

Flying Feet

Gregory Rice, former Notre Dame star, edges out Don Lash, who cracked records while running for Indiana University, to win the special invitation two-mile run at the 'Veterans of Future Wars' third annual track meet at the Boston Garden. Rice's time was 9:12.2. AP Wire

At Least He's Not Bald

D. O. Chesnut, Jr., freshman at the University of Mississippi, vainly applies hair tonic to his slowly growing locks which have been shorn by upperclassmen. He's worried about what the girl he left at home will think of him when he returns. Collegiate Digest Photo by Hammond

Beauty Board at Work

Two famous artists, Lamar Dodd and John Held, Jr., were called to the campus of Alabama College to select the beauties for the 1941 edition of the yearbook Technala. Proof of their good judgment is exhibited at the right in the person of blonde Marguerite Haisten who was one of those receiving top honors.

Plans Engineering Career

Interviewing Famous People

... is the habit of these three University of Toledo students and the photographer who took the picture. Althea Kern, Merrill Harrison and Richard Shock corner Gertrude Lawrence backstage while staff photographer Lloyd Goon clicks the shutter. The team has interviewed all personages that have visited the campus; got their biggest kick out of quizzing Wendell Willkie when he stopped on the campus last fall.
