

Student Hunters Ask Exemption From Cut Fines

The first opposition to the cut fine rule was brought last night by a group of student deer-hunters who voted to present a petition to the Senate Rules Committee asking for the recall of fines imposed on hunters who cut classes the first day of deer season, December 2.

December 2 was the first day of classes after Thanksgiving vacation and included within the 48-hour cut fine period.

Robert A. Wasser '42, who heads the group, said that the Senate Committee on Vacation Absences has already considered the case but the members had disagreed and for that reason has been referred to the Committee on Rules.

Wasser said they would seek the backing of All-College Cabinet and A. R. Warnock, Dean of Men, and added that they felt "reasonably sure" that such backing could be obtained.

All hunters expected to sign the petition, he said, can present proof that they were in State College on December 1, the day before classes started.

"We were under the impression that we would be excused from classes," Wasser said. "It has been a tradition for 20 years that foresters, at least, are not required to attend classes the first day of hunting season."

In addition to Wasser, members of the committee in charge are Roy R. Beck '41, Glenn L. Bowers '43, Paul E. Rumbaugh '42, and Benjamin O. Wilmer '42.

Late News Bulletins

Madrid — Sir Samuel, British ambassador to Spain, told General Franco yesterday that England would give Gibraltar back to Spain at the end of the war. The attempt of the British to get the good favor of the Spanish people might have been aimed toward their objections to the submarine bases at Spanish owned Tangiers. An unbelievable large force of German planes occupied all the landing fields in Spain yesterday. The reason for the sudden heavy arming of that country was unknown but the Spanish counsel offered several plausible ideas. They believe that the Germans are getting ready for a knockout blow to England and that their country is the safest place to store planes; that the occupation of planes on Spanish soil would take the Nazi forces nearer to the shipping lines; and a very logical one, that they wish to take Gibraltar.

Berlin — A Soviet ambassador was given an audience before Hitler yesterday after waiting six weeks. This move shows that Hitler is evidently not too anxious to talk with the Russian embassy. The meeting was thought to cover the Russian-German trade agreement.

Rome — Italy claims to be launching heavy air attacks on the Greeks. German Junker planes are said to be ferrying the Italian troops across the Adriatic Sea.

Washington — The first American defense members have occupied one of the islands off the Newfoundland coast, which the United States secured from Great Britain in their recent trade.

Annual 'Talent Night' Program To Be Held In Auditorium Tonight

To Star In Show Thespian Members

The Penn State Club will hold its annual "Talent Night" in Schwab Auditorium at 7:30 p. m. tonight according to the co-chairmen of the program, Gerald F. Doherty '42 and William B. Loeber '43.

Leon Rabinowitz '43, star of the latest Thespian production "The Balloon Goes Up," will be master of ceremonies.

The Three Stooges, winners of last year's "Talent Night," are ineligible to compete again as a group so the program now lists D. Ned Startzel '41, teamed with Martha I. Stringer '42, while Roy P. Rodgers '41 will have a separate act.

The judges will be Elizabeth C. Bell, assistant Dean of Women; Eugene Wettstone, gym coach and All-College circus director; and Joseph J. Rubin of the English composition department. They will judge the winners by applause.

The program will include: the Meyers Brothers, from Major Boves program; Jeanne I. With-erow, special; and William S. Kirkpatrick '41, adagio dance; Andrew P. Szekely '43, pianist; the Swingerettes, girls trio from the Thespians; Alvira L. Konopka '41, soprano; Ji Fi Jam Band; Three Beats and a Pickup, with Jacqueline M. Reese '43, from Jimmy Leyden's Orchestra; Adrian L. Nolfi '42, tenor; Phylis H. Dalton '44, specialty dance; and Jimmy McAdams, leader of the Campus Owls.

Freshmen Enter Younger

Freshmen entering the College are getting younger every year, according to William S. Hoffman, registrar. In 1928, he found 55.3 per cent of the freshmen were 18 or younger. Of the freshmen now enrolled, 68.4 per cent are in this category.

J. H. Moyer, assistant professor of education; Dr. E. B. Van Ormer, assistant professor of psychology; Dr. P. C. Weaver, associate professor of education; Dr. C. O. Williams, associate professor of education; Miss Mary Jane Wyland, associate professor of education.

Portfolio On Sale; Penn State Farmer Reduced

Portfolio's Christmas issue is now on sale at Student Union, Jean C. Craighead '41, co-editor of the literary publication announced last night.

Featured in the current issue is an article by James Laughlin, editor of the literary magazine New Directions.

Another publication, The Penn State Farmer, largest agricultural college magazine published last year, has reduced its subscription rate to 30 cents for the remaining six issues, editor Alfred H. Austin '41, announced yesterday. Subscriptions may be bought at the agricultural mailing room or from a member of the magazine's staff.

Freshmen Debating Team In Non-Decision Meet

Four representatives from the Penn State freshman debating team, discussed a public speaking question with the freshman team at Bucknell Tuesday.

The affirmative and negative sides of the question, "The United States should form a permanent union with the British commonwealth of unions immediately," were argued in the non-decision debate.

Representing Penn State on the freshman team were: Frederick Dunlap and Roger C. Heppell, affirmative; and Edward Lapos and Morton Rosenfeld, negative.

LA Counselors Ready To Start Guidance Plan

Plans for the vocational guidance program in the School of Liberal Arts are progressing rapidly, it was revealed yesterday by Miss Julia G. Brill and Prof. Henry B. Young, both of the English composition department.

Professor Young and Miss Brill were appointed vocational counselors for men and women students in the School at last week's faculty meeting. These appointments, it was explained by Dean Charles W. Stoddart, are not official positions and will be held in addition to regular teaching duties.

Vocational problems of women students have been handled by Miss Brill for several years in the Liberal Arts 12 course. She invited all women students in the School of Liberal Arts to make use of the facilities of her office. Guidance pamphlets and other materials are available, she said.

"Feelers" are being sent out by Professor Young to various business concerns in order to determine the job prospects of men students. By this method he intends to show how courses in Liberal Arts can meet the needs of modern business and industry. Using broadcasting as an example he said that radio announcers with a speech and musical appreciation background have better job prospects than radio engineers.

Although the facilities of his office are still in the process of development, Professor Young expressed the desire that men students in the School of Liberal Arts make use of materials on hand at the present time.
