, and the College in building a "program of instruction and research for the benefit of its citizens."

"Credit for this union," Dean Steidle's editorial continues, "is due to those industries which, despite the depression years, contributed laboratory equipment and thousands of dollars for research, and to State and College officials who recognized the need for a Mineral Industries School on Penn State's campus."

Other articles describe resident instruction, fields of work, extension work, enrollment, and mineral industries research.

"How shall we deal with aggression in the Americas?" the topic of tonight's Town Hall program, will be the subject of the Fireside Discussion at the home of Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn, 301 S. Pugh street at 8:30 tonight.

Daily Collegian Challenges Winner Of Penn-Cornell Touch Football Fray

An undefeated, untied, unscorred upon, and wholly imaginary Big Red team will engage in dubious battle with an equally well trained Quaker outfit this Saturday afternoon on Franklin Field. The Cornell Sun has answered the challenge of the dauntless publication, The Pennsylvanian, to come to grips in the grueling game of touch football.

Eager to maintain its position of dominance in collegiate newspaper circles and desirous of continuing its glorious traditions, The Daily Collegian has taken precarious measures to protect its unmarred escutcheon. (Shield to the boys from Ithaca.) The Penn State publication has challenged the Cornell Daily Sun and the Daily Pennsylvanian. The two-bit circuit has now become the Big Three.

The honorable gentlemen of the press (we'll moider the bums) from Ithaca and Philadelphia are scheduled to engage in their knockdown, do-or-die, chaw-em-up, rootin', tootin', ephemeral contest prior to their varsity clash on Saturday. The swash-buckling junior board and simple sophomores of The Collegian offer to meet the victor of this contest on New Year's Day if anyone can be persuaded to show up.

The Sun feels confident of victory, so confident in fact that it

Preceding the rally, students and cheerleaders, led by the Blue Band, will form at 7 p. m. at the Corner Room for a parade through town, which will terminate at the grounds. The route of the parade is: south on Allen to Beaver; east on Beaver to Locust Lane; north on Locust Lane to College Avenue; east on College to Shortlidge Road; thence to the fire.

At the fire, the students will be led in songs and cheers, the guests of honor will be introduced, and the speakers will give short comments. At the height of the rally, the huge effigy of the Pitt Panther will be offered to the hungry flame of the bonfire—Penn State spirit.

Fraternity men are asked to cooperate by having their freshmen paint and carry "Beat Pitt," "Down with the Panther," and other slogans and banners.

The five hat societies will be present to keep in order the enlarging parade as it adds spirited students to its ranks. They will also keep the rally in order.

The "Beat Pitt" signs worn by the freshmen are of good omen for the State team. In the past three years, the "Beat Somebody" signs have been worn by the freshmen for seven events, and State has won all of them.

The committee in charge of the bonfire and rally tonight as appointed at the All-College Cabinet meetings Tuesday includes George L. Parrish '41 (chairman), Marshall D. Miller '41, Thomas C. Backenstose '41, and Walter A. Sottung '41.

At Pitt, this is "Penn State Weekend". A huge Pitt pep rally has been arranged for Friday night at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Hall, and open house fraternity dances will be held Saturday night.

As evidence of his enthusiasm, one Pitt student sent a letter to Charles A. Lockwood '42, enclosing one of the "Beat He— Out of State" signs, and signed it "The Panther."
