We, The Women Things To Know About Final Week

Local movie business increases. It takes most of your time between finals to read what you should have read during the semester. The remaining time can be used to cram.

The annual article by psychologists on "How To Study" appears in campus publications, is read, but not digested.

Professors uphold finals with the argument that it tests the student's ability to organize material into an understandable unit.

Some students think finals are a great institution because they are given a chance to make a zip out of a minus one.

Other students feel that finals are more likely to make a one out of a two.

At any rate, final week is a good chance to meet one's friends.

The post office reports record sales of penny post cards which are put between the pages of the blue books. Besides being self-addressed they carry such statements as "I would appreciate a minus one instead of a minus two."

The proverbial apple-polisher gets his last opportunity to veneer. Local eating joints put on extra waiters and waitresses.

Students who study together to get a broadminded approach to the subject find themselves in the well-known "bull session."

Some students have good intentions and actually settle down to concentrate. But most of them figure they can't learn in one night what they couldn't absorb in a semester and give up.

There are exceptions. Now is the time to start being one.

Cabinet

A finance drive for British War Relief and the International Student Service was set for February 18 through February 21. Elinor L. Weaver '41 and Paul M. Doty, Jr. '41 were named co-chairmen of the drive.

Cabinet heard progress reports from all of the school councils except Engineering which was given until next meeting to report. It also called for reports from the Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, Independent Men's Association, Philotes and the Dramatics and Forensic Board.

Because of examinations it voted not to meet again until 9 p. m. Tuesday, February 11.

75 Journalists Invited To First LA Mixer

Approximately 75 junior and senior journalism students have been invited to the journalism mixer to be held at the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house from 7 to 9 p. m. tomorrow.

The get-together is sponsored by the Liberal Arts School Council. It is the first of several mixers which will include all students enrolled in the school.

Entertainment will be furnished by Alvira L. Konopka '41, Adrian L. Nolfi '42, Leon Rabinowitz '43 and Andrew P. Szekely '43. Refreshments will be served.

Benfer Reminds Frosh Of Rules

That freshman women should realize the College regulations are made to help them and they should abide by them was pointed out by L. Eleanor Benfer '41, Judicial Committee chairman, to WSGA Freshman Council, yesterday.

WSGA Senate last night delayed action on WSGA Judicial Committee's recommendation to lengthen freshman customs until further observation of freshman conduct.

"If conduct of freshman coeds does not improve," Miss Benfer stated, "second semester permissions will have to be restricted."

Miss Benfer pointed out that rules are to help them and that college women should learn to conform to the group and not obey individual impulses where College regulations are concerned.

"The freshman class as a whole will have to be punished for actions of a few if rules are continually broken," Miss Benfer concluded.

Representatives on Freshman Council include campus dormitory hall presidents and house presidents from town dormitories. These women will lead discussions on College regulations in their respective groups this week.

$30 Minimum To Be Given For Puzzling Questions

A minimum of $30 will be given away by Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's scholastic honorary, in the "Information, Please" program in Room 121 Liberal Arts, at 3 p. m. Sunday. Originally each winner was to receive $2.50. However, if less than 12 people succeed in stumping experts, the $30 will be divided among them.

You might be a winner—so hunt up those old "3" bluebooks, rack your brains for questions, turn the combination in at Student Union before tomorrow, and then cross your fingers.

Ski Movies Set Tonight

Motion pictures on skiing, followed by a talk by Max Dercum, ski coach and assistant professor of forestry, will be given at the Home Economics Club meeting in 110 Home Economics at 7 p. m. tonight. The meeting is open to all home economics women.

Short Courses Offered

Registration for short courses in animal husbandry and dairy farming will be held today until noon in Room 111 Agriculture.

7 Food Exhibits Set This Week

Senior food demonstrations in home economics scheduled for this week and open to the public have been announced by Mrs. David Ulmer, assistant in the home economics department.

"To market, to Market to Buy Fruits and Vegetables" will be presented in Room 110 Home Economics at 11 a. m. tomorrow by Bernice M. Bane and Grace E. Rentschler.

Jean L. Mattern will advise students and visitors on "Novel Winter Desserts" in Room 106 Home Economics at 2 p. m. tomorrow. In the same room at 3 p. m., Elizabeth M. Double will take the audience "Around the Clock with Sandwiches."

"Meals in Surprise Packages" will be presented by Helen B. Cramer in Room 106 Home Economics at 10 a. m. Friday. Janet N. Holtzinger will speak on "Sugar and Spice and Everything Nice" in Room 106 Home Economics at 11 a. m. Friday.

"Fashion in Cookies" will be displayed by A. Arlene Markley in Room 106 Home Economics at 10 a. m. Saturday and in Room 106 at 11 a. m. Martha B. Manifold will reveal "Salads in Party Garb."
