Love Always Wins 12,000 Prove

IF AFTER the past week of bluebooks you feel disillusioned or utterly worn out, here's a pickup thought. There is still love in the world even if the zip you got last week argues against it.

The proof? Twelve thousand people turned out to welcome the Windsors to Miami—to welcome a couple whose love affair rivals Anthony and Cleopatra, Romeo and Juliet.

It is comforting to think that those 12,000 persons went to greet a couple which every American envies for its democracy. The man who gave up his throne for "the woman I love" and the woman who faced English ostracism for the former king.

The Duchess has been the envy of American women since the day they glued their ears to the radio and heard an Empire renounced for love. She is the goal toward which many women strive in their search for poise and wardrobe perfection. She has achieved what millions of women dream about—a gallant prince to sweep them off their feet in a whirlwind love affair.

We'll add our admiration to the 12,000 who hailed the world's greatest lovers to the shores where love is aided by democracy.

Sports Clubs, Red Cross Sponsor Annual Program

By R. HELEN GORDON

Seventy-six thrilled youngsters from the first and second grades of the Pine Grove Mills School received Christmas gifts from Dr. Charles "Santa Claus" Wagner, of the mathematics department, in the main lobby of White Hall yesterday afternoon.

The kids were all gathered about a decorated tree after seeing Christmas movies and hearing Mrs. Lucetta Kennedy tell two delightful stories of "The Chimes Rang" and "The Pine Tree," when Santa popped in with gifts and a merry greeting for everyone.

With their new dollies, books, and harmonicas clutched in their hands, the little guests sang "Jolly Old St. Nicholas" for the good gent. Games in the gym, ice cream, and lollypops topped off the afternoon's fun.

One freckled little chap declared between licks "Boy, Christmas can't come too soon for me!" And that just about summed up everyone's feelings.

WRA Sports Clubs sponsored this annual party in conjunction with the local Junior Red Cross chapter. Miss Jane Nitsky, chairman of the chapter, provided for transportation, and Helen L. Mazur '42, activities board chairman, was in charge of arrangements.

Club presidents and the parts their groups played in the program were: Jeanne M. Chew '41, variety—refreshments; Louise B. Clark '41, swimming—entertainment and program; Janet L. Fleming '42, golf—refreshments; Mary L. Lenker '43, archery—checking; Vera J. Palmer '41, dance—decorations; Mary G. Procter '42, outing—gifts; Dorothy B. Reeves '41, rifle—gifts; Betty C. Rose '42, fencing—decorations; and Josephine H. Taggart '41, tennis—entertainment and program.

Members of the clubs donated 10 cents to the party.

Seniors Hear Whitmore Talk At AAUW Reception

Two-hundred senior women at the AAUW reception in the Home Economics Auditorium Thursday night heard Dean Frank C. Whitmore, of the School of Chemistry and Physics, explain what chemistry is doing to help abolish poverty in the world today.

"Human beings, need food, clothing, shelter and anything else they can get in order to survive," the dean stated in his talk, "What Is Chemistry Doing To Us?" "Chemistry has helped to provide more than enough of these essentials by converting unserviceable goods into useful materials, but in spite of this some people do not have enough."
